Hard News/Background

- This month is a challenge - recalls what Carl Boudreau said - the economics pants would be kicked off everyone in April: has to do with Neptune coming together with the wounded healer Chiron in the sign of Pisces - this brings up a lot of emotion as Pisces is an emotional sign. It expresses the desire to have humanitarian vision, which is looking a bit dim at the moment: Pisces says "I believe" which means it's mutable, it's water and it also rules the feet. We have chakras below our feet in the ground & to be grounded is to remember that and anchor our being with the sun in the centre of the earth, called TheTara. We can connect with the beings in the centre of the earth; their gravitational field is 800 miles inside the crust of the earth - their feet are anchored upside down to our feet. Their sun is The Tara; an entire civilization there and a network connecting the
- 100 inner Cities of Light inside the earth and access to those centres of light are opening up all over the earth now; the people are coming to the top of the earth more and more now.
 - They have not always been in the inner earth; they are there as the result of the history of the earth and the nuclear holocaust that began 60 million years ago and the first visits of the Annunaki here - there are bodies of wisdom we are barely touching the surface of
- As we are making this huge transition from an economic system founded in control, greed, pride, the 7 deadly sins as the aspects of secularism and materialism, we have reached a place where we are using a process that we think is a workable economic system we are completely destroying our natural resources and we are on the list.
- human beings are considered natural resources to the secret government on this planet, which is the remnants of the very dark priesthood from Atlantis.
 - Yet they too also came from the stars as we did. They divided and conquered in their consciousness with a thought form back in the Pleiades, in the first creation story; their idea was there could be a game played where they would not observe the laws of nature and nature's god: they would claim to be the gods and by any means necessary have control over the rest of us. That was their commitment, yet it was an agreement made by all of us before that. Before that, we were one beingness.
- From the book Voices of Our Ancestors, Dwyanni - makes it very clear that before that, we were all one and that the Twin Aspects of our being were one plasma ball of light at the beginning and the great fortunate fall is where the divide and conquer was an option!
 - Free will choice was the option; once we got permission to co-create the universe of Neadon: in that option we had free will choice and Mother [god is mother & it's not about gender, it's about source, about magnetic light, which travels 10 million times faster than the speed of light that we get our electricity from] in Her infinite wisdom - this is a descent into materialism; we are as low as we can go in terms of negative consciousness Remember - it's all LOVE - everything else is an illusion!
 - the rules of evolving back into a higher level of consciousness is going from Pisces [I Believe] to Aquarian [I KNOW] enlightenment, from "I believe" to "I know" is what we are doing right now. NESARA represents the enlightenment in the sense of of a spiritual economy
 - we have been in a material economy which has rules that were followed in a much more disciplined way by those who had much to gain, the Luciferian rebellious ones - who claimed control over the material kingdom, they claimed supremacy over that materialistic world and promised gains to those who would join them: as we lose our soul, we lose our freedom.
 - The hard news they are involved in now is about coming back into that unity consciousness
 - There have been many of us over the last 33 years - Oct 1, 1979 is when the rules of polarity began to end: those rules were set then and they have nothing to do with belief systems; they have to do with the fact that when we agreed to co-create the Universe of Nebadon with Mother, it was to be based in the rules of polarity. That was necessary

- We are ending that kind of concept and those kinds of rules and going to the idea of Unity
Consciousness - this is not about depriving people of their free will choice; it's about how the angels have always been in unity consciousness: they have always aligned with nature and nature's god and be in harmony with nature and nature's god; this does not mean polarity is bad - we agreed to descend into this matter universe and to create the polarity and the free will choice.
- Mother said with her consort - this is beyond gender and having to do with love being the primary focus and the qualities called virtues where the different expressions of love have different frequencies which are beneficial - the Law of 7, of Divine Alchemy & the principles thereof, and the Solfeggio scales; Dahani said she went up to 12, yet 10, 11, 12 are higher vibrations which are unspeakable, only grasped as "one hand clapping", an inner awareness, a higher over-standing of the vibrations
 - These things are all derived from love; the 8th and 9th tribes of which Dwyanni spoke were completely wiped out by the activities of the Dark Priesthood over time; so there were 7 and there are still only 7. The 8th and the 9th will get repopulated as we move into in the higher vibrations - there have been 7 [Law of the violet Flame]
- We are at the 6th dimension now, and as we grasp the intelligent mind of functioning with our DNA in the 6th dimension [where Aruhabbi placed his ascension test - he was the one who was 'crucified' and placed in the sepulchre; Jeshu, Magalene, children and others in the discipleship and apostleship moved into the Agarthan network and stayed there, and went to the City of Light at Rennes-Le-Chateau; recognition on the surface would have meant death. They never died.]
- We never died: the concept of fundamentalism [idea of sin and death] was brought in by the Dark Priesthood - the concentrated dark energy has been in the Roman Catholic church and particularly with the military organization headed up by the Black Pope.
- We asked for free will choice and // there are basic things that are required: why do we have to learn this stuff? Why do we have to live by this stuff? Why is the idea of death and war being dragged out? I don't see anything with my physical eyes!
- Someone called this morning overwhelmed by depression which is exactly what the dark ones want; the tenacity of holding on to the strings of power and controlling the media - behind the scenes, people have been being arrested since 1999 - we have been hearing that a galactic adept is the president [9th member of the Council of 9];
- today on Camp Loveway there was someone who knew about Obama going to Mars: he said you cannot give energy out of these higher frequencies to folks who have not pursued their spiritual path to the point of adeptship: these teachings have not quite entered the media yet
 - however, the media has changed radically since Keith Olberman came and brought in Rachel Maddow; Chris Hayes is a millennial; Rachel will be 40 on April 1st she's a millennial who came in early - this means they tick to a different clock - the higher vibrations coming in! The art of their loving and wanting to create new light is a choice, and that choice merges with the soul that choose to take that role out of the next physical incarnation.
- The Anterres midway station is where every soul goes to get taught the clear vision and to make a choice and clean up their personal karma and galactic, solar, inter-galactic karma - depends on experience and the application of that experience so progress is made. The progress in a linear sense has been so slow - still talking about taking years to get some things change; yet there are experiences happening that are
- People are digging in - right to marry who you want, for example - there is now a majority of people who want to see same sex marriages without prying into the bedroom: this has to do with getting rid of the idea of mortal sin, promulgated by the church.

- An equal and opposite effect to the majority of people seeming to come to consent about who you can go to bed with: the Aryans in the 80s, and the DA who got killed with his wife in their bedroom by the same Aryans.
- Does not matter what the issue is: we are going to the extreme imbalance of every issue: like 1% has all the wealth
- Now let's legalize ALL drugs: this is Nixon's drug enforcement stuff: when there were no laws at all, you could buy heroin in cough medicine for very little money, and less that 3% had issues with the drugs. Now we have gone to an extreme: search and frisk in the NY City - eg, a young person brought down with 1 bullet and asking not to be shot - and he gets 10 more bullets!
- The rules from the beginning were: there will be no one having access to Faction 3 - those in citizenry and the military are Faction 2. Because Faction 3 is Ashtar Command and the Ascended Masters and it would violate the rules of free will choice, anyone in a body -
- this country of the US represents the world - all the land of the west was in the west from the beginning then things started with the dark ones and the nuclear attacks which broke up the giant land mass
- this is not about Rama being better or not - he volunteered to enter with Athena as his mother and Ashtar as his father
- KOS role was to come in and take the seat of the big chair of Sananda Kumara so he can move on and take a higher role
 - Both came to the US because the NEW ATLANTIS is established here
- Rama got to be in Faction 3 because he was in Faction 3 from the very beginning: Rama has been going up and down consciously in the physical thousands and thousands of times - this is not ego, but because he has a role of being in the world, not of it, and to be in Faction 3 in the US
 - From the age of 13 when he met Ashtar in the physical for the first time, he did something that was not cool: his platinum cord, his silver cord, his gold cord were disintegrating; Ashtar hauled him on the New Jerusalem. At the time, Rama did not want to be here: 1967 was not an easy time to be on the planet, and Viet Nam was no picnic - politically, spiritually, physically - he gave thanks that he volunteered and he tried many times to get out of his commitment
- this is not a punishment: Rama is the only one who is in Faction 3 and, in the physical reality of the rules since Oct 1, 1987 IS THE ONLY ONE WHO DOES NOT HAVE A GAG ORDER. There are people in politics, the media, military, Hollywood - many have a direct connection with KOS but they HAVE GAG ORDERS - BUT NOT RAMA.
 - He is Ashtar's son and will take Ashtar's place so A can move on - this is not ego; he has to play by the rules - we all have to learn and teach only love. All of the people of the Ashtar command have no connection with anyone except those who have the same conditions.
- Those in polarity & those who are going into Unity Consciousness still have to keep both tracks going for a while
- when N is announced, there will still be NO COMMUNICATION BETWEEN THE VARIOUS FACTIONS - MR X, KOS, Larry, Curly, Mo and some others will be on the screen; they have an earth assignment and have shapeshifted into a human forms.
 - For example, Sherula was born in 1795 in the Inner Earth; she came up when she was 12 - got parents who got into form to play the role of her parents without their knowledge - many people in fundamental christandom and with limited ability to understand - already happening: they are being moved to other planetary bodies and their friends and congregations are moved together. Their

- memories have been erased: has to do with free will choice: has to do with the Prime Directive - Mother does not want them to lose their bodies, yet when their vibrations are so limited - it comes to a place where they can cause their bodies to die, it is merciful to move them to a slower pace with others of their same pace, and they will experience the speed at which we move -
- a week ago we moved into the vibration of 6th sun. Now every minute = 16 years!!
 - This may not be something we can see or touch but it is real! T & R have gone many weeks not eating, yet the vibration of what they DO eat is so supportive.
 - Rama was trained by Dwyhani - a female llama and the only one - she is equal to the Dalai Llama in what she represents in her role. Rama was sent to Santa Fe; Tara was sent to Santa Fe by someone called Dolores Heibel.
 - Santa Fe is called Galactic Centre, 27 degrees Sagittarius, the New Jerusalem - on this planet, this power spot represents the New Jerusalem
 - Why were they sent to Santa Fe? Rama had some trauma; his consort was sent to SF to heal this: one of the main reasons Mother has been coming through him is because his rage against the feminine was so great it required a mammoth power to keep him here. His mother wanted to kick him into the Grand Canyon at the age of 2! That trauma is huge and when it happens at such a young age, it is horrific.
 - He volunteered to take on the karma of taking on the divine feminine and for his own personal karma - to this day, there is still trauma - the rage and the unbelievable trauma of a 2 year old having that experience is still there and it is not just from this life time; he also chose to be a water snake - carries a venomous judgement and is vengeful - he took on a role that is so bad that it matches his choice to take on the vengefulness and the grudge = he remembers his mother Athena from during the Orion Wars & he tried to take her out then; when he met her in this life time in the physical, he tried to take her out again
 - This is more of a curse in a sense to have access to Faction 3: how come he is not dead? Because the way the Dark Side has characterized him is as "Crazy Lord Rama" - he has been hanging out with KOS since the 80s and used to go on a hard rock radio station and do acid - there is no greater or lesser roles for any of us.

Martin Luther King

- R: his mother went to go march with Tara and Dr King: this is all inter-related! As we heal it for one, we do it for all - he volunteered to do this in 1967 when he saw what his brother went over in Viet Nam
- KOS - the 7th incarnation of Sananda on the planet: don't think that each one does not have challenges!
 - the 6th incarnation Jeshua was born as Jehovah - he had a stinky pile of Laundry
 - Bartholomew, Matthew did not die: he live for 300 years to write this stuff - Matthew, Mark Luke and John thought J was dead - they did not die either; the depiction to this day of the killings that were going on lasted only a very short time, and the church made it look longer
 - Matthew and Jeshu were brothers and lived in Mount Carmel and went to Nag Hammadi - they left Carmel and got into Agartha Network and went to Egypt; Herod did not find them - talk of trauma - it was 2 and under - they have done readings for people who shape-shifted into various existences consciously - every one of us, as time collapses on itself, will realize that multi dimensionality. We read the instruction, we learn that there's is no such thing as a negative emotion unless we grab on it and accept it.

- They know folks who have made agreements and that there are 2 souls in one body - there are people living a whole life time with that - there is a body snatcher - only love works.

Camp Loveway: T. McKenna spoke of his experience: the journey of the white dog, the Hopi Dog - when you walk off with the dog, you can walk on air, you can fly. Just before he died, Terrance spoke of walking off the cliff with the dog and meeting Ashtar and he told T to go to a particular pyramid, but T didn't make it because he was given pancreatic cancer

T: this process of absorbing greater and greater knowledge - Cathy said it took her a while to get over .. ABSOLUTELY NOT! We choose TO NAVIGATE THESE ENERGIES - EVERY ONE OF US CHOOSE TO TAKE A LIMITING experience due to the belief systems of the time and go deeper and find the instructions for evolving into our greater abilities

R: speaks of a program "The Greatest American Hero" during the 80s - he had a special suit - the galactics gave this one the suit and he could levitate, teleport almost like Superman - this brings in the understanding of quantum, hyper-dimensional physics - brings out the understanding these temples of the living god are mutating: MUTANT AND PRUD OF IT! In the story, Ralph lost the instruction manual of how to use the suit & he had to figure out how to use it - moving beyond your belief system

- T McKenna - the dog turned into Ashtar and said follow me.

- WE ARE THE CHANGE, AND BECOMING THE CHANGE: WE ARE THE CHANGER AND THE CHANGED. This is still our work: about living the change & how the mantle of our auric space touches others.

Hard News -

- When the arrests are happening to millions and millions - it was 33 years ago that this process started of moving through these archonic energies: their voice and a look from their 3rd eye can destroy

R: the fact that we are creator gods equal to Mother/Father God and right now were are transforming and mutating into greater beings ascending in the physical: what we are experiencing right now - he constantly has to pull himself back from the experiences of what he has witnessed - what he has seen, not for other - he has no veil, and what he has seen in Viet Nam, Iraq, Syria - picking up pieces of people - a piece of kidney, arm, brain - and putting this into a beam, and a whole person emerges: "I thought I was dead!" And Rama says "No you're not!" How do you explain this to an interrogation officer?

- The creator gods are back

- Matthew was 8, Jeshu was 9 - they were playing and Jeshu got mad and hit Matthew with the beam in his hand - their mother told Jeshu to bring him back. She did not do it for him.

- Barack Obama is a member of Faction 3 and the only president we have every had who is aware of all that is happening.

R: we are breaking the molds right now - this is such a unique and magical time to be alive, because the rules have changed - there is a greater evolution happening in these bodies - this is about the X Men stepping in and it is real; comes into the movie John Carter, can teleport to Mars with a medallion!

- Dr Keshe is staring to teach this stuff: another brother went to see P Cota-Robles and he is not longer the same person as a result of that trip! He was called crazy beyond measure - he found the right energies - a free lecture for 5 hours. He is now going back to his beloved after this experience.

- Teran brought up what Pussy Riot did: a sea change across the planet - Teran changed the subject because it is about radical shift - they did this before Dec 21st - this was the sea change that went across the entire MWG - Russia is T's homeland, as is Transylvania - the people suppressed by the masculine of the Greek Orthodox - such a radical shift -
 - R does not like their music particularly but the point is the goddess was being violated - they showed the misqualified energy of what the masculine did to the feminine - this has been a sea change for the young people in Russia: gay bars are opening up in Russia! There are coffee shops - a place where people can come together, meet and heal - at the same time, KGB and Mr Putin's boys are listening, as they are listening now.
- there are countries all over the world where same sex marriage is achieved: the young people are organized - Max Keiser talking about the bit coin and it will overwhelm the other currency; not saying NESARA - it still matters that we actualize this, and do it through us - we are the ones we are waiting for - that we come from families that are still entrenched in the dark ages!
 - Reference to Rob Portman whose son said "I'm gay, Dad" and he had to deal with his friends in Congress!
- The sexy liberal show with Hal Sparks, John Fugelsein, Stephanie Miller - they work with the Trevor Foundation - things are shifting for people who think about leaving the planet; they have to think about being the divine spark

Hard News:

- arrests all over: Wells Fargo; JP Morgan; Barclays and others
 - Black Magic Mittens and other 13 families are shaking in their boots! They were told by St Germain to teach the people how to prosper & share the formula: they hoarded it and now we get to heal it
- T: North Carolina is quite the place: what they are doing is horrendous: it is lawful for students to vote in the state where they are studying, as per the Constitution
- NC says if you vote in our state, your parents will be taxed!
 - Ashville is like Santa Fe in terms of vibration - yet there are these other things going on
 - the lady in Argentina is a transgender person and she is Sanford's handler
 - Sanford went down there and got his orders: being funded by his Nazi overlords: infiltrate NC and keep the people within the Nazi agenda
- Mother has extended the time - she is more merciful than she is just: people are looking to see the heads rolling
- R: asked about Tuscon and tanks in the streets: whatever Jan Brewer is doing is not pretty, and it is because the dark ones have lost and they want to scare the >>> out of the planet.
- T: our work is now starting in earnest - a big test because we are in the drivers' seat - there were will be all kinds of tools, and Dr Keshe
- R: just saw something on Al Jazeera: in Bangladesh if you protest, you will be killed - ongoing there.
- T: yet overnight this will change
- R: still have to stand in our power and know that as Mother Father god, there is no death
- R: had on a child who had been on Oprah who was so traumatised by what he saw, he went to the New Salem Village

Audio: Thom Hartmann show with another host, as Thom is away: discussing the difference between liberals and conservatives by referring to Martin Luther King Jr excerpts:

- MLK Jr - said he was not going to segregate his moral concerns because those moral concerns

apply everywhere, not just to segregation

- "injustice anywhere is a threat to justice anywhere"

Host: the conservative Republicans in NC: their hearts are NOT in the right place

- Be proud to be a progressive, a liberal - keep trying as MLK said - do all you can to help stamp out injustice
 - about loving your enemies: "Love has a redemptive power within it" Just keep loving people no matter what they do - don't embarrass them; it will transform
 - conservatism is about having fixed views that don't change; hate is destructive and tears down - can hear this as you listen to the radio programs
- A whole series of clips are played, with comments from the host of the program as well as callers.

Audio: Up with Chris - a short clip

Audio: M H-P on the definition of "immigrants". the use and abuse of the definition; the wild misperceptions around the word, and the results: stereotypes; racial slurs; racial profiling;

2nd clip: Tennessee senator and state representative - have created a bill which reduces payments to children whose grades are slipping - what about a $1500 tax penalty to middle class parents whose children don't do well - no, it is aimed at single parents -

<http://video.msnbc.msn.com/melissa-harris-perry/51450735>

- Lawmakers in Tennessee are pushing a bill that would take money away from the state's poorest families if their children fail to make the grade in school.

The bill targets recipients of Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, or TANF. If students performs poorly—and if their parents or caretakers fail to meet one of several requirements—then TANF payments for that family will be reduced by up to 30%. One of the lawmakers behind the bill told us his aim is to help children use education to break the cycle of poverty.

Sounds nice in theory. But that's not what this law does in practice. In my letter this week, I'd like to let the sponsors of this bill know what it's really about.

Dear Tennessee state Sen. Stacey Campfield and state Rep. Vance Dennis,

It's me, Melissa.

You've said your bill isn't really placing a family burden on the shoulders of children, but instead is an incentive to hold parents accountable.

You've added amendments to the bill that would exempt parents who either attend parent teacher conferences, an 8-hour parenting class, arrange tutoring, or enroll their child in summer school. Certainly, every child deserves to have a parent who is an involved participant in his or her education.

But your bill is only concerned with struggling kids whose parents are poor. In fact, Sen. Campfield, you went so far as to tell us that parents who allow their kids to fail in school are guilty of child abuse. Strong words, senator.

And yet, I can't help but wonder. If your passion for parental involvement is as profound as your choice of words, why wouldn't you pursue legislation that would penalize all parents of children with a poor academic record?

Here I'll help—how about a $1,500 tax penalty for middle and upper income people who shirk their parental responsibilities? The fact is this bill is just the latest in a well-worn policy practice of subjecting the choices of poor parents—and in particular, poor single mothers—to scrutiny and shame.

As you well know, TANF eligibility already requires children to attend school, and parental participation in school conferences.

At the same time, those parents receiving cash assistance also must work or participate in work-related activities. All of this while stretching the $2,000 in maximum assets required to qualify for TANF.

So prodding poor parents to get even more involved is really just a callous disregard for the fact that parental involvement—while ideal—is a luxury that not all families can afford.

Poor parents are more likely than their wealthier counterparts to work multiple jobs, lack paid leave, and be unable to afford child care and transportation. And far from breaking the cycle of poverty, your legislation would only sink families even further below the line.

A single mother with two children receives \$185 dollars a month in TANF cash payments. That's roughly $46 dollars a week, less than $7 a day. Your 30% reduction would cut that payment to just under $130 a month.

Your legislation also ignores the very real educational impediments for students coming from impoverished households—like food and housing insecurity or financial and health care instability. And the truth is that poor people don't hold the monopoly on bad parenting. Nor is a poor child who struggles in school an indicator that he or she has a parent who simply doesn't care. For impoverished children, even the most exceptional of parents may not be enough to push them through the significant structural barriers imposed by a life in poverty. Bad parenting is not a barrier to success for the rich. Neither should it be an impediment for children of the poor.

And gentlemen—it's your job as elected officials to encourage their achievement with policy that supports instead of shames.

Sincerely,

Melissa

3rd clip: this week in voter suppression

North Carolina - Art Pope someone who inherited his daddy's dollar store: buys state elections - he is a

- a Tea Party billionaire and is involved in all aspects of NC society: part of stacking the education
- should be a quadrupling of state tax on groceries so more $ can be given to rich people;
- Art Pope is now inside the gov't and passing so much unpopular stuff: the legislators don't believe they can win - they have already gerry-mandered the voting districts; now going after the vulnerable who usually vote blue; paying for an ID is a poll-tax - they have to swear under a vague kind of statement that they have no money to buy an ID

- how can you conclude that the south is changing and bringing in the Jim Crow laws and trying to make out they are necessary

T: 70% voted Barack Obama in 2008 - look at what is happening!!!

4th clip: Young Doctors DC - 5 young men will start taking classes during the summer, returning to Howard University in DC for the summer; will take the program on the weekends

- The doctor who started this is her Foot Soldier of the Week

Astrology: Richard

- Chart looks similar to last week: still two main conjuncts hanging around:

- Saturn Uranus;
- Jupiter - Pluto which is all about transformation: Jupiter works with transformation - Jupiter is also square to Neptune

- have 2 concentrations of energy: in Pisces so the mutable signs are affected
- Moon moved into Pisces a little while ago - Mercury now back to where it started before it went retrograde; yet Mercury and Pisces don't get along - the position of detriment for Mercury; exalted[in best most favourable place]; dominant[strong]; detrimental; fall - 4 terms used; Moon,
- Saturn in Scorpio and Neptune in Pisces - a good solid trine - supporting all things Pisces: spiritual idealism, things having to do with feelings - the water energy;
 - Look at Libra: lots of us born with Neptune in Libra, smaller group
 - Leos and Sags - when they look at the fire sign have a much different influence
- Fire trine: those positions and planets getting a huge amount of energy: the sun in Mars are both supporting Mars - then Venus comes in with a feminine energy - relationships can be explosive / hot and steamy!

T: refers to Carl and what he said about this month: Uranus has a tendency to disrupt things

Ri: moon conjuncts Mercury and goes void of course - moon hits 1* of Aries on Monday

Tues: Moon conjuncts Uranus - these are the last few days until next new moon; we are on the last 3 days of last month's moon - can now prepare for this new moon which is the real beginning of this equinox - new moons have a 3 day effect, one day on either side of the actual day

- This particular new moon - as we go through Wed it will conjunct mars at noon, then Aries is the son of Divine Source - be precise about you want to create - this is the time to petition and get all your extra dimensional spirit helpers here and make clear what your goals from now until September

Wed: moon goes into Taurus on 11:22 Wed pm : the Aries inspiration gets grounded on and within the energy of Taurus - need an inspiration AND an anchor

Thurs: moon trine Pluto, opposite Neptune in the evening;

Fri: Pluto goes retrograde on Friday in addition to the current Saturn retrograde

Pluto going retrograde - its work is not done in Capricorn: retrogrades are about review

- Saturn retro in Scorpio which rules generalized manifestation in the time space continuum - in other words, a consolidation thing - new ideas are not easily manifested - can think, and talk and visualize - we have to take the contemplation and manifest it: the capricorn stuff is gov't stuff and mother earth and the whole issue of the emotional body [Scorpio] - the feeling/magnetic component that we add to the mental component to bring it forth: the talker and the listener; the sperm and the egg

T: Tax Day - moon void of course [15th]

Ri: on the 13th Mercury will be in Aries - the void of course moon is only for 2 hours on the 13th on the 15th Venus will be the first entry into Taurus - a positive place - Venus does her best work in this space - this month we should be receiving things we would like to see: spring gardens going in, abundance;

As a result of the genetic modification of the Human DNA, almost all of our foundation circuits are in a state of disconnection, creating a distorted sense of self that has led to fear, shame, guilt and disease.

The disruption of the bio-circuitry relating to our primal resonant relationships with our mothers and fathers affects our ability to engage unconditionally in relationships. However, it is no longer necessary or ultimately effective to engage in lengthy post-mortems of childhood, casting ourselves into the trauma-vortex of past tragedies and injustices, reinforcing identities anchored in disempowering scenarios. By reconnecting the vital circuits that relate to conception, gestation, birth and childhood, healing is integrated on the DNA level.

The Ceremony of Original Innocence takes us back to our first choice, prior to our first breath, reminding us of our true identity - creators rather than victims.

The key to this shift in perception is forgiveness, the bedrock of the shamanic journey. To embrace forgiveness is to embody the living mandala of love, upon which is based the fundamental Human ethic, acknowledging your "response-ability" within the interconnectedness of all creation.

Although it is possible to be born with the Water Circuits connected they are almost always disrupted by guilt, regret and anger. Reconnecting these circuits clears these negative emotions, liberating relationships from destructive patterns.

The reconnection of the Thymus Circuit activates the T-cells of the immune system. This has a powerful effect on health.

With the reconnection of the Air Circuits, the pineal-hypothalamus-pituitary complex is revitalised, as the pineal is now enabled to receive the full spectrum of the geometric language of light.

Mehran Tavakoli Keshe

In this letter I write in a simple style so that there are no misunderstandings and there is no need for anyone to interpret the meaning and purpose of releasing this information. This letter has the same meaning for all creatures of the Earth and in the universe, as it is simple enough not to be open to any misinterpretation and needs no headman to translate, elaborate or misuse the information for anyone else. Everyone will take from this letter according to their understanding of how to serve humanity and the universal community.

To achieve peace one has to find the essential causes of conflicts, then to go further one has to eradicate the roots of the problems so that these conflicts never occur again and everlasting peace in the mind, the home, the city, the nation, the planet and in the universe can be maintained.

In this letter as the founder of the Keshe Foundation, secondly as a human being and thirdly as a messenger of peace in these times, I see it as my personal responsibility to reveal the untold truth so that through it we find the main causes of most of the wars in past centuries on this planet. With understanding the causes and the roots of the problems, mankind as a family and collectively as a race moves into a new phase of peace and prosperity.

Let us call this day a new day and a new era for the race of man and make this entry under the title of a NEW DESTINY for mankind.

What does this mean today as on this day of 28 February 2013 the religious leader of one manner of worshipping the Creator known as the Catholic Church as a sect of Christianity and its head known as the Pope is resigning and with this act he is opening the path for the election of a new Pope.

Some men hope that the new Pope will bring a new hope of peace, not as the wish for one part of the human community but as a reality for all the people on this planet.

To start with a clean slate and work towards world peace and a world peace treaty, one has to put on the table all the present and past facts that have caused or instigated wars, and then sincerely do something about them so that no conflict can take root in the race of man ever again to lead to war, or to give anyone the opportunity to use these to start and incite wars of the future.

Otherwise the same misguided acts will repeat themselves and the same wars and conflicts will take hold in the future in different sections of society.

The aim of the New Era is the establishment of everlasting peace and abolition of the causes of war and of the production of tools of war to support these divisions and the claims to superiority of one race or school of thought or belief over another. As one eradicates the causes of war then one finds that there is no need to make the tools of war, and in peace time the energy and the intellect of man can be utilised to serve others and to add to his total knowledge in understanding himself, his environment, the creation and the Creator.

I would like to outline what has been wrong and what has to be corrected and what needs to be done so that the mistakes of the past will not repeat themselves and in the future there will never be among the race of man any ground to start a war on this planet or in the universe.

First of all let's be open and clean the house of the human family and understand the roots of number of past and current wars on this planet among different races, where all races of the man originate from the same mother.

One of the root causes of war on this planet for at least the past 1000 years has been the use of the name of God and the word Religion.

Wars have been and even today are incited and fought for domination of one sort of religion over another, and in the attempt by the leaders of these so-called religions of God to find out which religion has more followers, so that through greater numbers, one religion can collect more money, assets and power through their various offices under the name of synagogues, mosques, churches, temples and so forth.

In fact the best organised system among these with one central office has been Christianity, as Islam and Judaism have never achieved centralisation through their own fault of division and in-fighting.

Thus the name of God has been and is used to create division among men to gain more money and prestige for those who call themselves priests, imams, rabbis and so forth, to satisfy their insignificant self-wishes and desires under the pretence of the Holy name of God.

To have peace on earth there is a need to unify man's approach to this path of belief in the Holy name or any house for worship.

What does this mean? This means that from now on, one worships his own soul as he worships his so-called God or the Creator under different names and banners.

One's soul is itself connected to and is part of the soul of the Creator and the soul of other fellow beings on this planet and in the universe.

The soul of man is created through division of the same original source and through the accumulation and integration of the same fields which have been, are and shall be in motion in different strengths and positions in the universe.

From the beginning of time this process has led to the creation of different beings in different parts and times in the universe and neither the process nor time itself shall ever end.

This act of worship of one's own soul will bring about the result that man will not do harm to himself and through it he will not harm others.

Through this manner of living and thinking correctly about one's conduct, one avoids all problems for oneself and one's fellow creatures across this planet and the universe.

The commandment 'Thou shalt not steal' does not only mean physically stealing material things from another man's pocket, it also means robbing from a soul that which it needs to elevate itself to higher levels of perfection in all the realms of creation. Then when one steals from another, this act causes the loss for the soul of the victim too, thus the effect is two things, one physical and one for the soul of the victim.

However the soul is aware of the misconduct of its physical part and in turn the soul's interactions will punish the physical body, even the unseen crimes that are done in secret, as there is nothing hidden from the detached and perfect soul.

Then let us see how the name of the Creator has been used to harm so many people over the centuries in order for some few to attain and maintain privileged lives in the false name of God.

To maintain their position they get involved and they commit theft from other souls who are on the path of serving God, Allah, or any other name that man has chosen to call the original source of existence or the Creator. It is interesting that in different mother tongues the liquid of life man needs to exist has been called water, aqua, abe, etcetera, and these different sounds that man has chosen to name the same entity do not change the essential life-giving attributes of this substance.

Then why should the name of the Creator of water be different when in essence it gives life to the body and the soul of man?

In recent years, in my banishment, exile and imprisonment in different forms in different parts of the world and by different nations and leaders of countries and religions, I became aware of one point, which is that the leaders of the world, whether religious or political, are not afraid of my knowledge but are afraid of what my knowledge will do in their time in bring their misconduct into the open and make them ashamed of what they have done wrongly to others in the false name of religion and nations.

Let me explain why I titled this part of this letter, “New Pope, new hope”.

Why this title?

The answer to this is very simple, since this name and title of Pope is a reminder of how the name of the Creator has been used for centuries through the office of different religions, not only to gather wealth, but to protect the abusers in this house under the name of the Creator.

The house of God has become the sanctuary for those who have been harming their fellow men with their misconduct, however this house or others like it may be named and however their abuse of the name of the Creator might be named or described.

Today, 28 February 2013, one of these wrongdoers of man is resigning under the cover of being unable to perform his duty as the leader of one of the houses of worship; but what is the truth about this sudden unprecedented resignation of the Pope?

Let us open the book of current world affairs, not for the leaders of the world but for humanity, and then we will look at the wrongs of the past later on in this letter.

The current Pope who is resigning today has been associated with a number of wrongdoings, mainly through the same supposed men of God who he has been in league with to rob and steal from the souls of others with their misconduct, and this should not be so.

Let me explain. The current Pope had to resign due to several facts which have been hidden from the public: first his name is directly associated with a number of individual and collective pedophilia cases in the USA, Canada and Ireland.

These indictments for arrest and conviction are on clear evidence in cases of priests who have been arrested and imprisoned by the authorities in different parts of the world and accused by the followers of these false men of God of being involved in inhumane treatment and abuse of boys and girls who were under their protection for the development of their souls.

The other point which is not known to the public is that the Popes have used all the money and the wealth that has been collected in past centuries in the name of God under the protection of priests in the houses of God to wage open and hidden wars on other religions and creeds, through encouraging and financing and waging wars using different nations over which they have influence, in order to keep the financial dominance of one religion over others.

Taking as example the war in the Middle East between Jews and Muslims in the recent past, these continuous wars have been and are creating division between two religions that have lived peacefully for centuries alongside and among each other.

The Catholic Church has financed and incited wars so that during the fighting among two of its competitors, the house of worship of the Popes can show itself to the eye of the weak and common man as better than the other two and thus can gather more followers and consequently more income from those new followers.

These new followers will think that the house of the Pope is the best of the three and thus it can accumulate more wealth and power, through inciting conflict and financing these false wars using religion among the creatures of the Creator on this planet.

At the same time one can see how the same church has created a peaceful environment in the European Community, which the ex-president of France said was a Christian organisation.

Thus if the Vatican can bring peace to its followers in Europe, why does it not use the same effort to bring peace to the rest of humanity, if the name of God is to be used in the right way?

Why should the European community of Christians be the cause of war between Muslims and Christians and Jews in other continents, by the European nations being the biggest producer of war machines and tools of war?

This pattern of behaviour and conduct has been used by the same house as it has accumulated more followers and wealth in Africa and South America and central Asia, where wars between religions initiated in the so-called name of achieving peace and the name of God have been financed by religious money from Vatican, under the banner and use of the USA, UK and other nations of the same belief.

At the same time this superiority of world power through the Vatican and Christianity has been used in the context of nuclear technology in the recent past too, where, except for China and non-Christian India, the rest of the Christian nuclear powers nations have used their self-given rights of veto and false United Nations structure to stop any Islamic nation from attaining nuclear power, and they have made it to be the biggest crime if anyone except the Christian nations develops nuclear technology.

This is done in order to keep the exclusivity of nuclear power in the hands of the Vatican and its operating nations, and any attempt by any non-religious and non-Christian nation like Iran is declared to be a threat to world peace.

But in fact it is a threat to the power of the so-called the office of the Pope.

It is only threatening to equalise the balance of power if Iran and other nations achieve nuclear power technology.

Why do these Christian and nuclear club nations not use the same scientists and expertise to make the tools of peace and promote peaceful activity?

Why did a British Government figure travelling with a full team of several hundred military and arms experts recently make a special trip just to sell the tools of war to another nation in Middle East, only to the benefit the British workforce and no one else, while promoting itself as a peace-loving nation?

Why should a man ever touch these tools made by another man's effort that can end the life of another being, be it of man on Earth or other creatures of God in the universe?

Why has arms manufacturing become the fashionable exclusivity of mainly Christian nations, when it has been said clearly, "Thou shall not kill".

Christians make tools of war and encourage others to use them to kill others so that in turn they can create profit for their nations out of the loss of life of others.

This is another type of murder and against the rules of God.

Why do the new Pope and other religious leaders of the Earth not organise a religious peace conference and enforce peace as the one and the only religious obligation?

Interestingly enough, why have European nations taken the borders out of Europe in the past twenty years, so that there is no need for large armies and they are dismantling their armies, and meanwhile these nations encourage the sale of arms to others by promoting the protection of their borders?

In fact there should be no borders and the new technology we have released guarantees the abolition of borders.

National security has to be in the hands of a nation's police force and the name of the army has to be erased from man's vocabulary and language.

The word 'army' has to be buried in the grave of history along with the violent men of the past.

The word 'army' has to be deleted from the tools of peace, and arms manufacturing has to be abolished and be a punishable offence under every law in every land on Earth and beyond.

One of the facts not commonly known is that under the banner of a peaceful nation Switzerland was the biggest supplier of tools of war to the German army in the Second World War.

This so-called peaceful nation is the biggest arms manufacturer and supplier of the most horrendous war weapons that man has ever seen on this planet, and the red cross in its flag is the true colour of the blood this nation has adorned itself with from the deaths it has caused by supplying arms to kill others in that war.

The behaviour of this pretend peaceful nation brings shame to its name and embarrassment to the word 'peace'.

These acts of deception in manufacturing and creating tools of war and causing war among men of the same planet and in the universe have to come to an end.

This dishonest production of arms has to be stopped and replaced with peaceful activities, at once and not over a period of time.

In any case the new technology which we have released has made the present nuclear technology and the most advanced manmade technology of war obsolete, and if nations would like to see the power of this technology we are ready to display its power for total annihilation of all the arms that man has made over the centuries.

We will allow the nations that have the USB stick to show how amateur the current and the most advanced weapons technology and defence technology of the West have become, compared to the new spaceship program space defence technology developed for protecting man in space from its natural hazards.

This power has been shown several times in the past two years by governments that are peaceful by capturing the most advanced aircraft from sky like a falcon catching a fly in mid-flight.

With this new technology and by the use of one system alone, all borders, land and sea connections of any nation can be closed in order to keep out any shipping or air supply or land cargo of arms.

The economy of a country like the UK or USA can be brought to a full standstill of exporting or importing if one unit of the new technology is used to fly over the borders of these nations, as one can electronically disable all engines and communication modes of any ship, in the sea, aircraft in air and cars on land respectively.

Let's think and talk peace and act peacefully, and let the religious and political leaders of the world use their power and position to make arms manufacturing the most heinous crime that man can participate in, if they are true men and followers of the true God.

Killing is forbidden in all religions and from now on the man who manufactures the tools for killing another man under the banner of war, defence and retaliation has to be the most sinful man that ever existed.

Let us see who would like to be sent to the darkest points of the universe for thinking, designing, manufacturing and using weapons of war to kill another man.

In reality there should be no nuclear weapon technology in the hand of any nation or religion or its agencies under the banner of one nation or the human race.

How come that all the bad guys are Muslims and Jews while other followers of God in the name of Christian nations are the saviours, by selling arms to them to kill each other and staining their chosen tradition of worshipping the Creator.

Why should a nation pride itself on having the biggest financial income from the sale of arms, and be in competition to see who sells more arms to those who do not need them?

Once the tools of war are made they have to be used, and this leads to more death and suffering and more damage to the souls of others.

In fact the nations producing weapons have to incite more wars so that they can keep up their factories and employment.

So arms manufacturing needs wars to feed and keep it going, and this in turn brings more suffering to the one who uses them by killing someone's child or someone's father.

From now on the instigators of wars and producers of the tools of war bear part of the punishment for the killing and the same punishment in the eye of the Creator as the man who pulled the trigger to kill another man and disturb his soul.

From now on the instigators of wars and producers of the tools of war bear part of the punishment for the killing and the same punishment in the eye of the creator as the same as the man who pulled the trigger to kill another man and disturb his soul.

Thus the crime of the manufacturers carries the same punishment as the crime of the one who pulls the trigger.

Similarly the punishment for the man who pulls the trigger to kill a man or his child is the same for the whole nation of manufacturing the arms and the tool which the killing is done with, because the income from selling the weapons goes to benefit that nation and its citizens.

Shame on the man, the organisation and the nation that thinks, benefits, manufactures and pulls the trigger to kill another being.

Then let there be no more war, because one day the same intentions of killing others may cause an attack on the nation that produced the arms to start with.

Now that man has been warned of his wrongdoing in inciting conflict and manufacturing the tools of war, those children and beneficiaries who inherit the physical wealth created by these wrong actions shall also inherit the punishment of their fathers' wrongdoing.

If the men of greed wish to leave a good name for their bloodline, they should consider that the same glory and the same shame will be inherited by their offspring and their souls.

So let us see who would like to put his dearest into the same turmoil of never-lasting peace of their soul in all the realms of creation through their physical thoughts and actions during their time of physicality on this planet.

Man needs to live, think and conduct himself correctly from birth to the physical grave, and has to teach himself correct behaviour not only so that he himself does not fall for everlasting into the lowest levels of creation, but to make sure that the same shall not befall his fathers and his offspring.

Then there shall be no soul harmed or deprived by the wrongdoings of others for its natural progression to reach the highest levels to meet its Creator, and at the same time as no one stirs up conflict, no one needs to create tools of war to harm others.

From now on pride will come from being a true servant to all creation and not from being the biggest arms manufacturer in the world.

Similarly; those whose money is used to finance the shares of arms manufacturing companies and defence technology will sit on the same seat as the man who pulls the trigger to kill, since the shareholders benefit from the company's sales and dividends that they invested in for their income, whether through pension funds or as individuals.

Walking away from war has to become the habit of man, not for fear of punishment but out of pleasure in being able to elevate one's soul and others to higher levels by receiving the blessing of their soul.

Let this be a lesson for those who try to justify inciting war and making the tools of war.

Then again why does the Vatican not use its influence for bringing peace by being and inciting peace in accordance with the thoughts, the actions and work of the blessed Christ (the peace of God be on his soul)?

In the eyes of the eighty percent of the Earth's population who are not followers of Christ, Christians are mainly involved in arms manufacturing and promoting their sale, hence Christians under the banner of whichever sect are known as "the merchants of death".

This is exactly opposite to why the Christ (blessed be his name) gave and sacrificed his life. It is the responsibility of the new Pope to change the operation of the Christian community in being the merchants of death, if he is to fulfill the wish of his prophet the Christ (most holy be his name).

Thus the title of "New Pope, New hope".

I do not need to write about the abuse of the name of Mohammed (God's peace be on his soul) as this has been well recorded in the pages of history of the past centuries.

Even his name is used to incite more killing as if it is man's right to kill in his name.

Where he only brought about the destruction of statues so that man would worship only one creator, then the man of greed and power used this thought of destroying statues to kill other men.

Mohammed (peace be on his soul) has said that the punishment of thief is the amputation of his finger and hand, then what is the punishment for killing another man in the name of the same prophet?

Nowadays killing in his name has become rewarded by a plastic key to the gates of heaven, and this is the gate of which God?

The God that has promoted peace and unity, the God that has given the life of a son to bring peace to this animal nature of man who looks for different ways to prove and emphasize his personal ego in the name of himself, his nation and his religion, though in fact he serves no other man and GOD but himself.

Now it is Muslims who are always the wrongdoers, before it was the Jews and before that it was the Communists and so on.

So in fact the wars of the past centuries and the recent past have been because of religions wanting superiority in gathering more wealth through donations from people who thought that their contributions every day of the week and the year were to be used for the good of fellow men and for bringing peace to them.

But in fact their contribution has bought more weapons and financed more wars than any other source on this planet.

The fact is that the message of 'new Pope, new hope' is applicable not only to the followers of God in the name of Christianity, this should be the same behaviour with all religions and sects and their leaders on this planet.

In actual fact there is no money left in the vaults of the Vatican Bank, and again only through an act of the same Pope who has resigned under suspicious circumstances.

When the German Cardinal became Pope seven years ago, in one of his first acts he made himself the head of the Vatican Bank, and immediately transferred all the reserves of the second biggest bank in the world to the central bank of Germany, as the same central bank transfers to Germany were done by the so-called European Union treaty as a pre-condition to start off the Euro as a currency.

But this time the Vatican money was used to support the losses of the western Christian governments that have lost everything in recent years through the market and bank failures.

This was done to preserve the superiority of the so-called Christian European governments in the present financial troubles in Europe and the USA.

The initial reason for the transfer of the Vatican's wealth to the central bank of Germany in the first days of the new Pope coming into power was to avoid paying the large claims in the court cases in the United States and Ireland and around the world for the priests who have abused children.

So when the international court claims were served on the Vatican to pay these heavy penalties for the wrongdoing of its priests there were no physical funds left to pay them. Because of the deception the money was already gone out of the bank and it never came back, and now it is totally lost in supporting other wars and governments and its and their financial failures in the banking systems.

In fact the only assets left for the Vatican on paper are nothing more than a few lands that have not been already borrowed on to the hilt to run the affairs of broken systems.

But in reality the finance of the church is hidden under the banner of a bigger war to come.

Thus new and extensive wars are needed to create more followers and wealth for the new Pope to maintain his power.

By our consent, this war shall not be allowed to happen and if they start it then there will be an end to the love of God for this sector of men. As Mohammed (Holy be his name) banished the Jews for their crime against Christ (blessed be his soul), then there shall be a worse punishment for the Christians if they wage another war or incite war as they have done and as we explained above.

It took the Jews centuries to regain their freedom and this time there shall be none if the path of war is chosen by any nation and religion, be it Christian, Muslim, Jew, Communist, or any other way of worshipping oneself in materialist separation of school of thought.

Thus the Pope's resignation announced in February is a protection building procedure so that no one can be blamed.

This man has taken refuge in another house of God and according to him he will not see anyone and will not talk to anyone anymore, so supposedly he cannot be asked about the truth.

My call is simple: for a fair, equal and lasting peace among men of the planet. If an African president could be taken from the seat of presidency to the international court tribunal in the Netherlands for trial for crimes against humanity and using child soldiers for killing and raping and looting, the crime of a man in the robe of God is more heinous than that of this president.

Thus the man has to be investigated who has committed a crime when he was trusted by people leaving their children and fiancés in his hands and those of his priests, and he has to be punished in the same court and be judged by other followers of other ways of worship in the world and not be judged by his own followers in these courts.

The Hague should not become the court of the white skin for shaming the followers of other religions and races, it has to take action against all men of wrongdoing in every realm of power, be it political, military or religious.

Put the man on trial, like the African president and the central European leaders of the late nineties who were sent to the same international court, and if all evidence clears him then let him be set free.

Otherwise shackle this man to the walls of the prison until the last breath and erase his name from the list of the Popes after the true men of service like John Paul, the last real Pope seven years ago, who served man in the name of God.

The problem is that the atrocities committed in the name of religion have given strength to the abusers and followers of the religions too, and as they see the leaders of their so-called belief doing wrong and getting away with all wrongdoing, so they follow the same misconduct, thinking that they will never be caught.

This means that there are leaders and kings who have done wrong and have had their religion and religious apparatus to protect them.

These leaders and kings under cover of political or diplomatic protection have to be subjected to the same laws as everyone else.

This means that if they have the duty to protect their nationals and in this process they have abused their position, by killing, raping (boys or girls), killing children for their personal ego and sexual pleasures, as some have done and still are doing, these leaders and kings have to stand in the court of The Hague immediately so that they do not even get a chance to escape or commit false suicide.

These leaders and kings have to be put on trial in The Hague and treated like other men and if they are found to have committed these crimes, then they should be punished more harshly than normal people in the street.

If the father of a family kills or rapes his children for whom he is responsible, nowadays and in the past such a father has been beheaded or imprisoned. So it should be no different with the father of a church, mosque or synagogue, a president or king or queen who abuses their position to harm the body or the soul of a child or another fellow creature.

Let me explain a few of these cases. One of the reasons why the Keshe Foundation has been under such pressure in Belgium has not been so much from the political sector, but from those who use the political apparatus to enrich themselves and fill their pockets. But these people have had the protection of a man who is the most criminal man on earth.

There are more than fifty cases of child abuse and killing of children in international courts in his personal name, but he is protected by the Vatican, and at the same time shunned by other royal families of Europe for his conduct.

He has not been seen at any royal functions in Europe for years and the people who have protected him are using his weakness to fill their pockets with the wealth of the nation.

I do not mention his name as writing it would bring shame to my pen of truth, but if you want to know him and his cronies, please read the Belgium press between 15-18 January 2012 and full pictures and full four pages of it.

He has been to public functions only twice in the whole of 2011 as the other members of the European royal families and political leaders of the West are aware of his conduct of rape and killing and keep themselves and their children away from his presence.

In fact what I have written earlier is not far from reality for the Jewish tribe too, who should have learned from their suffering of the centuries and specially the last century. In being given a land to call home, instead of making a home with friends in Palestine, they chose the name of God to create more wars and killing among their neighboring countries.

Our hope was that they would have learned what it means to be banished from home and have your life savings confiscated, as was done to them in the Second World War.

We thought that this would have shown them to be correct and to not do what you do not like to be done to you.

But on the contrary we have seen nothing but the worst done by this tribe to others and to neighboring countries as was done to them in the last centuries.

Thus again those who use the name of God do so to cause more suffering for their own benefit, as has been said.

We have seen these too openly in the news of past years and it is too shameful to repeat the atrocity using the holy name of Mohammed and his teachings, just as has been done by followers of Moses and Christ. The same can be said about the followers of Mohammed (blessed be his name), those who have used his name and teachings for their own financial gain, in killing and looting other believers' property and lives under the Holy name of Allah.

We have seen these too openly in the news of the past years and too ashamed to repeat the atrocity using the holly name of Mohammed and his teachings, the same as has been done by followers of Moses and Christ.

One faith is not lesser than the other in inflicting suffering on their own followers and others.

Abuse by man of his fellow men has been the same over the centuries under different names and banners, and all have brought suffering to the physical body of man, but not to his soul.

The soul of man is born pure and everlasting; it needs no ties and no affiliation to the Creator as it is part of the Creator and the created, the link between the tangible and extra-dimensional; it exists in eternal tranquility, abundance, enlightenment and peace.

Finding everlasting peace is only attainable for man in a single way and manner, and that is by the name of the Creator becoming the focus of unity of the race and not of the division of souls.

The opportunity for peace as it is in hand now has not arisen by chance, it marks the moment when the intelligence of the majority of this planet's inhabitants has reached the level where they can not only support themselves but can assist, aid and give time to teaching their fellow men to reach a new level of collective comprehension of the totality of the world of existence, and not be limited to the life of a hermit race of man on this beautiful island of Earth in the ocean of the joyful life of the universe.

Service to mankind and others comes from and with the comfort of thoughts and peace for the body and the soul, and now that we have opened the gates of universal knowledge to man, it is time for man to take the leap of trust in his soul, the Creator and himself, and to release himself from the shackles of materialistic life, which is not worth it and does not last.

The call to the sons of Adam is simple: gather in unison and take the flight of reunion in the realms of creation, as this time is destined, not by your choice but by divine grace, to release you from the pains of self-inflicted earthly bondage.

The ones who call yourselves rulers and kings and religious peers, you have lost your seats unless you have taken the seat to serve the good of man, as has been promised.

The time has come when you the wrongdoers and misusers of the trust of man shall face your destiny and there shall be no mercy, whatever you have thought of your actions.

You know within yourselves and in time your own souls shall bring you to the level where you deserve to exist in the realm of creation.

Thus from now on there shall not be punishment by man or God, but self-regulation of one's greed and desires, which will allow service and creation of peace for all creations of God in all realms of creation in all dimensions of the universe.

The time of fire and hell is over, but the time of fear of one's self not reaching the ultimate unity of souls and the Creator is the new Earth order, and in fact is the universal law of existence.

Blessed are those who understand the hand of knowledge and the oceans of abundance of the food of the soul, and are not afraid of the unknown; as the unknown is part of one's own fear of being just and fair to himself and others in the realms of physicality or of intangibility.

My call is simple to the men of power and to the destitute alike: assist each other so that in unified physicality you reach the unification of your souls, and thus as one flower you can ascend to new levels of understanding the truth about yourself, your unified soul and the Creator of the universe and universal cosmos.

Man has spent enough time fighting for water, for pleasure, for blocks of dust of the Earth and for position, status and wealth, which are nothing but the dust of this smallest of all planets and speck of dust of the universe called home.

Unify in serving each other and through this you shall find the key to the mysteries of creation and open the door that has kept you away from reunion with others of the same in the realms of the soul and the intangible. My call from my physical form and the new paradise of freedom is simple: to free you from the bondage of physicality and you shall find peace in serving the souls of others.

My call to the new Pope, Islamic religious leaders, Jewish rabbis and other leaders of faith, tradition and world leaders is simple: please sign your faith and your followers and your nations, not on paper, but in action and deeds for everlasting world peace and the world peace treaty, and in turn we shall open the door of abundance, peace and tranquility to your followers as we shall do and have done to other men and creatures of the universe.

This same call goes to the other leaders of religions and beliefs and paths of enlightenment on Earth: put aside your hierarchy of golden palaces and temples which in the name of the Creator serves the creator of the shadows of nothing.

Ask your flocks to think all the same way and in the same manner, to serve and not to look for returns and payment, as the service will bring the souls to assist the physicality to find peace and through it to free man from the physical shackles of needs to satisfy his self-love, self-satisfaction and self-gratification.

I am servant to all in all dimensions of creation and not only to man, and in truth the true believers of service in all realms of creation shall understand the position and height of closeness I have offered this tribe of man to reach, if he decides to unify in serving his fellow men and others in the universe.

Let us take an example of a land and the maturity of its people. Iran used to be an empire and through that it learned that war is not the solution for its subjects. Thus the Iranians have stayed away from the war machine for over three hundred years, but they have defended their fellow countrymen with collective unity even though they belong to many tribes and cultures.

Now it is time to take the example of Iran and Iranians and bring the same to the human race.

The other causes of conflicts in the past and present time:

The other main cause of the wars on this planet has been pride in one's colour of skin, tribe and race. The false thinking that one race is better than the other just because of the colour of their skin has been used to enforce their so-called superiority, which has caused long term resentment and conflicts in the race of man.

In reality all men have come from one mother and one seed, and all have dispersed to secure their existence in the environment of the Earth according to where they live.

Being black and moving from the warmth of Africa has made man's skin change colour to white as he has moved away from the equator.

This change of colour has not made any difference to his internal organs and way of operating his physicality.

As with the earlier example of water and religion, why should the colour of skin or the language be the cause of prejudice and hate and wars and conflict?

The whole of the human race is from one source and in future we shall show the process of its creation from the essence and origin. We as a race are from one seed and one mother, so what is the point of this racism unless one is ignorant of one's own creation and not proud to be a human?

People in the West and around the world go and buy different flowers to adorn their homes with bouquets of different colours, shapes and scents of these beauties of the Earth, so how come they do not see the beauty in the variation and culture of their own race?

Shame, shame and shame to those most feeble in mind who manifest this prejudice of race.

Let these prejudices go as soon you will cling to the smallest signs of man in the vast ocean of creeds and races of the universe with their most beautiful source and shapes and colours. Be proud to be from the race of man, and be known not for separation and division, but as the ones who know how to love and adore each other and all of the universe's creation.

A further point to clarify:

It has been raised in private and in public and on the forum of the Foundation if I am the prophet or a promised one and if my peace treaty document about the status of scientists makes me a prophet.

My answer to these questions, which have been raised among my family and by close friends for years and now public, is very simple.

The answer clearly and irrevocably is: Yes. I am a messenger and a messenger of science and through its power a messenger of peace.

In the passage of time the prophets of the past appeared at a time when the human race needed to attain a new understanding of what was to come.

Their Holinesses Mohammed, Christ, Moses and the rest all appointed the time of the return of the promised one as the time of peace and milk and honey.

In fact the time of the prophets of Earth had come to its end long before the time when I declared my position, as the prophets they promised have been prophets for the race of man and his time on Earth which was fulfilled long before this time in the last century.

My job and mission is guiding and teaching man so that he can finally join the rest of the creations of the Creator in the universe.

Our jobs as prophet of the man and messengers of universe are clearly separate and have different criteria and objectives. The prophets of man never spoke of the reunion of man with the universal community as this was not their appointed duty. Even though they were aware of the existence of both dimensions, man at their time was not ready for such a transformation and knowledge.

Now that man is ready, it is our clear job and duty as the universal messengers with full knowledge of the working of the universe and its society to guide man through this narrow channel, full of opportunities for things to go wrong: one being in opening of the universe to man and the other in guiding the man with the interaction of man with the universal community.

It is our job as universal messengers to prepare man for the unification in an orderly and correct manner even though not all men will understand this initial stage.

For this reason we have started to correct the mistakes of science in the books released initially, and now we are ready to take you through to the universal community.

But the universe is a peaceful place and there is no room for aggression and war.

So the nations of Earth have to find peace among themselves and then enter the universal community as mature people.

This is the responsibility that I have accepted in my soul. My physical body has no importance to me, as my wish and thoughts shall be carried through. Peace on earth shall become a reality in a short time, and if need be we have the knowledge and the power to enforce it if the world leaders and religions would like to see the power of our will.

Those who would like to see to believe, have to stand the pain of its power too.

The prophet of man is for the guidance of earthly beings and earthly knowledge, but as the duty of a universal prophet my job is the unification of all the races in the universe.

As universal prophets we are more informed about the total structure of the working of the universe and universal coexistence, and as guardians it is our job to see that all creatures of the Creator are served and reach the same level of understanding of their creation and science, so that one race cannot abuse another due to its lack of knowledge.

Thus as I have started the true basic teaching of the correct science, in due course and already I have started teaching of the soul and of the correct conduct of man in the universal community as we prepare man for this imminent event when he takes wing into space beyond Earth and in the universe with the rest of the universal community.

Some of the men who have been open to this message have already understood and started to behave correctly so that in the future their conduct in the universe will be appropriate.

The promised Day of Judgment is a matter of one's daily behavior and the consequence of the balance of the souls who are affected by the conduct of the physicality.

In the earthly religions of the past, the day of judgment was seen to be the ultimate time and in truth the time of departure and separation of the soul from its body or the time of physical death, where in reality the only point left for the soul at the time of death is to find its position according to the physical behaviour of its counter-body in the time of its physical life in the realms of other entities in the universe.

So the man who has conducted himself correctly and received more of the blessing or parts of souls of others will have a higher position and stronger fields that enable his soul to interact with the higher level and more effective souls that serve in the rest of the universal community.

In the act of giving one's blessing, this is the act of giving a part of one's own existence, as blessing comes from thoughts and thoughts are energy based.

Thus there shall be no hell and no heaven, but a clear station where one's soul will be positioned and operate in the universal order.

That is why we say pray for our parents up on their passing to guide their souls to higher elevation than when they were here on earth, as the existence of the soul has no time and dimension and their soul still can receive part of our soul through our prayers.

This is like the birth of a child from a mother, where the child born to a mother in the slums will live with the same and the child born in a palace will live in a similar community with nobles in physical life.

To go from one society to another is still possible in the realms of the soul, as one can attain enough through receiving blessing from others from serving humanity, so that at the time of passing, the soul of the man in a slum can and will attain a higher position than the sum of the souls of all princes and kings in the sinful palaces of the kingdoms.

Thus my mission is clear, and that is not to create division among men as they have done enough of that by themselves, but to make ready and create the conditions where man can soon rejoin the universal community for the final time in an orderly and correct manner with correct conduct and behaviour and knowledge.

Blessed are those souls who understand, comprehend and become part of the peaceful universal community, for the creation of greater peace in the universe and not a lesser peace only on this planet.

Has ever been and shall ever be.

2013, Ap 4 Bradley Manning & the Deepwater Horizon

By Greg Palast

Bradley Manning tried to save the eleven men who died, burnt alive, on the Deepwater Horizon. But Barack Obama and the New York Times made sure that wouldn't happen.

(original story posted here. Video here)

Three years ago this month, on the 20th of April, 2010, the BP Deepwater Horizon drilling rig blew itself to kingdom come.

Soon thereafter, a message came in to our office's chief of investigations, Ms Badpenny, from a person I dare not name, who was floating somewhere in the Caspian Sea along the coast of Baku, Central Asia.

The source was in mortal fear he'd be identified -- and with good reason. Once we agreed on a safe method of communication, he revealed this: 17 months before BP's Deepwater Horizon blew out and exploded in the Gulf of Mexico, another BP rig suffered an identical blow-out in the Caspian Sea.

Crucially, both the Gulf and Caspian Sea blow-outs had the same identical cause: the failure of the cement "plug".

To prevent blow-outs, drilled wells must be capped with cement. BP insisted on lacing its cement with nitrogen gas -- the same stuff used in laughing gas -- because it speeds up drying.

Time is money, and mixing some nitrogen gas into the cement saves a lot of money.

However, because BP's penny-pinching method is so damn dangerous, they are nearly alone in using it in deep, high-pressure offshore wells.

The reason: nitrogen gas can create gaps in the cement, allow methane gas to go up the borehole, fill the drilling platform with explosive gas -- and boom, you're dead.

So, when its Caspian Sea rig blew out in 2008, rather than change its ways, BP simply covered it up.

Our investigators discovered that the company hid the information from its own shareholders, from British regulators and from the US Securities Exchange Commission. The Vice-President of BP USA, David Rainey, withheld the information from the US Senate in a testimony he gave six months before the Gulf deaths. (Rainey was later charged with obstruction of justice on a spill-related matter.)

Britain's Channel 4 agreed to send me to the benighted nation of Azerbaijan, whose waters the earlier BP blow-out occurred in, to locate witnesses who would be willing to talk to me without getting "disappeared". (They didn't talk, but they still disappeared.)

And I was arrested. Some rat had tipped off the Security Ministry (the official name of the Department of Torture here in this Islamic Republic of BP). I knew I'd get out quick, because throwing a reporter of Her Majesty's Empire into a dungeon would embarrass both BP and the Azeri oil-o-crats.

The gendarmes demanded our film, but I wasn't overly concerned: Before I left London, Badpenny handed me one of those Austin Powers camera-in-pens, on which I'd loaded all I needed. But I did fear for my witnesses left behind in Azerbaijan -- and for my source in a tiger cage in the USA: Pvt Bradley Manning.

Manning could have saved their lives

Only after I dove into deep water in Baku did I discover, trolling through the so-called "WikiLeaks" documents, secret State Department cables released by Manning. The information was stunning: the US State Department knew about the BP blow-out in the Caspian and joined in the cover-up.

Apparently BP refused to tell its own partners, Chevron and Exxon, why the lucrative Caspian oil flow had stopped. Chevron bitched to the office of the US Secretary of State, Condoleezza Rice. (George Bush's cabinet member should not be confused with the 129,000-tonne oil tanker "Condoleezza Rice", which Chevron named after their former board member.)

The US Ambassador in Baku got Chevron the answer: a blow-out of the nitrogen-laced cement cap on a giant Caspian Sea platform. The information was marked "SECRET". Apparently loose lips about sinking ships would help neither Chevron nor the Azeri President Ilham Aliyev, the beneficiary of millions of dollars in payments of oil company baksheesh.

So what about Bradley Manning? Manning has been charged with "aiding the enemy" -- a crime punishable by death.

But Manning's sole and only purpose was to get out the truth. It wasn't Manning who wrote the cover-up memos, he merely wanted to get them to the victims: us.

And since when did the public become "the enemy"?

Had Manning's memos come out just a few months earlier, the truth about BP's deadly drilling methods would have been revealed, and there's little doubt BP would have had to change its ways. Those eleven men could well have been alive today.

Did Manning know about this particular hush-hush cable about BP's blow-out when he decided he had to become Paul Revere and warn the planet?

That's unlikely, in the thousands of cables he had. But he'd seen enough evidence of murder and mendacity in other cables, so, as Manning, under oath, told a court, he tried to give it all to the New York Times to have knowledgeable reporters review the cables confidentially for life-saving information.

The New York Times immediately seized on this extraordinary opportunity" to ignore Manning. The Times only ran it when the Guardian was going to scoop -- and embarrass -- the New York hacks.

Though there are limits. While reporter David Leigh put the story of BP's prior blow-out on page one of the Guardian, neither the New York Times or any other major US news outlet ran the story of the blow-out and oil industry cover-up. No surprise there, though -- the most "prestigious" US news programme, PBS Newshour, was sponsored by" Chevron Corporation.

Hanging their source while taking his applause

As a working journalist, and one whose head is likely to be in the foggy gun-sights of some jet jockey or a dictator's goon squad, I have more than a little distaste for toffs like New York Times' former executive editor, columnist Bill Keller, who used Manning documents to cash in on a book deal and land star turns on television while simultaneously smearing his source Manning as, "troubled", "emotionally fractured", "vague", "inchoate" and -- cover the children's ears -- "gay".

Furthermore, while preening about their revelations from the Manning documents, the Times had no problem with imprisoning their source. I do acknowledge that the Times and Keller did editorialise that a sentence of life imprisonment without parole would be "overkill". How white of them.

When it was mentioned that Manning is no different from Daniel Ellsberg, the CIA operative who released the Pentagon Papers, Keller reassured that the Times also told Ellsberg he was "on his own" and did not object to their source being charged as a spy.

And the Times' much-lauded exposure of the My Lai massacre? My late good friend, the great investigative reporter Ron Ridenhour, who gave the story to Seymour Hersh, told me that he and Hersh had to effectively blackmail the Times into printing it.

Manning: aid to the enemy?

Times man Keller writes that Manning, by going to "anti-American" WikiLeaks, threatened the release of, "information that might get troops in the field or innocent informants killed".

Really?

This is the same Bill Keller who admits that he knew his paper's reports in 2003 that Saddam Hussein had weapons of mass destruction were completely false, but that he -- as editor -- covered up his paper's knowledge their WDM stories were simply bogus. Those stories validated the Bush propaganda and helped tip the political balance to invade Iraq. Four-thousand US soldiers died. I guess the idea is that releasing information that kills troops is criminal, but that dis-information that kills troops is quite acceptable.

Maybe I'm just cranky because I wouldn't have seen my own sources vanish and my film grabbed if the Times had only run the Manning facts about BP and Caspian when they had the chance.

Look, I'm only picking on the New York Times and PBS Newshour because they are the best in America, God help us.

What other lives could have been saved by the Manning revelations? Lots. Watch this space: I promise more aid to the enemies of the state -- which is YOU.

Hugo-Chavez-2009- by Wikipedia

These days the big powers, along with their embedded corporate media, like to undermine independent states by branding them as either 'dictatorships' or 'populist' regimes. The first label suggests generalised repression, though of greatest concern is the repression of corporate privilege; the second suggests some form of deceptive demagoguery.

Venezuela's late President Hugo Chávez, in life and death, was branded both a 'dictator' and a 'populist'. In fact, he was neither. What he did, as Luis Bilbao and William Robinson note, was lead Latin America's break with neoliberalism and 'put socialism back on the public agenda'. The impact of this is still being felt Chávez was also the main driver behind south-focussed regional integration in the Americas, initiating both the eight-nation ALBA group and the 34 member CELAC, a clear counter-weight to the Washington-controlled Organization of American States (OAS). He therefore leaves a powerful regional legacy.

In Venezuela Chávez won successive election victories, gaining between 55% and 63% of the vote, in an electoral system described by former US President Jimmy Carter as 'a model for other democracies'. You might not appreciate this, from the corporate media. In one of the many half-truths and outright lies peddled daily about Chávez, Alejandro Chafuen in Forbes magazine claims Chávez was 'one of the most unpopular' Latin American leaders. He cites polls by Latinobarometro in other parts of Latin America, where the man was demonised by the corporate media. However within his own country (which is what matters in any democracy) Chávez had great popularity. Indeed Latinobarometro shows that Venezuelans rated satisfaction with their own democracy very highly (7 out of 10, in 2010), an achievement reinforced by the near doubling in participation rates at Presidential elections, to more than 80% in 2012.

Populism means over-blown rhetoric, hand-outs and empty promises; but Chávez, with the style of a populist, went well beyond this. In the best traditions of social democracy he fomented broad participation, widening rights through a new constitution, mass education and health services and giving ordinary people a real say in their own communities. The central government used oil money to directly fund a wide range of social programs, cooperatives, local communal councils and communities. Former Chávez adviser Marta Harnecker pointed out that Chávez, as a charismatic leader, communicated with the style of a populist, but he helped people organise: 'that is not populism; it is revolutionary leadership'.

An important test of the resilience of the Chávez legacy will come on 14 April, when his successor Nicolás Maduro stands against right wing candidate Henrique Capriles Radonski. Maduro is a former transport union leader who worked with Chávez for two decades. Capriles became famous for his personal involvement in an attack on the Cuban Embassy during the 2002 US-backed coup. He was soundly defeated by Chávez in elections last October and few expect him to win in 2013. Polls put Maduro well in front. Majority support appears firm for the socialist transition program initiated by Chávez back in 2005.

None of this is good news for the international investor groups who still control most media channels, in Venezuela as elsewhere. Indeed, the anti-Chávez rhetoric has hardly abated with the man's death. Both Canadian Prime Minister Steven Harper and US President Barack Obama claimed the death of President Chávez 'brings hope' to Venezuela. Business magazine headlines read: 'Why Chávez was bad for Venezuela', 'Hugo Chávez leaves Venezuela in an economic muddle' and 'Chávez leaves legacy of economic disarray'. All this suggests a burning desire to tarnish the man's image, in attempts to rein in the Chávez bandwagon.

Why was Chávez so influential and so popular? It had much to do with the powerful social programs, in education, health, housing, food, social security, local infrastructure and land reform. Poverty fell dramatically. In 1999, when Chávez first came to office, household income poverty was 42% and extreme poverty 18.9%; in 2011 these figures had fallen by 35% (to 27.4%) and 71% (to 7.3%) (INE 2011). Inequality also fell from 48 to 39 on the Gini scale, by far the greatest improvement in Latin America. A key Chávez slogan was: 'the only way to reduce poverty is to empower the poor'. Beyond income measures, Venezuela's Human Development Index rank rose strongly, from the expansion in health services and education.

Chávez recognised and returned land to indigenous communities and invested much of the country's oil wealth in people and communities that had been ignored and marginalised for decades, if not centuries. This helps explain the extraordinary reverence given to Chávez in the more humble parts of the country. For example, the January 23 community in Caracas, without waiting for Vatican approval, have opened their own shrine to 'Saint Hugo Chávez'. To them, he had performed real miracles.

It is perhaps not surprising that corporate media analyses tend to ignore or trivialise these achievements, and look for weak spots. The Economist (5/3/13), representing private financial groups, launched a broadside against Chávez on the day of his death. He had been 'as reckless with his health as with his country's economy and its democracy', said the finance magazine. Accusing him 'narcissistic' rule, the magazine did admit that a quick election would favour Maduro over what it called the 'moderate centrist', Capriles.

The Economist claimed Chávez had 'squandered' his country's oil wealth, but had been lucky with high oil prices, clever advice from Fidel Castro on social programs and an unpopular nemesis in the form of George W. Bush. However the Bolivarian Revolution was 'a corrupt, mismanaged affair' which failed to invest and relied on handouts. Venezuela under Chávez, it continued, came 'towards the bottom of just about every league table for good governance or economic competitiveness'. It is hardly a coincidence that the relentless demonization of the man comes from those investment groups most affronted by his re-nationalisation of Venezuela's huge oil industry.

One important source to counter such assertions has been the Washington-based Centre for Economic Policy Research (CEPR). A recent article by Mark Weisbrot and Jake Johnston (CEPR, September 2012) observes that IMF forecasts 'repeatedly underestimated GDP growth' in Venezuela. Recovery from its two recessions (from the coup and oil conflict of 2002-2003, then the US financial crisis of 2008-09) had been much stronger than expected. Despite the dependence on oil income, there had been substantial investment across a range of sectors. Yet the Chávez 'bias' towards public and social sectors was not received well by predatory investor groups.

Precisely because of this corporate media onslaught, it can be difficult to read Venezuela. But, with a little patience, we can find independent sources and identify the distortions. For example, Roy Carroll of the British Guardian claimed 'a third of the country' revered Chávez, while 'millions detested him as a thug and a charlatan'. None of this explains the successive election victories, nor the fact that polls, two weeks after his death, showed that 79% of Venezuelans retained a positive image of their late president (USA Today 2013).

In another example, The Economist, seizing on a partial truth, claimed Venezuela had become 'even more dependent' on imported food, as 'State takeovers of farms cut agricultural output'. In fact, while Venezuela's spending on food imports rose from 2.0 to 2.2 of GDP, between 2000 and 2009, local food production also increased. The FAO (2012: Table 19) shows that the country's caloric self-sufficiency rose from 58% to 62% in that same period. More importantly, the FAO also shows that the proportion of under-nourished Venezuelans more than halved in just a few years under Chávez (FAO 2011, 2012). The country's nutritional problems have changed. By 2009 the rate of underweight children was down to 4% but that of overweight and obese adults was up to 30% (FAO 2012: Table 18). By way of comparison, the rate of food insecurity in the USA had worsened, from 10% of families in 2000 to 15% in 2011 (ERS 2012). 'Mismanaged' Venezuela was overcoming hunger while the much wealthier USA was going backwards.

The Economist also suggested that mass education in Venezuela had been a mistake, as the "millions who enrolled in 'universities' that mainly impart propaganda [a reference to the promotion of Bolivarian values of solidarity and egalitarianism, as opposed to neoliberal individualism and commodification] have raised expectations that are almost bound to be dashed". Chávez, according to the finance magazine, had failed "to provide the best education and health services money can buy". Nevertheless, the UNDP recognised the massive rise in Venezuela's educational enrolments, a major factor in its above-average performance in the Human Development Index (PNUD 2013).

Beyond the attacks over 'autocracy' and 'populism' have come some more specific criticisms over inflation, violent crime and an independent judiciary. Venezuela does have 20% inflation, but it has been controlled and is much lower than pre-Chávez levels. Nevertheless, further depreciation of the currency seems likely, to counter a growing black market.

Violent crime in Venezuela remains very high, but highest in the state of Miranda, where drug gangs persist and Opposition Presidential candidate Capriles has been Governor for some years. In part due to his shared responsibility for security and crime, Governor Capriles has often focussed on similar themes to those of the national government: education, improved infrastructure and reformed policing. However he refuses to cooperate with the newly formed Bolivarian National Police.

Complaints about judicial independence (and the arrest of one judge for criminality) must be read in the context of a new constitution which has privileged citizen's rights over unlimited property rights. There is a significant shift in values going within a legal system which used to be focussed almost exclusively on property, and a military which had been tutored by the US armed forces. Reorientation towards national and social goals, through Bolivarian values, has certainly caused some friction, and charges of 'politicisation'.

But to single out any one or two of such accusations as a basis for judging the Chávez legacy is to miss the bigger picture. We see the result of such distortions in a vicious obituary from the BBC, describing Chávez as 'an autocrat, ruthless and divisive'. This compares badly with the BBC's eulogies for the late Saudi Crown Prince Sultan bin-Abdul-Aziz and the late US President Ronald Reagan -- the former a non-elected despot, the latter an emperor who, through his interventions in Central America, unleashed what has been termed "one of the most intensive campaigns of mass murder in recent history" (Nairn 2004). The list goes on.

However Chávez was a true champion of human rights, not a violator. As David Edwards of Media Lens points out, "Chávez did not invade nations, overthrow governments, commit mass murder, mass torture or mass starvation through sanctions". Nor did he build his reputation on empty promises. He earned the love of his people through real achievements. That includes his leadership of the 1992 attempted coup. The government of Carlos Andres Perez, backed by Washington, had slaughtered more than 3,000 people in the 1989 Caracas street riots ("the Caracazo") after IMF-directed austerity measures. Remembering the curse of Bolivar on the soldier who raised arms against his own people, Chávez swore to dedicate his life to defence of those same marginalised people, mown down in 1989.

It is rare to see a political leader prepared to confront the great powers, making gains on behalf of ordinary people and re-building a social sphere in face of a savage capitalism which demands relentless commodification. To advocates of the neoliberal world, empowering the poor, making great advances in health, education, housing, social security and human solidarity - all these mean nothing, if they do not generate new sources of private accumulation. That is why Chávez -- and not mass murderer George W. Bush -- was a devil to them. Most ordinary people, and those with a social conscience, will think differently.
