2011 Conference –
The Spirit of the Past, Present, and Future of Learning
Where Experience, OD, and Leadership Intersect
October 5-8, 2011

Are you an Organization Development consultant, trainer, designer, coach or educator who uses games, simulations and/or experiential learning in your work? If so, you owe it to yourself to attend the 43rd annual NASAGA conference – The Spirit of the Past, Present, and Future of Learning, *Where Experience, OD, and Leadership Intersect – October 5-8, 2011.

Share new games and interactive training techniques – both digital and face-to-face – play and debrief new and classic simulations, and discuss game and simulation design.

The conference is an intimate and inspiring event that draws participants from across the country and around the world.

NASAGA sessions are participatory and interactive. Unlike most conferences you attend, you won't find "death by PowerPoint" presentations or "sit and listen" panels.

Features of the 2011 conference:

- Certificate programs in the DESIGN and FACILITATION of games, activities and simulations.
- Stimulating keynotes
- Pre-conference workshops
- Games night to play and debrief games new and old
- The winner of this year's game competition will be announced (for more details visit the website)
- Unparalleled opportunities to meet other consultants, trainers, designers, educators and coaches

Registration begins on April 30, 2011
