Hard News:

T: Speaks of the west and the fact that the red man will lead from the west

- participation is the only way to see things change
- When talking to Rainbird before the show - the 3rd week that North Carolina is in the news - they had a "moral demonstration"
- Melissa Harris-Perry today: all over that concept - attempting to use North Carolina as a guinea pig because NC has lots of immigrants from many countries south of the border and many black people AND the very, very conservative sector
The first election for Obama, the state went Blue; for the last one it went to Romney by a slim margin due to the vote-rigging - the old order holding on due to the programming - doing voter suppression in a big way

R: brings up Mark Sanford who was a regular customer of the DC Madam before she was killed [it was a clone!]

T: the NSA has been wire-tapping since the time of Nixon!

- On Mike Papantonio's show, the first segment was "Obama is no Nixon"
- The amount of strapping these ones down and stopping them from killing people so the whistleblowers can be free to speak - it is a nightmare!
- Yes, they are taking people's DNA now - on the arrest and the SUSPICION OF A CRIME, not convicted of anything! The NWO has been planning this for a long time, and the people who are part of Occupy Wall Street are already classified as terrorists & they have been working of what can be made up, and those working for the light also have criminal records that could make you ask "Who's that!?"

Camp Loveway: she said it would be a cold day in heaven before anyone took a swab of her cheek!

MSNBC: Alex Witt - when they take your fingerprints, they cannot tell the colour of your skin or your ancestry - when they take DNA, they know all that and even more

- Combine that with what Obama said: they only acquisition phone numbers - don't get your name or anything - yet as T says if they have your DNA before you are convicted of anything - they can follow the phone records and find out your entire history, family, education, etc - this is nasty!
  - They can even eliminate you and make a clone of you; re-program you and have control of you like the KOS has control of all the clones of the dark side
- That people are not paying attention to what they are doing, is the best thing they have going for them!
- Today we are asking people to participate; bring forth ideas of how to help people wake up and create a passion in their hearts & what they want to do with their money and their lives, & what brings joy
- So it is time to awaken the passion in people - we realize that "out of sight, out of mind" has been going on for so long - we do not realize what has been going on in Iraq in our name, our money, and our blood because there is no real news on this; just beginning to realize what is going on in Palestine.
  - Brings up the fact that more billions of dollars to Israel to build a ballistic missiles base in the country to to kill more Iraqis, Syrians, etc etc - in addition to the regular $3.4 Billion
- Remember "I AM AMERICA" map that we are not going to?
  - On that map Israel is gone, Turkey, Iran, Germany, Italy, Palestine - just water there!
  - They threw that map in the garbage because it has NWO written all over it - that map shows up as the way and destiny that the NWO makes it so -WITH OUR MONEY! Look at it and say "I don't think so!"
  - Our crisis is not 3D but in the higher level - this is a crisis of consciousness: ignorance is working against consciousness

- Someone they know went to live in Baghdad to live there: an enormously eye-opening experience - has slides and pictures from her time there - at the bottom of the podium, it says that the pictures are not being shown to keep them protected
- This is similar to what happened in South Africa and the conflict resolution activities - speaks of the South African experience when a mother spoke to the soldier who killed her son in cold blood and chopped off the arms of her daughter who was still alive and was sitting beside the mother -
  - America has to do this, too - we cannot "get on with life" [announce Nesara etc etc etc ]until we come to face-to-face with this - so we look for balance in all we say and share today
- Obama is no Nixon, yet Nixonism which is treason has not been dealt with and now we have a gov;t which is full of mass treasonists, plus a financial system which is the same
  - we are now a series of generations from the Prophets [1947] and onwards - the Crystal children - X and Y and Z generations Crystals and Millenials - there is about 100 years - 5 generations -
  - The Fourth Turning [book] only talks of 4 generations and then repeats;
  - However, as we face this together [prophets, crystals, X,Y, Z and Millenials] we are now moving into higher consciousness & the perspective of consciousness changes it: - our parents' patterns were the silent generation: when the cabal saw the silent generations coming up they saw they could bring in WW I and WW II because the parents of the silent generation would not fight back, nor would wht children

Counter Spin: Had on the "Idle No More" people in Canada's Parliament Mr Harper you are out of here: they got into Parliament or wherever and spoke out: the people of the land know how to move like a silent cat. Idle No More - Tag! We are it!

Camp Loveway: Charles Collins was on - spoke of the Doorway of Aramu Meru, in Peru

- he was one who had a huge corporation and lost it all due to the dot com bubble - except for $5 Million which was somewhere else -
- he went on a soul searching journey and went to the Monastery of the Seven Rays and the Valley of the Blue moon, and then come back; he went through the doorway and came back - it is an actual operational stargate, guarded by the Office of the Christ, not by the military
- it is called the Devil's Doorway because kids and visitors have disappeared & never come back
- Collins said it is not to be played with. There are dimensional gateways across the planet that are emerging and are used by the forces of light and are there for people to use
- The Doorway of Aramu Meru by Charles Collins
- Wild things going on in the midst of things like our friends listening to us all the times!
- The people will no longer be idle any longer on this planet: civil arrest and civil disobedience will continue in spite of goons with guns; Collins said he has seen enough from going as an equal with Mitt Romney to being in a homeless shelter to learn about going through the gateway of the heart

T: it is all about a new perspective that is unravelling

- Love with no opposite; positive power of thought - all -ve is an illusion which has no power unless we feed it with our energy- like living in a square home the walls of which stay in place because of our consciousness holding it there; tells of their friend who carves and uses not a single nail - can build like that

R: Charles Collins spoke of the singing bowls being played when he went through the doorway - they used the 528 Solfeggio tones and the next to the last tone in the highest range & how he did his mantras and focussed on the doorway - he glowed and went through the doorway and was gone for 5 hours! He said he went to the Valley of the Blue Moon - about changing your point of view!

- As Joseph Campbell explained it, if you are pure of heart, can create from the etheric to the physical and have a "virgin birth"
- As you are pure of heart, you can go through the stargate
- the Valley of the Blue Moon is not a physical place, yet it is a real place: it is an etheric/physical place, as you are pure of heart, you can see it

T: gives more background on the Collins story, and the importance of the judge's ruling in the divorce case; Charles talked of John of God and how much he charges which he thought was too much -

- There is no other planet which uses money except this one, and there are 80 billion planets in the Universe of Nabadon so what does that say? The monadic way of life means we are working in pure service and giving from the heart and there is gift-giving going on - explains the background about giving money for services - a linear concept;
- we are in transition zone, we are learning something by doing things this way [T, R, and us who receive and support them] how to get off of money - when we receive the money and know that money is not to hoard - a difference between opulence and greed, selfishness and selflessness; service to the world and service to whims of the ego;
- Aramu Meru and LM Rantu are the prince and princess of the Aurora sun system in anti-matter/counter gravity; in other words, it is the doorway to anti matter

All 4 parts of the film can be found at www.innerworldsmovie.com

Part one of the film Inner Worlds, Outer Worlds. Akasha is the unmanifested, the "nothing" or emptiness which fills the vacuum of space. As Einstein realized, empty space is not really empty. Saints, sages and yogis who have looked within themselves have also realized that within the emptiness is unfathomable power, a web of information or energy which connects all things. This matrix or web has been called the Logos, the Higgs Field, the Primordial OM and a thousand other names throughout history. In part one of Inner Worlds, we explore the one vibratory source that extends through all things, through the science of cymatics, the concept of the Logos, and the Vedic concept of Nada Brahma (the universe is sound or vibration). Once we realize that there is one vibratory source that is the root of all scientific and spiritual investigation, how can we say "my religion", "my God" or "my discovery".

Part 2: Inner Worlds, Outer Worlds - The Spiral

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ZIMoxXOOXvM>

The Pythagorean philosopher Plato hinted enigmatically that there was a golden key that unified all of the mysteries of the universe. The golden key is the intelligence of the logos, the source of the primordial om. One could say that it is the mind of God. The source of this divine symmetry is the greatest mystery of our existence. Many of history's monumental thinkers such as Pythagoras, Kepler, Leonardo da Vinci, Tesla and Einstein have come to the threshold the mystery. Every scientist who looks deeply into the universe and every mystic who looks deeply within the self, eventually comes face to face with the same thing: The Primordial Spiral.

Part 3 Inner Worlds, Outer Worlds - The Serpent and the Lotus

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=yNEruEsb5T4>

The primordial spiral is the manifested world, while Akasha is the unmanifested, or emptiness itself. All of reality is an interplay between these two things; Yang and Yin, or consciousness and matter. The spiral has often been represented by the snake, the downward current, while the bird or blooming lotus flower has represented the upward current or transcendence. The ancient traditions taught that a human being can become a bridge extending from the outer to the inner, from gross to subtle, from the lower chakras to the higher chakras. To balance the inner and the outer is what the Buddha called the middle way, or what Aristotle called the Golden Mean. You can be that bridge. The full awakening of human consciousness and energy is the birthright of every individual on the planet. In today's society we have lost the balance between the inner and the outer. We are so distracted by the outer world of form, thoughts and ideas, that we no longer take time to connect to our inner worlds, the kingdom of heaven that is within.

Part 4: Inner Worlds, Outer Worlds - Beyond Thinking

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=qmL4CeTENTw>

Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. We live our lives pursuing happiness "out there" as if it is a commodity. We have become slaves to our own desires and craving.

Happiness isn't something that can be pursued or purchased like a cheap suit. This is Maya, illusion, the endless play of form. In the Buddhist tradition, Samsara, or the endless cycle of suffering is perpetuated by the craving of pleasure and aversion to pain. Freud referred to this as the "pleasure principle." Everything we do is an attempt to create pleasure, to gain something that we want, or to push away something that is undesirable that we don't want. Even a simple organism like the paramecium does this. It is called response to stimulus. Unlike a paramecium, humans have more choice. We are free to think, and that is the heart of the problem. It is the thinking about what we want that has gotten out of control. The dilemma of modern society is that we seek to understand the world, not in terms of archaic inner consciousness, but by quantifying and qualifying what we perceive to be the external world by using scientific means and thought. Thinking has only led to more thinking and more questions. We seek to know the innermost forces which create the world and guide its course. But we conceive of this essence as outside of ourselves, not as a living thing, intrinsic to our own nature. It was the famous psychiatrist Carl Jung who said, "one who looks outside dreams, one who looks inside awakes." It is not wrong to desire to be awake, to be happy. What is wrong is to look for happiness outside when it can only be found inside.

Manfred Max-Neef, Chilean economist. He won the Right Livelihood Award in 1983, two years after the publication of his book Outside Looking In: Experiences in Barefoot Economics.

We speak with the acclaimed Chilean economist, Manfred Max-Neef. He won the Right Livelihood Award in 1983, two years after the publication of his book Outside Looking In: Experiences in Barefoot Economics. "Economists study and analyze poverty in their nice offices, have all the statistics, make all the models, and are convinced that they know everything that you can know about poverty. But they don't understand poverty," Max-Neef says. [includes rush transcript]

AMY GOODMAN: Today we begin with acclaimed Chilean economist Manfred Max-Neef. He won the Right Livelihood Award in 1983, two years after the publication of his book Outside Looking In: Experiences in Barefoot Economics. I sat down with Manfred Max-Neef in Bonn, Germany, at the 30th anniversary of the Right Livelihood Awards. I began by asking him to explain just what "barefoot economics" is.

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: Well, it's a metaphor, but a metaphor that originated in a concrete experience. I worked for about ten years of my life in areas of extreme poverty in the Sierras, in the jungle, in urban areas in different parts of Latin America. And at the beginning of that period, I was one day in an Indian village in the Sierra in Peru. It was an ugly day. It had been raining all the time. And I was standing in the slum. And across me, another guy also standing in the mud — not in the slum, in the mud. And, well, we looked at each other, and this was a short guy, thin, hungry, jobless, five kids, a wife and a grandmother. And I was the fine economist from Berkeley, teaching in Berkeley, having taught in Berkeley and so on. And we were looking at each other, and then suddenly I realized that I had nothing coherent to say to that man in those circumstances, that my whole language as an economist, you know, was absolutely useless. Should I tell him that he should be happy because the GDP had grown five percent or something? Everything was absurd.

So I discovered that I had no language in that environment and that we had to invent a new language. And that's the origin of the metaphor of barefoot economics, which concretely means that is the economics that an economist who dares to step into the mud must practice. The point is, you know, that economists study and analyze poverty in their nice offices, have all the statistics, make all the models, and are convinced that they know everything that you can know about poverty. But they don't understand poverty. And that's the big problem. And that's why poverty is still there. And that changed my life as an economist completely. I invented a language that is coherent with those situations and conditions.

AMY GOODMAN: And what is that language? How do you apply economics or have those situations explain economics changing?

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: No, the thing is much deeper. I mean, it's not like a recipe typical of someone in your country, 15 lessons or satisfaction guaranteed or your money back. That's not the point. The point is much deeper. You know, I would — let me put it this way. We have reached a point in our evolution in which we know a lot. We know a hell of a lot. But we understand very little. Never in human history has there been such an accumulation of knowledge like in the last 100 years. Look how we are. What was that knowledge for? What did we do with it? And the point is that knowledge alone is not enough, that we lack understanding.

And the difference between knowledge and understanding, I can give it as an example. Let us assume that you have studied everything that you can study, from a theological, sociological, anthropological, biological and even biochemical point of view, of a human phenomenon called love. So the result is that you will know everything that you can know about love. But sooner or later, you will realize that you will never understand love unless you fall in love. What does that mean? That you can only attempt to understand that of which you become a part. If we fall in love, as the Latin song says, we are much more than two. When you belong, you understand. When you're separated, you can accumulate knowledge. And that is — that's been the function of science. Now, science is divided into parts, but understanding is holistic.

And that happens with poverty. I understood poverty because I was there. I lived with them. I ate with them. I slept with them, you know, etc. And then you begin to learn that in that environment there are different values, different principles from — compared to those from where you are coming, and that you can learn an enormous amount of fantastic things among poverty. What I have learned from the poor is much more than I learned in the universities. But very few people have that experience, you see? They look at it from the outside, instead of living it from the inside.

And you learn extraordinary things. The first thing you learn, that people who want to work in order to overcome poverty and don't know, is that in poverty there is an enormous creativity. You cannot be an idiot if you want to survive. Every minute, you have to be thinking, what next? What do I know? What trick can I do here? What's this and that, that, that, that? And so, your creativity is constant. In addition, I mean, that it's combined, you know, with networks of cooperation, mutual aid, you know, and all sort of extraordinary things which you'll no longer find in our dominant society, which is individualistic, greedy, egoistical, etc. It's just the opposite of what you find there. And it's sometimes so shocking that you may find people much happier in poverty than what you would find, you know, in your own environment, which also means, you know, that poverty is not just a question of money. It's a much more complex thing.

AMY GOODMAN: How do you travel between the worlds? And when you're living in the communities where you learned so much, what do those communities, people in those communities ask you, want to know from you?

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: It may surprise. I mean, they're not so interested in us there. We overestimate ourselves. And we believe, you know, that they want to be like us. And even more, when we go there, you know, we believe that they must — they will overcome their problems when they look as much as possible as we look; they must be like us. And that's nonsense, see? I can give you — could give you lots of examples. For instance, what was the name of the program in the time of Kennedy when young people went, you know, to all over the —

AMY GOODMAN: Peace Corps?

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: The Peace Corps, yeah, OK. I was many times in that. I even taught Peace Corps groups, you know, in California and so on and on. Then I found them, you know, in the field when I was there. Lovely young people, you know? I mean, very well-intentioned, you know. And the situations like this.

Well, there you have a woman making a poncho. No, but with another machine, instead of making two ponchos in one week, I mean, she could make 20 ponchos.

So, now, "We will bring you a much better thing."

"Oh, OK, well..."

They bring it in, you know, and come back a few months later, you know, to see a huge production of this woman. And how our young find?

"Oh, how do you like the machine?"

"Oh, very nice."

"And how many ponchos are you making?"

"Well, two ponchos a week."

"What do you mean? You could make much more."

"Well, but I don't need to make more."

"But why do you make just two? Well, what is the machine then for?"

"Well, I make two, but now I have much more time to be with my friends and with my kids."

In our environment, you know, you have to do more and more and more and more. No, there, instead of making more, they have more time to enjoy themselves, to have a nice relationship with friends, with family, etc. You see? Lovely values which we have lost.

AMY GOODMAN: What do you think we need to change?

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: Oh, almost everything. We are simply, dramatically stupid. We act systematically against the evidences we have. We know everything that should not be done. There's nobody that doesn't know that. Particularly the big politicians know exactly what should not be done. Yet they do it.

Now, how do you change that? I don't know. I don't have the recipe. But that's the way it is. And that is the definition of stupidity. The stupid act is the act you commit against the evidences you have.

"Don't go through this alley because it's very dark and there's a hole in it, and you may fall in."

"Ah, no, don't worry."

And you go in, and boom! And you fall in it. That's stupidity. And that is our situation today in the world.

After what happened since October 2008, I mean, elementally, you would think what? That now they're going to change. I mean, they see that the model is not working. The model is even poisonous, you know? Dramatically poisonous. And what is the result, and what happened in the last meeting of the European Union? They are more fundamentalist now than before. So, the only thing you know that you can be sure of, that the next crisis is coming, and it will be twice as much as this one. And for that one, there won't be enough money anymore. So that will be it. And that is the consequence of systematical human stupidity.

Now, why the hell are they so afraid to change, when they know that this is an absolute collision? And instead of braking, I mean, they're accelerating. I don't have a recipe against that, but I'm very — I'm very afraid to know what is still coming.

AMY GOODMAN: What do you think needs to change? You're saying it's obvious, but what do you think needs to happen that they're avoiding?

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: Well, to begin with, a completely new concept of economics. This economy is crazy and poisonous. I am an economist, and I have been fighting against the economy that is taught the way it is being taught and being practiced. I have been fighting it for almost 40 years of my life, because it's an absurd economy that has nothing to do with real life. It's all fabrications, no? If the model doesn't work, it's not because the model is wrong, but because reality plays foul tricks. And reality is there to be domesticated, you know, and become the model. That is the attitude. And that's systematic, in addition.

What is the economy that is being taught in the universities today everywhere? Neoclassical economics. Neoliberalism is an offspring of neoclassical economics. And neoclassical economics is 19th century. So we are supposed to solve problems of the 21st century that have no precedent with theories of the 19th century. We no longer have a physics of the 19th century, nor a biology, nor an engineering — nor nothing. The only thing in which we stopped in the 19th century is in the concept of economics. I mean, and that is elementarily absurd. And the main journals and everything, you know — I mean, no, no, that's the way it must be.

AMY GOODMAN: So, to avoid another catastrophe, collision, if you were in charge, what would you say has to happen?

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: Well, first of all, well, I would dramatically change, you know. For me, the problem begins in the university. The university is, for me, the main responsible for this. The university today has become an accomplice of maintaining a world which we don't want, because if you don't teach something different to the economists, well, how the hell are you going to change it when they are professionals, you know, working? It's impossible. When I started economics in the early '50s, it was totally different. We had some fundamental courses like economic history, history of economic thought. Those courses don't exist in the curricula anymore. You don't have to know the history. It's not necessary. It's not necessary that you know what previous economists ever thought. That's not necessary. You don't need it. I mean, that's even stupid arrogance, you know. No, now we know for sure this is it forever, you know? Then it ceases to be a discipline, it ceases to be a science, and it becomes a religion. And that is what economics, neoliberal economics, is today.

So, first of all, we need cultured economists again, who know the history, where they come from, how the ideas originated, who did what, and so on and so on; second, an economics now that understands itself very clearly as a subsystem of a larger system that is finite, the biosphere, hence economic growth as an impossibility; and third, a system that understands that it cannot function without the seriousness of ecosystems. And economists know nothing about ecosystems. They don't know nothing about thermodynamics, you know, nothing about biodiversity or anything. I mean, they are totally ignorant in that respect. And I don't see what harm it would do, you know, to an economist to know that if the beasts would disappear, he would disappear as well, because there wouldn't be food anymore. But he doesn't know that, you know, that we depend absolutely from nature. But for these economists we have, nature is a subsystem of the economy. I mean, it's absolutely crazy.

And then, in addition, you know, bring consumption closer to production. I live in the south of Chile, in the deep south. And that area is a fantastic area, you know, in milk products and what have you. Top. Technologically, like the maximum, you know? I was, a few months ago, in a hotel, and there in the south, for breakfast, and there are these little butter things, you know? I get one, and it's butter from New Zealand. I mean, if that isn't crazy, you know? And why? Because economists don't know how to calculate really costs, you know? To bring butter from 20,000 kilometers to a place where you make the best butter, under the argument that it was cheaper, is a colossal stupidity, because they don't take into consideration what is the impact of 20,000 kilometers of transport? What is the impact on the environment of that transportation, you know, and all those things? And in addition, I mean, it's cheaper because it's subsidized. So it's clearly a case in which the prices never tell the truth. It's all tricks, you know? And those tricks do colossal harms. And if you bring consumption closer to production, you will eat better, you will have better food, you know, and everything. You will know where it comes from. You may even know the person who produces it. You humanize this thing, you know? But the way the economists practice today is totally dehumanized.

AMY GOODMAN: You don't think the earth will force this different way of thinking, that we're reaching the end?

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: Oh, well, yes. Yes. I believe, you know, that — well, there are some important scientists that already are saying, I believe. I have not reached that point yet. But some believe, you know, and state that it's definite: we are finished. We are finished. In a few more decades, I mean, there will be no humanity anymore. I don't think we have reached that point of it, but I believe that we are pretty close to it. I'll say that we already crossed one of the three rivers. And if you look at it and what is happening everywhere, I mean, it's quite frightening how the amount of catastrophes are increasing all over the place, you know, in all manifestations — storms, earthquakes, you know, volcanoes erupting. I mean, the amount of events is growing dramatically. I mean, it's really frightening. And we continue with the same.

AMY GOODMAN: So what gives you hope? In all of this that indicates, you know, our direct road map to catastrophe, what is the countervailing force?

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: I don't know. I don't know. It's only hope, you know, that — but even those hopes are sort of dramatic. I believe that if something is really going to change, there is still something much more dramatic to happen, unfortunately, and then there may come a reaction. But now, you know, now we have to change. Who knows? There's so much talk about 2012, you know, from the Maya calendar and all that, that 2012, the 21st of December of 2012, you know, colossal things are going to happen. I don't know what they all may be, but probably something really colossal happens, you know, and we begin a new era, a bit more enlightened, you know, than this one.

AMY GOODMAN: What have you learned that gives you hope in the poor communities that you've worked in and lived in?

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: Solidarity of people. You know, respect for the others. Mutual aid. No greed. I mean, that is a value that is absent in poverty. And you would be inclined to think that there should be more there than elsewhere, you know, that greed should be of people who have nothing. No, quite the contrary. The more you have, the more greedy you become, you know. And all this crisis is the product of greed. Greed is the dominant value today in the world. And as long as that persists, well, we are done.

AMY GOODMAN: And if you're teaching young economists, the principles you would teach them, what they'd be?

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: The principles, you know, of an economics which should be based in five postulates and one fundamental value principle.

One, the economy is to serve the people and not the people to serve the economy.

Two, development is about people and not about objects.

Three, growth is not the same as development, and development does not necessarily require growth.

Four, no economy is possible in the absence of ecosystem services.

Five, the economy is a subsystem of a larger finite system, the biosphere, hence permanent growth is impossible.

And the fundamental value to sustain a new economy should be that no economic interest, under no circumstance, can be above the reverence of life.

AMY GOODMAN: Explain that further.

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: Nothing can be more important than life. And I say life, not human beings, because, for me, the center is the miracle of life in all its manifestations. But if there is an economic interest, I mean, you forget about life, not only of other living beings, but even of human beings. If you go through that list, one after the other, what we have today is exactly the opposite.

AMY GOODMAN: Go back to three: growth and development. Explain that further.

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: Growth is a quantitative accumulation. Development is the liberation of creative possibilities. Every living system in nature grows up to a certain point and stops growing. You are not growing anymore, nor he nor me. But we continue developing ourselves. Otherwise we wouldn't be dialoguing here now. So development has no limits. Growth has limits. And that is a very big thing, you know, that economists and politicians don't understand. They are obsessed with the fetish of economic growth.

And I am working, several decades. Many studies have been done. I'm the author of a famous hypothesis, the threshold hypothesis, which says that in every society there is a period in which economic growth, conventionally understood or no, brings about an improvement of the quality of life. But only up to a point, the threshold point, beyond which, if there is more growth, quality of life begins to decline. And that is the situation in which we are now.

I mean, your country is the most dramatic example that you can find. I have gone as far as saying — and this is a chapter of a book of mine that is published next month in England, the title of which is Economics Unmasked. There is a chapter called "The United States, an Underdeveloping Nation," which is a new category. We have developed, underdeveloped and developing. Now you have underdeveloping. And your country is an example, in which the one percent of the Americans, you know, are doing better and better and better, and the 99 percent is going down, in all sorts of manifestations. People living in their cars now and sleeping in their cars, you know, parked in front of the house that used to be their house — thousands of people. Millions of people, you know, have lost everything. But the speculators that brought about the whole mess, oh, they are fantastically well off. No problem. No problem.

AMY GOODMAN: So how would you turn that around?

MANFRED MAX-NEEF: Well, I don't know how to turn it around. I mean, it will turn around itself, you know, in catastrophic manners. I mean, I don't understand how there isn't — millions of people can all of a sudden go out in the streets in the United States and begin destroying things, I don't know. That may perfectly happen. You know, the situation is absolutely dramatic. Absolutely dramatic. And it is supposed to be the most powerful country in the world, you know, and so on. And even in those conditions, they continue with those stupid wars, you know, and spend more, more, more millions and trillions. Thirteen trillion dollars for the speculators; not one cent for the people who lost their homes! I mean, what kind of logic is that?

AMY GOODMAN: Acclaimed Chilean economist and Right Livelihood laureate Manfred Max-Neef. I spoke to him in Bonn, Germany at the 30th anniversary of the Right Livelihood Awards.

Peruvian Stargate Found?

A Gateway to the Lands of the Gods

Aramu Maru, Peru

September 1996

A huge mysterious door-like structure has recently been discovered in the Hayu Marca mountain region of Southern Peru. Hayu Marca, 35 kilometres from the city of Puno has long been revered by local indians as the "City of the Gods", and has never been fully explored because of the rugged mountain terrain. Although no actual city has ever been discovered, many of the rock formations of the region resemble buildings and artificial structures. The door, or the "Puerta de Hayu Marca" (Gate of the gods/spirits) has been at some time in the distant past carved out of a natural rock face and in all measures exactly seven meters in height by seven meters in width with a smaller alcove in the center at the base, which measures in at just under two meters in height.

Jose Luis Delgado Mamani stumbled across the structure while trekking through the surrounding foothills trying to familiarize himself with the area as his job is as a guide for mountaineering tourists. "When I saw the structure for the first time, I almost passed out..." said Mamani in an interview with the local press. "I have dreamed of such a construction repeatedly over the years, but in the dream the path to the door was paved with pink marble, and with pink marble statues lining either side of the path. In the dream, I also saw that the smaller door was open and there was a brilliant blue light coming from what looked like a shimmering tunnel. I have commented to my family many times about these dreams, and so when I finally gazed upon the doorway, it was like a revelation from God... How do you make order of such a strange occurrence?"

ARCHAEOLOGICAL AUTHORITIES

After discovering the door earlier this year (1996), Mamani contacted archaeological authorities in Puno, La Paz and Lima, and within a short time the area was besieged with archaeologists and Inca historians. It turned out that the native indians of the region had a legend that spoke of "A gateway to the lands of the gods", and in that legend it was said that in times long past, great heroes had gone to join their gods and passed through the gate for a glorious new life of immortality, and on rare occasions those men returned for a short time with their gods to "inspect all the lands in the kingdom" through the gate. Another legend tells of the time when the Spanish Conquistadors arrived in Peru, and looted gold and precious stones from the Inca tribes - and one Incan priest of the temple of the seven rays named Aramu Maru fled from his temple with a sacred golden disk known as "The key of the gods of the seven rays", and hid in the mountains of Hayu Marca. He eventually came upon the doorway which was being watched by shaman priests.

He showed them the key of the gods and a ritual was performed with the conclusion of a magical occurrence initiated by the golden disk which opened the portal, and according to the legend blue light did emanate from a tunnel inside. The priest Aramu Maru handed the golden disk to the shaman and then passed through the portal "never to be seen again". Archaeologists have observed a small hand sized circular depression on the right hand side of the small entrance way, and have theorized that this is where a small disk could be placed and held by the rock.

VISIONS OF STARS

According to some individuals who have laid their hands on the small door, a feeling of energy flowing has been commented on, as well as strange experiences such as visions of stars, columns of fire and the sounds of unusual rhythmic music. Others have said that they have perceived tunnels on the interior of the structure, though nobody as yet has found a gap that would illustrate the door opening, on the contrary the professional opinion is that there is no actual door, for the frame and the entrance way and the back of the alcove are all carved from the same rock. It is interesting to note that the structure undeniably resembles the gate of the sun at Tiahuanaco and five other archaeological sites which link together by imaginary straight lines, a cross with the lines crossing each other exactly at the point where the plateau and lake of Titicaca is located.

News reports from the region over the last twenty years have indicated sizable UFO activity in all of these areas, especially at Lake Titicaca. Most of the reports describe glowing blue spheres and bright white disk shaped objects. The afore mentioned legend concludes with a prophecy that the door of the gods will one day open "many times bigger than it actually is..." and allow the gods to return in their "sun ships...". Sounds familiar to me!!

Various Bronze "Sun" Discs found in Peru

Aramu Maru fled from his temple with a sacred golden disk known as "The key of the gods of the seven rays", and hid in the mountains of Hayu Marca. Perhaps they were similar to the Peruvian bronze wheels described by professor Rafael Larco Hoyle in his work "Peru". The disks in the picture above resemble modern gears.

The Stargate of Aramu Muru

Far from civilization, and high within the Andes, an outcropping of ancient petrified sandstone was shaped by the hands of a forgotten civilization. The technology they possessed exceeds the current understand of quantum principles.

The outcropping was made ornate by including the features of a woman lying on her back as she gazes silently towards the sky.

Beneath her, a shallow entryway, an odd keyhole, was placed whose secrets have been known to the Aymara sha for thousands of years.

Now, as we approach 2012, and the end of an era, those secrets have been given. The mysterious portal has opened once again to those gifted enough, brave enough, to pass through. But who or what, waits on the other side?

Aramu Muru

Editors Note:

The following is a different and more detailed version of the legend and different spelling for the priest. This version is provided by a Peruvian tourist and history network.

Situated 35 kilometers from Puno and very close to Lake Titicaca, amidst green fields, we find what is considered one of the wonders of the region: The door of Aramu Muru, a stone construction seven meters wide and seven meters tall.

Locals say that it is the entrance to the God Meru's Temple of Illumination or "Hayu Marca", they tell strange stories about the door such as on certain afternoons it becomes semi-transparent.

There is also the belief that if you touch the inside of the door frame with both hands you experience strange phenomenon such as visions of fire, musical melodies and visions of tunnels that run under the mountain.

However, only very few people have actually experienced the aforementioned phenomenon.

Natives consider the place known as "Aramu Muru" as the door and man as the key, you can only pass through when you are in harmony with the sun.

Legend tells of an Inca priest called Aramu Muru who belonged to the Seven Rays Monastery – where cult worship of the sun took place – who set out on foot from Tiahuanaco to Cusco carrying a gold disc. Along the way he disappeared and was never seen again. This period in history coincides with the conquest and the Spanish troops had just taken Cusco. The priest is said to have taken refuge in the mountains to prevent the gold disc, created by the Gods, from falling into the hands of the Spanish. The ancient inhabitants of Lake Titicaca named the gigantic stone door after him. However over time the doors name and location were forgotten. Aramu Muru knew where the door was and also a secret method to gain access to its interior and to other dimensions. He disappeared behind the door with the intention of saving himself and the solar disc.

EXPANDING INTO A NEW REALITY

2012 OVERVIEW

2012 was a massive year of unprecedented transformation. We experienced a deep healing as we shed layer upon layer of expired and untrue elements until we finally emerged at the end of the year as shining Jewels.

There were several major events last year that helped us greatly. The first was the 'A Mu'a Ceremony in Rapa Nui (Easter Island) on April 21st. 'A Mu'a is a word in the Rapa Nui language that means TO MOVE FORWARD. And that is exactly what happened. Many stuck places were suddenly set free. The wheels, cogs and gears of our personal and planetary evolution could now turn unhindered, allowing the massive Wheel of Destiny to revolve at an increased pace. Once this happened, everything started moving towards their right positioning.

The second major event was the momentous Activation of the Eleventh Gate on November 22nd. This was the final 11:11 Activation and marked the culmination of our twenty-one year journey through the 11:11 Doorway. This was when the expanded realm of the Diamond of the Unseen became visible, moving us into a totally New Landscape on an infinitely vaster scale to explore and eventually to inhabit. I deeply feel that this was the key event of the year.

The Eleventh Gate Activation also birthed the Heart of AN energies on the planet. It placed the first Jewels into the Crown. These Jewels in the Crown are the foundation stones for our New World.

After the Eleventh Gate Activation, came a profound Sacred Pause. We had much to integrate and realign. Many of us required huge amounts of sleep with an extremely active dream state. We were plunged into a profound silence, making communication nearly impossible. Many of us felt like we were walking through a cloud of Nothingness which only began to lift in the New Year.

Although the date of 12/12/12 was widely heralded, it proved to be of little consequence. Then came the "end" of the Mayan Calendar on December 21st. While for many, this day did not outwardly have the heightened energies of the Eleventh Gate Activation, this event played an important part in closing the Door of the Old, so we can now fully open the Door of the New.

All of these special events of 2012 brought us to the entrance of this amazing year of 2013. The Year When Everything is Possible.

COMPLETING OUR OLD STORIES; BEGINNING OUR NEW STORIES

WHICH STORY ARE YOU WRITING?

Many of us are in the process of completing our old stories. This means that many expired behaviors, limited perceptions and long suppressed emotional residue are rising to the surface to be released. This will continue until we no longer carry them within us.

Our old stories must be completed before we can begin writing our new stories. Most of us are committed to finishing our old stories so we can finally begin living True Lives as True Ones and align with our new True Purpose. Fortunately, most of us don't have any more resistance to burning the bridges to our past by releasing our old stories. But there are still some of us who are holding onto them out of fear or a sense of well worn familiarity. And the time for that has simply run out....

Some of us have already completed our old stories and set them aside. We have been waiting for our new stories to begin. Since the Eleventh Gate Activation, we have been in a profound state of Sacred Pause, integrating and aligning with our greatly expanded New Landscape of the Diamond of the Unseen.

Whether we are currently living in our old story or our new one is a major factor that determines what we will experience this year. We will have a completely different set of experiences if we are still writing our old stories than if we have begun a completely new story. This is why it is a huge priority to complete our old stories as soon as possible.

2013 is full of Green Lights, juicy Melons and Golden Opportunities to realize our Wildest Dreams and even to manifest the elements that are Beyond our Wildest Dreams. These are the dreams that are too vast to see from our present perspective. They are the dreams that we have not dared to dream, simply because they are what we most want and most need.

Many of us have given up on our Wildest Dreams and accepted that they weren't going to come true in this lifetime. We became experts at treating each crumb that we were given as if it were a fancy cake, making our dreams smaller and more reachable. And yet, here we are on the brink of the fulfillment of our Wildest Dreams. They are going to come true this year. They are coming to us, far beyond what we can presently imagine. All we have to do is finish writing our old stories, set them aside and pick up our pen to write in a totally clean, fresh new book.

We need to dramatically up our game in 2013. This is the year to make everything we say, think, do and feel real and authentic. We can no longer compromise or hide any aspect of WHO WE REALLY ARE. We have to be True Ones in every moment. Once we do this, our new stories can be written and our Wildest Dreams will manifest with a surprising ease.

TWO REALITIES

Since the 11:11 Doorway first opened in 1992, we've been living in two simultaneous reality systems. There was the old world of duality and the new world of Oneness. For many years, we attempted to straddle these very different realities, sometimes jumping back and forth between them. But as the division between them became ever stronger, we had to choose which reality we would inhabit.

As the resonance of the Ultra Greater Reality of the Template of Oneness became ever stronger, the Template of Duality weakened and began its long collapse. To use a terrible, but accurate, analogy, it was like cutting the head off of a chicken. The chicken began doing its long death dance, spewing blood and violence all around it. This is what we've been experiencing for the past several years. During this time, duality has been fighting for its survival. It may look like things are getting worse and worse in the outer world, but the days of duality are numbered. It will not be able to survive much longer. We no longer feed it, as it is no longer our predominate reality.

In 2013, the world of duality will continue to implode in bursts of terrible ugliness. At the same time, the Ultra Greater Reality will continue to become stronger. Not only that, but an irrevocable division between them is taking place. The world of duality will not cease to exist, but the two realities will increasingly become invisible to each other.

During this time, there will be a clear division between the old and the New. There will be a division between people who are True and those who are still motivated by selfish separateness. The division between rich and poor will be more visible. But as many people lose their financial footing, it will change their view on life.

In which reality we choose to anchor ourselves this year will have far reaching effects -- more than ever before. We will now be unable to mix energies that don't belong together. Trying to do so will become so uncomfortable that we simply have to choose and live what feels True. We will be compelled through circumstances or by a self-made pressure within to make decisions for our lives that resonate with our True Heart's Knowingness.

The difference in resonance between these two realities will create two different worlds that, while living for a time on the same planet, will have a lessened effect on each other. The New World will be born right in the midst of the old world that is dying all around us.

EXPANDING INTO A NEW REALITY

During the Eleventh Gate Activation on November 22, 2012, the expanded realm of the Diamond of the Unseen was made visible. This is an unimaginably vast, multi-multi-dimensional world that has never before existed on the planet. Since then, we have been adjusting our beings to this greatly expanded realm. This requires a massive recalibration on every level. This is why this powerful Activation was followed by a period of profound Sacred Pause.

Since we have entered such a vastly expanded new reality, it often feels like we are vehicles with eight cylinder motors that are operating on two cylinders. In spite of this, it doesn't feel like our car is broken or that there is anything wrong. We don't need to repair anything. It's just vastly different than it was before.

The reason why we feel that we are operating on two cylinders instead of our usual eight cylinders is that we have moved into such a totally New Landscape. Our vehicles are still running on the full power of eight cylinders in our old Known Worlds. But our Known Worlds now appear much smaller than before. So the eight cylinders in the Known Worlds now appears as two cylinders in our New Landscape.

In the same manner, a Full Zoom Mode in the old Known Worlds doesn't feel like a Full Zoom, or even a regular Zoom, in the New Landscape. It often feels like we are barely moving, even though the Full Zoom is still in effect in our old Known Worlds.

There are also new components in the air we breathe. We are no longer solely breathing the duality-based Earth air. There is a new, highly refined essence of PURE TRUE LOVE in the air that we inhale. This gives us a renewed vitality. We are refreshed and filled with a new enthusiasm as PURE TRUE LOVE imbues our cells.

This massive shift of scale to a greatly expanded New Landscape requires a major adjustment from us. This adjustment is not so much in what we do, but in our perceptions as to what is happening or not happening. We may see things one way because that is what the world is telling us that is happening and then suddenly we are able to see things more clearly, as they really are. That's when we say, "Wait, that's not what is really happening and I don't have to base my actions on distorted perceptions."

As we explore our New Landscape, we are following our True Direction without any expectations. This New Landscape feels so pristine and pure. There are no known landmarks or guides to navigate here. It's full of potentials, each of them is a treasure that lies beyond everything we know. Stay open, listen and look carefully before taking actions. If we act automatically, or in a way we're used to, we will keep repeating the old patterns that reside in our physical bodies which are slowly being replaced. For the first month of the year, it's better to stay still and quiet and listen and look carefully with your whole being. Don't move until you hear a strong and clear call of your Heart's Knowingness. Otherwise, whatever we do will be from the old story. Unnecessary movements disturb the fine alignment with the New, making us go in aimless circles instead of the very clear and precise Doing What's Needed When It's Needed in the HERE and NOW.

As we continue to expand our beings into our deepened internal and external New Landscape, we will find that we gradually build up to using four cylinders and then eight, and then eleven and twenty-two! This is what will be happening all year long as we align ourselves with WHO WE HAVE NOW BECOME and WHERE WE ARE NOW. As we do, we will start feeling and experiencing the FULL ZOOM that is propelling us forward so we can manifest our Wildest Dreams and Live True Lives with our True People in our True Homes while fulfilling our True Purpose.

IS THE 11:11 REALLY OVER?

We have been traveling through the 11:11 Doorway for the past twenty-one years. The momentous, final 11:11

Activation of Eleventh Gate took place on November 22, 2012. The strange thing is that after the Eleventh Gate Activation, the 11:11 Doorway did not close. It is still wide open for all to pass through.

What are we to do now? There is no need to search for something new to do or to try to manufacture the "next big spiritual event". Everything that we need is already here. We have the tools for our True Lives in our hands. We are being supported in embodying our Love and Trueness as never before.

Although there will be no more 11:11 Activations, our real 11:11 experience is just beginning. Our journey through the 11:11 Doorway has successfully led us to our true destination -- the physical embodiment of AN upon planet Earth.

AN is the template that will be spread out into the world, recreating Trueness on all levels. It is the remembrance of the Oneness that we all came from. AN is the flowering of the eternal Never-Ending Story of WHO WE REALLY ARE. It is the Crown in which the Jewels of our being are placed. The Jewels in the Crown is the foundation of our New World.

It is our 11:11 Journey that has transformed us into the Jewels by our emergence as True Ones. It is our 11:11 Journey that brought forth the Crown of AN. By placing our Jewels in the Crown, we create the foundation of our New World. And now the real flowering of the 11:11 has begun....

We've been preparing a huge, delicious banquet for twenty-one years. Now it is finally ready to eat. Are we going to sit down and dig in with excitement or are we going to walk away from the table and look for something else to eat?

It's time to fully incorporate the 11:11 into our beings. It's time to live the 11:11 by being True Ones Living True Lives. To embody PURE TRUE LOVE in every moment. To be honest and real in everything we do. It's time to step into our wondrous New Reality.

And it's time for us to manifest the Heart of AN into the physical....

The physical location of the Heart of AN is the Sacred Valley of Peru where we will create a center of the pure, true essence of AN that all can visit. We will manifest the Heart of AN this year. To do this, we need the support of our One Being as never before. Once the Heart of AN is fully anchored, the AN energies will spread forth across the planet, strengthening the resonance of Trueness and birthing a New World.

THE 2013 OVERVIEW

We enter 2013 massively transformed beyond any previous boundaries. Many people experienced an infusion of LOVE on a scale never before experienced. Some experienced a profound paradigm shift from the duality-based illusion that "someone" or "something" would come to "save us" to the wide-eyed awakening that WE ARE THE ONES! This journey from "external expectations" to "internal knowing" took but a nano second, but flipped everything over.

Now, we are outwardly living the same lives as before, but everything has dramatically changed. We have been thrust into a vastly expanded New Landscape. Our vision has become so expanded, much of what used to be able to grab our attention in the past, is seen as minuscule now. 2013 is a year of profound change as we come into our own as True Ones, and lead the supra normal lives anchored in the Ultra Greater Reality that have always been intended for us.

2013 is the Chinese Year of the Snake, but it can be more accurately described as the Year of the Snake

Shedding its Skin. This is because anything which is not honest and authentic will be removed from us on every possible level. Often this will happen with surprising ease; it will simply dissolve away. We are unearthing an incredible amount of long-buried stuff that needs our attention. If we try to stuff it back into our hidden corners and pretend it's not there, health issues may arise. Any attachments that we have to duality will be constantly magnified until they are surrendered. If we are still caught in our old stories and continue to repeat old duality-based patterns, this year could be a bumpy ride until we learn to set them aside.

Everything has so profoundly changed since the events of the final months of 2012 that we need to rediscover who we are now and what we really want. Once we are clear on what we want, not limiting ourselves to old dreams, everything will fall into place. Be clear about your heart's desires, for they are like shining jewel lights dropped like bread crumbs to remember the way. Listen to your Heart's Knowingness. Again and again, we need to ask ourselves, "What do I really want?", "Who am I becoming?", "What am I creating in my life?" and "What gives me the greatest joy?".

We need to prepare for the Unexpected. Expect the Unexpected all year long. Anything can happen all across the full spectrum of experience. It could be brilliant, terrible, exquisitely beautiful, deeply sad, profoundly touching or beyond our Wildest Dreams. It's important that we don't limit the unfolding potentials with any of our beliefs or understandings; they're way beyond anything we can imagine. Be open without being attached to any interim steps, results and expectations, as nobody yet sees the whole picture. 2013 will contain many unexpected twists and turns making it absolutely necessary to be completely flexible at all times. Freshness is essential. We need to be ready to correct our course at any moment, as new information emerges. If we Expect the Unexpected, surfing the changes will be fun. This is true for even the most challenging tsunamis, for they enable us to demonstrate our new mastery.

We begin this year in a stripped down state, feeling that most of our artifice of our superficial personality is gone. We discover that we don't miss it and don't need it anymore. We are still integrating the profound changes that occurred in November and December of last year. Everything needs to be thoroughly recalibrated. Everything needs to be greatly expanded so it can move into the vast realm of the Diamond of the Unseen.

If we have completed our old stories, we will enter 2013 with a blank canvas before us. We have been presented with blank canvases before, but this time we can dare to bring out our boldest brush strokes, wildest colors and the deepest yearnings of our Wildest Dreams. We are no longer limited by our old perceptions of "what is possible" or of "what we thought we wanted".

We'll feel the deep quiet and stillness of the Sacred Pause until the end of January, and maybe even longer. During this time, we will be clearing out more layers of untruthfulness. Many new openings, insights and opportunities will come to us and we will be making preparations for the months to come. Even so, it's important that we don't try to rush things, but let them unfold in their right timing.

Around the beginning of February, the big waves of Quantum Surf will start coming in again. As long as we're true and clear and open – they won't knock us off balance. If we're still holding onto our old story – they're going to shake off all the ballast.

The funny thing is that our old stories are not only the stories that we've been writing for lifetimes. It's our yesterday too. What was true yesterday may no longer be true; if so, it will fall away, making space for even greater Truthfulness. It's important not to get attached to the tools we used and the steps we took to become Jewels that worked perfectly before and served us well, the things that brought us to where we are now. They might not belong to our New Story.

March is the month where the tsunamis start coming in. The Full Zoom manifests and many elements start moving into their right positions. April is the 'A Mu'a month in which everything accelerates even more. After that, it's Beyond our Wildest Dreams territory for the rest of the year for those who have completed their old stories.

In the new, expanded realm of the Diamond of the Unseen, a lot of things might still keep their usual form, but we'll see how their true essence will reveal itself and become visible so we might use them in completely new ways. That's what gives our lives more colors, more sparkles and a whole new dimension of possibilities. This has to do with the hidden treasures and Seeing the Unseen. Everything revealing its true essence is like a hidden treasure opening itself to us. We'll see and interact directly with the core essence of everything, which will give us new perceptions and the possibility of creating new, deeper, true ways of living.

Many beloved people left the planet last year and even more will leave this year. What's surprising is that some Second Wave people are now being pulled out. This is a huge wake-up call for us to walk a TRUE PATH at all times. We need to treat every day as if it were our first and our last. Honor the preciousness of your relationships. Tell the ones who are special to you that you love them. Express your gratitude. Remember that everything is sacred and every moment is the chance of a lifetime.

Some friends and family are also leaving our lives, not through death, but simply because there is no solid foundation of honesty and transparency in the relationship. We can no longer stay in dishonest relationships, for they now feel too uncomfortable. There needs to be honesty, openness and mutual support. When these relationships suddenly collapse, it can be surprisingly liberating to let them go.

Throughout this momentous year, there will be a dramatic turn toward Oneness. Duality is making its final call and creating much drama to get people's attention. But the True Ones know better. Mother Earth is cleansing, preparing, and so are we. The True Ones are needed, more than ever, to guide and assist those who are still awakening.

All year long, many missing pieces of the Cosmic Jigsaw Puzzle will click into position. Soon the Big Picture will become much clearer to everybody, not just to those who are already experts in connecting the dots. When enough of humanity can see the Big Picture, people will activate en masse and know what to do, because they will spontaneously know who they truly are.

We are being given all the experiences necessary for us to fully emerge as shining Jewels so we can live a True Life in a New Reality. 2013 will bring us lots of Quantum Leaps, breakthroughs and new discoveries. The Green Lights will finally turn on for those creative projects that have been waiting for us to become Jewels in the Crown. There is the sense that we can be and do everything, without knowing how, but knowing that we will.

Much of this year will be spent exploring our expanded New Landscape. To do this, we will have to greatly expand our beings. We will be like babies, discovering our toes and fingers, learning to walk and finding our voice in this unfamiliar, but wondrous new place. We are discovering new ways to interact with our self, new ways to interact with each other and new ways to interact with the Earth. Many of us will feel that we have an extra energy inside ourselves, ready for the New Year. There will be lots of natural phenomena appearing this year, such as Sunbows (Sundogs) and Moonbows in the skies, to confirm that we are in a totally New Landscape.

There will be a bounty of creative opportunities and activities throughout the year. These will help ease our way into this transformational return to non-duality living. Instant manifestation is a routine occurrence now and into the future. Our energy is overflowing and powerful beyond belief. We can transform anything. There will be more shattering of old world phenomena, because it no longer fits. Power will be expressed in gentler, deeper, truer ways -- steeped in True Heart Love and Oneness. Much will be washed away / blown off / burned out / shaken away, and through these strong shifts, we will hold the resonance of Trueness in the core of our beings for the benefit of All.

We are increasingly realizing that our new True Purpose is a collective purpose, not an individual one. In order to connect with our True Purpose, we must first come together with our True People and True Places. This will happen throughout the year. That's when we leap into ONE BEING IN ACTION and all things are possible.

2013 brings us an absolute NEW BEGINNING. We are ready -- more real, honest, empowered, transparent and loving than ever before. We are given all the support we need, on level after level, to move our lives onto the truest trajectory possible. The new MUA has fully landed. Our New True Lives have begun.

WELCOME TO 2013!
May we align with our True People, True Homes and True Purpose.
Living True Lives as True Ones.

2013, June 3 An Hour with an Angel with Maitreya

Suzanne Maresca: Welcome to another Hour With An Angel with Linda Dillon, channel for the Council of Love and author of the book The Great Awakening. Joining her this evening is Steve Beckow, founder of the website Golden Age of Gaia.com and author of Building Nova Earth: Towards A World That Works For Everyone. I'm Suzanne Maresca, sitting in for Graham Dewyea this evening.

I invite you to bring in Archangel Michael's blue flame of truth and peace as we welcome Maitreya back once again. Maitreya will be speaking on the return of the masters.

With that, I turn things over to you, Steve.

Steve Beckow: And thank you, Suzi. Our guest tonight is the Lord Maitreya. One website says of you that you've been expected for generations by all the major religions. "Christians know him as the Christ and expect his imminent return; Jews await him as the Messiah; Hindus look for the coming of Krishna; Buddhists expect him as Maitreya Buddha; and Muslims anticipate the Imam Mahdi or Messiah." Archangel Michael calls you the Buddha of love and the world teacher.

Before I ask my questions of you, would you like to make any opening comments, Lord Maitreya?

Maitreya: Greetings. I am Maitreya. But I do not have a nickname, (1) and I would prefer to be called by my full name, and I am honored, I am pleased that you have asked me to join you in this form of communion this night.

I may be welcomed and sought after by many religions, but I do not assign myself to any singular belief system. I embrace all traditions equally, as I embrace each of you, my brothers and sisters, equally.

I am honored to be known as the Buddha of love, or as Krishna, or as Imam, but I am equally honored to be known simply as brother. I am a bringer of truth, of wisdom and love. That is what I teach. That is what I am. That is what I do. And it is what I have done for many, many, many centuries.

You live on a glorious planet, Gaia — this wondrous Earth where all beings, all life forms are treasured and precious. And if I have one message and one teaching that I would wish to bring forward in this conversation, it would be about unity. It would be about unity of love. It would be about equality among all beings; and to teach the human species, to remind the human species, that all are equal; all are divine; all are an aspect of love.

And when that is truly known, there is no room for discord, for hatred or war, for anger or rage, for rape or pillage. This is that time in your evolution, which is why I return to the planet now.

It is a time of unification, of coming together, not only in the understanding, but in the knowing and the being of this connection among all, that you travel together, my sweet friends, as one.

It has never been otherwise. Have you created many falsehoods and illusions to make it appear as such? Yes. But it is not of truth, and it most certainly is not of wisdom.

Where you are, where you are emerging from is very parallel to the time of Atlantis, a time when there was such wisdom and love and healing and unity, not only among the humans, but with your star brothers and sisters from the far reaches of the universe.

And yet this scientific advancement, and this belief in the ascendancy of certain groups, the arrogance and the ego led you not just to the edge of destruction, which is what you have veered away from right now, but to destruction. And this cannot be forgotten.

No, we do not wish you to live in the pain and sorrow of that, but we want you to remember simply so that you know how far you have come, what you have and are avoiding, and how you are choosing to proceed.

I am called a world teacher, and this is a compliment. And let me explain how I view this role as teacher. It certainly is not as preacher; more in the role of one who takes your hand, your shoulder, and at times your head, and turns you gently towards the truth, towards the inner and the outer wisdom, whether it is written or visual or example of spoken, though all are equally valid.

One of the qualities which I carry and value, and that I ask you to carry with me, is compassion. For without compassion, there can be no true understanding. There can be no genuine sense of unity. Because in compassion there is an understanding of the significance, the glory, the wonder and the importance of each being's journey, and the value of that journey in the mosaic of the whole.

So I come to share this teaching, not according to dogma, ever, but according to love, according to universal law, for I also stand in service to Sanat Kumara.

Well, my beloved friend, where do you wish to start today? Where do you wish to start this conversation that we have been having for many millennia?

SB: Thank you, Maitreya. Well, I think, first of all, we have known not only that you would be coming, but we've also known that there would be a return of the masters. And can you tell us, what is the significance of the timing of your announcement of your presence? Is there more that you can tell us about what is happening generally?

M: The significance of the announcement.... Well, let me suggest to you that the announcement is not as important as the actual event. And in my humble estimation, I would also suggest to you that I am among many, as you know, who return to walk among you.

Now, there have been many suggestions that have been made over the last 20, 30 years that I am already truly in form, incarnate among you. And that is not completely correct, because I have emanated in and out.

So let me, before we talk about announcements and the return of the masters — of which I humbly accept this designation, but I also remind you that you are also in your mastery — when you have achieved what you have come to call ascended masters, then you have left the cycle of human existence and the laws of karma and the cycle of repetition which so often occurs, and you have reached a place of reunification, of what you would think of as spiritual enlightenment.

And while I say what you would think of it, I use that term because all of us on this side still sit, stand and kneel in awe of the expansiveness of the One.

So even though we are at a place of enlightenment and reunification, even within that, we know there is more, and it is magnificent. Now, in our mastery, we continue, as you well know, with Jesus Sananda, Sanat Kumara, St. Germaine, who is a beloved brother.

We have the capacity to assume missions and purpose which are in alignment with who we are in our divinity and essence and how we have expressed in and out of human form or elsewhere, over time, or what you think of as time.

But we also have the ability to come and be in form not simply as an aspect or an emanation — which I have done many times — but to be in what you would think of as human reality, form, but also to be present in that form with the full awareness of our being.

So that is part of our rules of engagement and how we re-manifest and re-enter and come with great excitement and delight to walk this beloved Earth yet again.

So we do so in glee and gladness, and excitement about what is happening right now, your time and our time. This is often a point of confusion, so let me be clear.

There is an alignment between our times, what you think of as that framework, right now. So we return, first and foremost, yes, to teach, to minister, but also to be with you. Ascension is a magnificent undertaking.

Now, in the original plan, we basically thought we would meet you halfway and walk with you very clearly in the 5th, 6th and 7th. That plan has not changed. But we are returning because our vibrations are more compatible because your vibratory bodies and systems have shifted and increased significantly enough that you can hear us, listen to us, receive what we have to say and share with open hearts and gladness.

So it is not simply that we are in attendance to witness, it is because you, as a collective, are coming to the place where you are ready to receive. And receive you will, in a wide variety of ways.

Now, you know that there are many of us. And just like yourselves, there are variations in our energy fields, our approaches, what we choose to speak of, what we offer, how we connect and inter-relate with various pockets of human population.

So we are returning so that you have this support, but also thereafter that we are simply reunited as family, as friends. Because there is and there will be a growing commonality not only of understanding, but of wisdom and of being.

So we do not come — let us be very clear about this — as saviors, nor for any religious sect. That is old thinking. Yes, I know there are many of you gasping at such a statement, as the general populace will gasp even more.

Now, why do I say this? Because, my beloveds, savior, in any language, in any dogma, suggests that you are in need and that you need rescue and saving. And that simply is not the case.

So do we come to share insight and wisdom and laughter, and to help you expand in your understanding of how you create, and can create, with us and by yourself, and with your star brothers and sisters, Nova Earth? Yes. But it is a cooperative venture. And now, you are at a point where you can understand that.

Now, when you were in the quagmire of the old 3rd dimension, did you need the promise, the hope, the encouragement of a savior? Yes, you did. But that is done, and you emerged from that dark dream. And increasingly you will see the populace is emerging.

We position ourselves, and we will exchange positions as well from time to time around the globe, so that there are equal penetrations and culturally acceptable sharing and penetrations.

That is also why so many of what you think of as the masters — the apostles, the disciples, the sacred ones are returning. And if we were to put it very directly, we are here as birthing coaches to help you do the final push.

Does that answer your question, my friend?

SB: Well, Lord Maitreya, it not only answers my question, but it answered a few other questions I had of you as well.

Let me ask you this question. Benjamin Creme said something that confused me about you. He said that you would come to, among other things, reverse global warming.

But we know that global warming is just a return of a global temperate climate. (2)

So maybe you could tell us what — I did hear you on the fact that you're not here to save us, but are there changes that you will be overseeing in the world?

M: There are changes, but let us be clear on that as well. The changes that we are most concerned about are changes within the human collective and the interaction of various, what you have thought of as nations, nation-states. But it is the human interaction.

Now, not everything that has ever been channeled regarding me is completely accurate. Now, I do not in any way criticize my dear heart friend, Benjamin, for he is stalwart and trustworthy. But let us talk about an issue, shall we say, like global warming.

At that time, and even now, there was great fear among the populations about global warming, climate change, basically the oceans rising and everything being covered once again as a water world.

What we have been addressing is not the climate change, but the fear. So when we say, or when it has been understood, that we will take care of global warming, it is not the return to more temperate situations, it is the understanding that we will take care of you.

So we do not come particularly to address the shifts that have and are — and will! — occur with Gaia, as she anchors in her completely new realm. Not only is she very competent, but understand as well, Gaia, this incredible, sentient, archangel being, has her own team of attendants.

Why we are returning is to walk among you, so that you would have any topic, because it all relates to the becoming and the resting and being comfortable in your beingness.

So if it is global warming, then we will address that. If it is pollution, we will address that. But what we will truly address and speak to you of are the underlying human motivations and reactions and fears, so that those paradigms are completely eradicated.

SB: Thank you. Well, let me present you with a very difficult issue, and one that keeps many, many people apart in our world, and particularly — well, people of different cultures and religions.

And that is that the Muslims accept you as the Imam Mahdi, Christians accept you as someone they've been expecting as well, but Christians and Muslims are apart right now.

And they are apart because there has been a point of view floated in the world that Muslims contain a lot of terrorists, that Muslims, some people say, are terrorists. And they blame them for such things as 9/11 and the London bombings, and other acts of what is called terrorism.

Can you address the gulf that exists between these two people, and if you feel yourself able, can you give your perspective on the events, these operations like 9/11 and the London bombings, if you feel you're able to go there?

M: I will not speak about the specifics of either 9/11 or the London bombings because what I wish to do is to speak to the heart of the matter. Now, before I do, I need to say — and seldom will I need to ever say anything — but I need you all to understand this.

No one is clean in all of this. And everyone is as pure as the moment they left the heart of One. The Christian Muslim friction, hatred, conflict, is one of the clearest examples of an area that needs healing, dramatic, profound, historic, and in some cases even prehistoric.

It is based in the development of separation, of isolation, of falsehood that is beyond imagination, even those who followed and departed on their excursion with Lucifer were not as delusional as this situation represents. This sense of false guilt, blame, shame, ego, self-righteousness and separation is beyond any form of belief, and certainly any form of love.

There are as many Christian terrorists... have you not witnessed the financial fiascoes of your financial systems?

SB: Yes, we have.

M: And the dropping of bombs and pollution. These are not religious based. But there is no group that can say "We have never engaged in this." So there is a sense of guilt and shame, and because it is so unbearable, what you do — and you all do it; and this is part of the shift that you are accomplishing right now — but what you do is, "I feel so guilty, I am so ashamed that I must take this and put the blame elsewhere so I can breathe." And that is exactly what you do.

Now, if there was such a thing as sin, this would be it. But all of this, all of this falsehood, it has to go.

Now, you have also developed very convenient theories. And this is true in the Muslim world, and it is true in the Christian world, in the Judaic world. So you develop elaborate dramas and explanations. "Well, it is the Illuminati." "It is the cabals." It is this one or that one, again, taking the sense of blame and shame and putting it outside of yourself. So everyone gets to play and have a piece of this wonderful, global drama.

And this is exactly what I have said to you when I had said you have come to the precipice the same way you did in Atlantis. "We are good, we are holy, we are chosen, and you are damned."

Can you imagine such a thing? Well, now you are getting to the point where you are saying, "No, Lord, I cannot imagine." And with that very acknowledgment comes the beginning of the healing. The fact that Christians point and say, “No, this is not the truth about our Muslim brothers and sisters,” and the fact that Muslims say, “No, the enemy, the infidel lies within me.”

And this is a growing understanding. And what you are doing collectively is acknowledging the enemy within and saying, “No, I do not wish to live like this, because it is not who I am, and I do not want to be at war within myself or externally in the world.” Or even off planet, for that matter.

So you are progressing to this point where you say this hatred only propagates greater hatred. It only begets further separation and pain and hurt and suffering. Now, you cannot do that while at the same time everybody praying for union, for abundance, for peace. It does not work. It never has, and it never will. That is why the old 3rd has need to be destroyed and eliminated.

There is a time for destruction, my friends, and this is that time. And it is destruction of the illusions that have barred you from one another. It is time to be reaching out, embracing yourself and embracing your neighbor, across the mountains, across the seas, across the planet, and above the planet.

Now, how does this begin? Let me re-emphasize, it begins by forgiving and admitting that the enemy is within, and the enemy is simply based on the fear that somehow you are guilty, you are wrong, you are insufficient, you are unworthy. And none of that is true. And in your infinite wisdom – not mine, not Jesus Sananda’s, not Sanat Kumara’s, but in your infinite wisdom — you know this.

And so it begins, and it begins because you have begun, because you are making these choices. It is not because we are walking the Earth with you. We can have this conversation because you are at a point to make this shift and awaken from this terrible dream.

SB: Thank you, Lord. Before I ask you the next question along these lines, I’d like to ask you a more logistical question, if you don’t mind. And that is that I know that when many listeners hear that you are here again, that there’ll be a flood of emails saying, I want to work with Maitreya, I want to work for Maitreya. How can I contact him? How can I be in touch with him?

What do you reply to these listeners and readers?

M: All you have to do is self-select. I am not recruiting, but I am listening. And in your heart and your mind, which I honor very deeply, the mind is a sacred temple as well, and it is becoming even more so.

So you self-select and indicate that you wish to work with me, because I will be present in many places around the world, on your globe, on Gaia, and I will call to you, I will beckon to you. So do not think that you need to send me an email. My facilities of telepathic communication are quite strong.

Now, what I want you to do, if you wish to be in my service with me, next to me, not behind me, but beside me, is heart commit and then listen. Because I will give you instruction, not only teaching, but I will guide your actions.

It is not simply a matter of coming to a temple or a sacred space and being in the energy. This is a time of action upon the planet, and we will meet when the timing is right. And it may be in London, it may be in Rome, it may be in Mumbai, it may be in South Africa, but we will meet.

SB: Okay, Lord. Thank you very much for that. Now, I’m going to return to the difficult line of questioning. And I did hear everything you said about the gulf that can exist between peoples. There’s also a gulf, though, and I’m hoping that there are some things you haven’t said that can apply to this matter.

There’s a gulf between men and women, and there are instances reported in the press all the time of some very tragic and violent and regrettable things that are done to women. And I know there are a lot of women who want it to end and think it’s high time that they should be in an equal position to men.

What would you tell men and women about this situation?

M: well, I would speak primarily to men in this situation. Now, you all know that you carry the energy of the divine masculine and the divine feminine. So what I am speaking of, while it is in this incarnation and this cultural situation — what you think of as a gender-based issue — let me be very clear: I am speaking to all of you.

But first, I would address the men. And what I would say to you... well, what I would say to you after I said, “How could you?” because I know how you can — and again it is this false belief, and it is entitlement and control, and it is brutality and it is fear; it is absolute terror of the power of woman — woman — and I am not speaking merely of the divine feminine; I am talking about the human woman — she is supremely powerful. She is the Mother; she is the goddess. She is the bearer of new life. She is the nurturer, the caretaker, the creator of the home, of the sacred hearth. Do men contribute? Yes. But in a very basic way the power of woman is terrifying to many men.

And So what do they do? They attempt to destroy her, through control. And there are many forms of mutilation, of murder, of rape. And unfortunately as a civilization, a global civilization, you have practiced all of these forms, and you have tried to suppress the wonder of woman, the gift. You have taken the gift and you have crushed it beneath your heels. You have thrown her on the funeral pyres. (3) You have mutilated her sexuality. (4) You have been sexually aggressive, economically aggressive, socially aggressive. You are nowhere near the equality you think you are. But that is changing as well.

Because, again, you are realizing, there is absolutely no joy, but even more pertinent, there is no relief. So in the infliction of pain, emotional, physical, social, economic, political, you find no relief. And it ignites that deeper sense of fear.

And the more you do it, the more the fear grows, because you see that you cannot destroy her. Because woman rises like the phoenix, from the ashes. And whether it is your mother, your sister, your wife, your partner, your neighbor, your president, your prime minister, you realize that your terror is not only not being faded, it is growing.

So you are at a point where you are so sick of being terrified that you are willing to relinquish this. And it is also because the divine feminine, the anchoring of the golden age of Gaia is the golden age of the divine feminine. It is the bringing to fruition the promises of the Divine Mother, in every way, shape and form.

And yes, woman is rising up, no longer victim, no longer subjugated, no longer tolerant of abuse. And not demanding equality from men because they acknowledge it is not men’s to grant them.

So this is the change that is in the air, and it is positive. Is there a ways to go? Yes. But let us revert back to where I began. My purpose as teacher is unification and compassion. And this is yet another area, where this — not that we hope it will occur – it will occur.

SB: Thank you, Lord Maitreya. Now, we have seven minutes left. And, so I’m going to ask you another logistical question first, and then I want to ask you a second substantive question. So the logistical question is you’ve said that we’ll be seeing you in London and Rome and South Africa and Mumbai. When will we begin to see you appearing on the world stage and talking to us?

M: It will be very shortly. Within what you think of in your North American terms over the summer months.

SB: Oh, that’s a tremendous thing to look forward to.

Now my substantive question. Children are often disenfranchised in our society. They’re not listened to. If you could speak for children, and if you could speak for today’s child, what would you want us adults to know, please?

M: What I would want you to know about the children that have incarnated — and let us look to... well, there have been many waves, as you know, but particularly the children under 10. My advice to you, my guidance to you, would be, look out.

Yes, my friend. Disenfranchised? Again, look to what I have been saying about woman, and how they do not look to man to give them permission to be. The children that are coming... many, most, starseed... are already aware of their multi-interdimensionality. They have not come as fogged by sleep as earlier generations.

So what you discover with the children of today, including many now who are in their teens and even twenties, and yes, I do not mean to insult, but, dear hearts, you are still children! And you are the children of my heart.

But they are aware of what needs to shift of their mission and purpose, of the unity between all things, all beings, all realms of existence. So what is going to happen with these children? They are already prepared for Nova Earth. So what you are going to see is that in many instances they are your teachers.

Now, have they come, and are they demanding? Extremely. Because what they demand of you is that you step up. They do not want you delaying any further. And they are ready to be 5th, 6th, 7th dimensional beings. They did not come to live in the 3rd dimension.

So pay attention to what they have to teach you. Now, does this mean that they do not need nourishing and guidance and love, so that the veil does not drop the way it dropped on you? Yes, it does. You are their stewards, their guardians. They are entrusted to you, bright angels.

So the children of all nations, of all religions, are saying to you, “Can we please get going?” Have you not noticed, while there is a strong sense of individuality, how there is more unity and cohesion in their groupings, in their acknowledgement of each other? In their readiness to embrace across colour and creed and socioeconomic distinctions?

They did not come with the enemy within.

SB: How should we extend the hand to them, Lord? Should we make them an integral part of our blogs and radio shows? How — how are we to be with them?

M: No. It is to learn how to be with them in their world, and how they wish to communicate and go forward. So yes, it is being inclusive, but it is also realizing that in the very process of what you think of as childhood there is also an exclusivity to that group, to that club. So it is to honor them and embrace them, but also to allow them the leeway to be.

SB: Thank you very much, Lord Maitreya. That was a wonderful first discussion with us, and we know we’ll hear so very much more from you in the future.

M: Go with my love. Farewell.

SB: Farewell.
