Keynote Speaker Ed Smart

Child safety advocate and President of the Surviving Parents Coalition, Ed Smart is an internationally recognized advocate for children's safety with particular focus on protecting children from "abduction, bullying, abuse and sexual assault." His advocacy began as a result of the abduction and miraculous return of his daughter Elizabeth from their Utah home in 2002. Elizabeth's abduction motivated him to become an outspoken advocate for change in the safety of our children and families.

Since beginning his fight for children, Ed along with other children's safety advocates tirelessly and successfully lobbied Congress and the Senate seeking passage of the National Amber Alert plan, the Adam Walsh Act and the Protect Our Children Act. He is currently involved with the Surviving Parents Coalition in supporting and fighting for federal funding of the Adam Walsh Act, maintenance funding and oversite of the Protect Act (the state Internet Crimes Against Children taskforces) and most recently working cooperatively with other organizations on state felony arrestee DNA legislation.

He believes that "It is more important than ever for children to receive safety education, options and choices to remove their fears and feel safer in their world today." He is currently in the development stages of an innovative and holistic child safety initiative known as "Not One More Child." This initiative incorporates many of our nation's leading children's safety tools including the National Child ID Kit, the radKIDS (Resist Aggression Defensively) Personal Empowerment Safety Education Program, Samantha's Pride (Parental community awareness watch with volunteers) and Internet Safety education, a comprehensive safety plan for children, families and communities.

Ed received his Master's Degree in Business Administration, specializing in Urban Planning as well as his Bachelor's Degree in Finance from George Washington University. He and his wife Lois currently reside in Salt Lake City, with their six children.

"It takes a community to protect our children."
