

Unfortunately, most people do not understand the behavior of complex systems. They imagine that shared goals and honest effort will be enough to achieve any objective. But a group characterized by trust, unanimity, and hard work can often get exactly the opposite of what it seeks. And trying harder typically makes the problem even worse! D.Meadows

DESIGN 10AM-17PM

SystemAwareness=Participation+ Aware Presence + Systmes Thinking

9.30	Arrival and Registration
10.00	WELCOME	Judit
	Short Intro on the imporatnce of StH int he here and now	KATI
	Cafe dialogue between cafe table members-short intro	K+J
10.30	Intro of the authors	Kati+Tibor
10.40	RoundTable(book team): Why was it so important for us to get the book out in Hungarian?
11.10	Systems Game: FRAMES
11.20	Cafe dialogue: What does it bring into my my mind-the game and our present time?
11.50	GAME: The Web of Life
12.40	LuNCH
13.40	GAME: Living Loop Theme: Ecology
14.00	D.Meadows on SKYPE
14.30	Open space groups: How can I make the best of the book and this knowledge in my work?
15.20	Roundtable: Reflections on what we heard?	US ALL
16.00	The 5 disciplines int he here and now...interconnections and relevance	Agota
16.10	Café: What am I taking home-dialogue into action?
16.30	Linda B.Sweeney on SKYPE Systems thiking and learning and the new generation of kids..
	Closing reflexion and our new StH Club Plan	Agota

INVITEES: business, coach,teachers, young entrepreneurs, consultants, friends and coleagues

The growing gap between rich and poor, rising conflict, accelerating environmental damage, and mounting financial chaos are just a few examples to suggest that it takes something more than honest effort. It requires that people understand the relation between behavior of a system and the underlying rules that govern that behavior. Honest effort is not enough for success. Often success requires a major change in the rules or the paradigms that characterize a system.

The games are not alone sufficient, but they can enormously enhance the value of other materials. In combination with a good speech, a workshop, a group discussion, or management briefing, they can be a powerful way to illustrate a essential point and to give others a concrete understanding..

Dennis Meadows