HARD NEWS

T: grateful for all the help they get: had some bills that needed to be paid before end of May – got some help, and

- Pentecost: return of Christ and at a higher level, we are all getting an update so we can facilitate this mission further
- R came home and said he KNOWS it won't last long now – still have to be patient

R: • We are watching the most intense and seemingly the worst of times – yet there are all kinds of awesome things going on across the planet which are changing this reality: it is not as it appears to be.

- The 1% would like us to stay on the Fake News channels and watch the terror alerts stories
- for those using discernment, can see that the 1% are in trouble; people might say it will be 50 years before these ones are knocked off their pedestals: T & R don't think so!!!

R: The “global elite” are not elite – he keeps it nice: where the hell is hell boy? We need him now!

T: Especially Obama: looks like he has egg all over him! It's intentional and it's bringing out all the ooglies

- Rand Paul – His domestic policy is atrocious; by his filibustering, he literally blocked the vote and they stayed on until the wee hours of the morning; he was joined by Sen Widen, Sen Martin Heinrich of NM- they got a total block in the vote which pisses off McTurtle as well as scaring him: they want it to stay into 2016 so they can do what they want!

- of course they are invading the Section 215 – even Jeff Sessions is saying that the NSA was not intended to use this act in the way they are doing it – pretty astonishing that he would chastise the NSA

- the whole thing is rigged to the hilt!

- There will not be another vote until May 31st Sunday - that is the last minute

- at midnight, June 1st, the entire Patriot Act expires including section 215

- this is important to take Hitler's law out of here “Homeland Law” , as the law is enabling the police force to misbehave

- MHP program was about the police needing a whole lot of training plus an attitude adjustment

- The policeman called Michael Brillo to do with the 137 bullets shot into a man and a woman of colour, completely unarmed; the muffler of their car was backfiring and there were 51 police cars came out & chased them because they thought they were being shot at.

- The policeman, Michael Brillo, delivered 49 shots out of his own gun out of the 137 shots and 15 of them were done from the top of the hood straight into the windshield – point blank! Mad Max here! [Mel Gibson and The Passion of Christ not a nice movie: he has some issues of his own] Where has our humanity gone?

- The MHP host was asking where the humanity in humanity gone? What happens to all these policemen?

This time, a grand jury chose to indict

Wall Street is back and banks are having to pay billions for wrongdoings. Should the rest of us be worried?

James Brown story: July 29, 2012 James Brown came back from 2 combat missions; was taken in for a DWI; he voluntarily turned himself in for Saturday and Sunday; was told he would be released in 2 days; he told them on the Friday night he had PTSD so they would know.

- On the Saturday morning, he called his mother as they had told him they would keep him in for 7 days, not the 2 as originally told. He needed some money to get out on the Monday morning, as he was still on active duty and had to get back to the base.
- After 3 years, vital information was released from the KSOX of El Paso – a video revealing James Brown's last moments in custody. Someone said he wanted to take James Brown to get treatment for a cut and when he refused, a whole bunch of police in riot gear break into the cell. Upon being subdued, he said "I can't breathe! Help Me! I'm choking on my blood! I'm choking on my blood!" – he was sedated before coming unresponsive; the footage is disturbing – at the end, his head and face had been wrapped by the police in bandages to the top of his head and up to his nose: he kept saying "I can't breathe, please take this mask off" "Please take it off!" ; he is sobbing at the end – the decorated army soldier was taken to the University Medical Centre and officially declared dead
- Autopsy result stated natural causes due to sickle cell anemia, but it was blatant that this was not the original cause
- Sheriff Richard Wilse of the El Paso City Sheriff's Office refused to come on the program; he declined; a spokesman from the station supported the autopsy report. "an unfortunate tragedy", "a thorough review of the case"
- Nearly 3 years since his death; family still waiting for explanations; the family is suing the city of El Paso for damages and wrongful death or

Aurora, CO trial: On Friday's conference call, Tara read out information about the Aurora CO shooting; the parents sued the companies that sold the young man automatic weapons, ammunition, body armour. [this was from Rachel Maddow's show]

- There is a CO law that states if you lose the law suit to the ammunition companies, you have to pay the court costs & lawyers' fees plus all the things purchased at the company
- The parents of Jessical now owe $250,000 that they are supposed to pay because their daughter was shot in the head from whoever it was at the front of the movie theatre and did the shooting
- The person who did the shooting is not the young man on trial, but the Black Operatives – they were in his apartment for 3 months; they drugged him & used his credit cards and ordered stuff as if they were him; also booby trapped the apartment so the police had to climb up from the outside.
- The young man does not know who he is, why he is in jail: his memory has been completely wiped.

- The judge allowed cameras in the court room – lots of layers to the story.

Back to James Brown:

- the mother of the decorated Sargeant – because he was a member of the military and on active duty, the police should never have touched him; the military should have taken care of it – need a change of policy
- The mother is suing for damages & wrongful death;
- All of this is to fight for returning the US from an oligarchic, Fascist state –
- and this will go global with the TTP – under TTP, nobody's court has anything to say – any time profit is lost, someone has to pay the company for that loss!
- eg, the companies who did the damage at Santa Barbara, the most pristine environment in the world - would not have to pay anything under TTP; it has been announced that one dolphin is dead and other animals

• We are at D-Day

- a segment of the MHP show: guest is an artist Tyler Shields – Historical Fiction is the name of his photographic show in California [SEE NOTES FOR LINKS]
- One photo shows a Klansman being lynched by a strong, healthy naked black man;
 - another one shows a policeman with his own billy club being held against his throat by a black man
- he said his purpose is to impact the white privilege view people have – what if this were true? [the opposite]
- It WAS true in Egypt: The Pharaohs were black; they were from the stars and were losing their gifts because their energies were diminishing incestuous relationships are not according to the Law of One; neither is slavery; there was all kinds of warring going on; Mother had her paws on the ground to be the equalizer for 3000 years during Pharonic times
- Another MHP segment is called “as you ain't cheatin', you ain't tryin'” : announced a plea deal - commensurate with the harm that was done: about the big banks, market manipulation, Loretta Lynch and penalites.
- No president can say or do what he wants; they will be dead if they don't do what they are told Obama has parameters within which he can talk or do – this is why he is backed up by the White Knights and the Ashtar Command behind them.
- Loretta Lynch filed for jail sentences – an economist spoke and said the banks would consider the fines as the cost of doing business.

2015-05-23 'MHP' Syllabus

By Ariel Shapiro

Dorian Warren fills in for Melissa Harris-Perry this Saturday on MHP, and he's starting the show with the latest on the case over the death of Freddie Gray. On Thursday, the six officers charged in the death of 25-year-old Gray were indicted by a Baltimore grand jury. All of the officers will face second-degree assault charges, four were indicted on involuntary manslaughter and one, Officer Caesar R. Goodson Jr., who was driving the van transporting Gray, was indicted on second-degree depraved heart murder.

Then, the big banks and illegal market manipulation. Five major global banks pled guilty to foreign currency e manipulation. A group of traders referring to themselves as “The Cartel” or “The Mafia” used secret chat rooms to fix exchange rates for over five years. A Barclay's trader was quoted as saying “if you ain't cheating, you ain't trying.” We'll take a look at how Wall Street has bounced back, and whether it's actually learned anything from the mistakes of 2008.

And, disturbing new footage from El Paso, Texas, where an active-duty soldier who lived through two tours in Iraq, died after two days in jail. Sgt. James Brown was serving at Fort Bliss when he self-reported for a weekend sentence at the El Paso County Jail following a DWI. While in jail, Sgt. Brown appears to have had a post-traumatic stress disorder episode causing him to bleed. When security personnel enter his cell, the recording shows Brown saying he can't breathe while a group of guards in riot gear hold him down. Brown is seen pleading for help, but no medical assistance comes to the scene. Sgt. Brown died soon after.

Joining the discussion on Saturday are:

- Dayvon Love, Co-Founder of Leaders of a Beautiful Struggle
- Rinku Sen, Executive Director of Race Forward
- Bob Herbert, Distinguished Senior Fellow at Demos
- Jon Shane, Associate Professor at John Jay College
- Seema Iyer, Host of "The Docket" on SHIFT/MSNBC
- Mike Konczal, Fellow at the Roosevelt Institute
- Scott Gamm, Reporter at The Street

Then, it's MHP Girl Power Hour. We'll take a look at how women are portrayed in media, starting with Sansa Stark from the hit HBO series "Game of Thrones." The show, known for its dark content, upset many viewers with a scene depicting the sexual assault of teenage Sansa. Sen. Claire McCaskill tweeted that she is "done" with "Game of Thrones." Feminist culture website The Mary Sue is refusing to post any promotional material for the show moving forward. While some are defending the plotline, it has sparked a debate not just over the show itself, but the role of sexual assault in entertainment.

And, the new trailer for CBS' "Supergirl" has some viewers wondering why a show about a superhero that can fly and punch bad guys into the stratosphere looks less like "The Avengers" and more like "27 Dresses." Going against the gritty-reboot trend in superhero movies, this one takes a softer look at the girl from Krypton, who, as it happens, has just as many boy problems as Earth gals. Despite the criticism, the trailer alone is a hit – it's been viewed by more than 10 million people.

Then it's on to the real-life superwomen who rule the music industry. Nicki Minaj and Beyonce released a video for "Feeling Myself" exclusively to TIDAL, the music streaming service owned by Beyonce's husband Jay-Z. And, Taylor Swift shows just how super women can be in her new video for "Bad Blood," featuring Swift and 16 other women in entertainment as action heroes.

Joining the Girl Power Panel are:

- Alyssa Rosenberg, Culture Columnist at The Washington Post
- Janet Mock, Host of "So Popular!" on SHIFT/MSNBC
- Chloe Angyal, Senior Columnist at Feministing.org
- Sonia Saraiya, TV Critic at Salon.com

Plus, a photographer who turns history on its head, a shop in Pittsburg that responds to the wage gap and a Jeopardy! Star who takes on the dark underbelly of nerd culture.

- Discussion about creating MASH Units of all kinds of medical people, shamans, alternative healers that can go around the country, like Doctors without Borders, but inside the US
 - Goal would be to help vets with PTSD, and others in spiritual crises – having teams of folks rather than having Mad Max shoot his way out of a post apocalyptic future.

Tonight Thom talks with America's Lawyer, Mike Papantonio, about the dangers of allowing President Obama and any future US President fast track authority on trade deals without meaningful debate or filibusters. The Trade Promotion Authority (TPA) bill, passed today in the Senate, now heads to the House for a vote. Then Thom talks with Doug Hughes, the gyrocopter pilot, about his political reasons for landing on the Capitol Hill front lawn on April 15. Thom also talks with Rachel Rye Butler, Democracy Organizer for Greenpeace USA, about why her organization is getting involved in Hughes' case. Then in tonight's Conversations with Great Minds, Thom talks with former Senator and Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell about his personal life, political career and his important role in the Good Friday Agreement that brought peace to Northern Ireland.

You would think by now I would stop cutting my head off haha! Must be opening that crown chakra too much! Anyway, the meaning of the report this week remains the same: we can pit ourselves against "external authorities" in any shape or form, or we can move to a "higher dimensional frequency" to realize "they" are externalized parts of ourselves mirroring back some important information about the nature of what it means to be human living on planet earth. Now if that doesn't make sense to you, I simply don't know that I can explain it more clearly.

There are many means available for you to personally experience these "higher dimensional frequencies" ranging from natural means like orgasm, meditation, extreme sports, or plant medicine to less natural like alcohol (whether that is higher or lower is questionable I know), chemicals, or other forms of physical, emotional, or mental abuse (altered states not always equaling higher states for sure)! But Pluto opposite Venus wants to take us down into the cellar of our consciousness to discover the deeper meaning of our life experience that Saturn in Sag. is wanting to teach us.

We can resist the call to research and open to the "wholeness" (as in both light and dark), or totality of who and what we are but in the long run will only be cheating ourselves and world as true power of self determination, energy, chi, or kundalini rises from the deep dark root of our being. Let's just face it, suppression leads to a shorter life and self delusion as you fool yourself into thinking you are someone you are not. Enjoy!

an interview with Carolyn Barnes about her new book, why she wrote it
[foreword by Laura of The Oracle Report]

CONFERENCE CALL 1-209-647-1600, PIN 353-863

Discussion with Bird Man – had a bluebird fly past his face today!

Caller: asked to re-hear Rana Mu's comments from last week

- A man called Col. Ryan Arlington is a 4th generation of the Romanov Rasputin blood line
 - He wrote The archons are here: it's the story of how he was assigned to a DUMB [Deep Underground Military Base] where archons and other kinds of leaders take captured children, have their way with them, harvest their organs & other kinds of gruesome things
 - These are places created by secret gov'ts for a variety of purposes
- the whole article tries to put the grays in a good light: not true

R: the article says the grays talked to Ryan Arlington and gave their point of view about how they could have intervened in our civilization but they didn't –

- the good ones talked to FDR and others and said dismantle all your nuclear weapons [this was after the nuclear bombs dropped on Japan] – they showed up at an air force base to talk to Eisenhower [Homestead AFB in Flordia]
- Eisenhower was told by the Pleiadians that some greys that are good, others are not; if you want to advance your time space continuum, don't engage with them: they won't take you in a positive direction.
- The Pleiadians and the Sirans said: put your weapons down and we will talk with you; Eisenhower listened
- Rana Mu gave Rama her insights on this story
 - RM is an Asani and a wingmaker from 175 million years in our future: she is a normal, nice human being: 4' tall, an elvin person; walks into the grocery store & everyone says HI. She keeps beehives in her back yard -
- the first nuke detonation was in New Mexico – July 1, 1945 – in a valley, also called Trinity Point.
 - Then the bombs were dropped in Japan: 70,000 people instantly vapourized between the 2 bombs,
 - and 51,000 were instantly vapourized with the tritium bomb at 9/11 which was detonated from space
 - There was a box at Trinity Point with some kind of living being in it: some said it was a demon
- Col. Ryan, a military man, is coming forward and telling what he knows before the secret gov't catches up with him – in the DUMB they were taking flukes from some beings and inserting them in others [sounds like the Ga'uld in Space Trek]
- It's an externalized expression of the plans of mice and men – not hard to stumble over people who are speaking from their hearts; they cite the singers who were played at the break and said it as it is.
- So Col Ryan is trying to say the grays were in a good light; Rana Mu said not so fast.
 - Here is some background: There was a dispensation to the grays who could not longer reproduce; their planet had become a nuclear wasteland due to wars, and they went inside to escape the radiation. Because they were living inside & not getting the proper light, they could no longer reproduce.
 - T: We are just on the edge of becoming a similar nuclear wasteland.
- Who are the Assani? William Cooper [Behold, a Pale Horse] was a product of grays and humans cross-breeding – therefore, an Assani
 - after 911, Cooper started talking about the event – the cops showed up with a warrant for his arrest & killed him in cold blood – a SWAT team and they killed others in southern Arizona
 - the same ones tried to kill him before when they cut his leg off, but he survived.
 - Cooper wrote Behold a Pale Horse: it's all true as Lady Master NADA said
- LM Nada gave T & R a copy of information on The Committee of 300 in the mid-80s

- 1985 Bourgevain was killed; he was connected with A. Lincoln The Emancipation Proclamation – 1863-
 - In 1861 the Moors funded the war, paid Lincoln to get things that were needed
 - George Hanson was the first Black president of the US, and a Moor; he represented the backing of the Moorish people; the Iroquois were also Moorish - they were equal and had knowledge beyond that of the Founding Fathers who usurped the Iroquois Confederacy
 - Ben Franklin made deals with the British royals
 - In response to the question: were the others complicit with what Franklin was doing?
 - The answer was take the bribe like the others are doing or guess what?
- 1871 the Organic Columbia Act supposed to be

R: the Pleiadian women told him today that the slakka [newest drug out there] puts you into the lowest 4th astral levels; it looks like bath salts, taken in a little capsule or eaten as crystals

- the higher frequencies are at god/doddes send – the crystal children are literally screaming to the universe for help; not getting it from us [the prophets generation] because we are still waking up
- there are at least 100s of millions on the planet at the moment who don't get sick – and others who don't eat or drink: live on the vacuum / prana

TODAY: Ireland passed same sex marriage – country wide! Unanimous!

- Rand Paul wants decision on same sex marriage left to the state
- He voted no on the violence against women act
- T lists all of Rand Paul's decisions as a Senator over the last few years – confusing to find his position of various issues.

How is the Black Lives Matter movement reshaping models of social movement leadership? We continue our ongoing conversation on Black Lives Matter with another of the movement's co-founders, Patrisse Cullors.

Patrisse is an artist, organizer and freedom fighter. She is also the founder and executive director of Dignity and Power Now, based in Los Angeles. Among her projects are the Coalition to End Sheriff Violence, and she recently directed a theatrical piece titled POWER: From the Mouths of the Occupied, based on community stories of police violence. Also in this episode, artist and revolutionary Kai Lumumba Barrow discusses her new "visual opera," set to premiere in New Orleans on the 10th anniversary of Hurricane Katrina, and Laura explores the links between police violence in the US and internationally.

2015-05-23 Cleveland officer Michael Brelo found not guilty in car hood shooting

By Elizabeth Chuck

A Cleveland police officer has been found not guilty of voluntary manslaughter in the killing of two unarmed passengers whose car hood he mounted, sending a barrage of bullets into their windshield.

Michael Brelo, 31, who is white, was charged with killing Timothy Russell and Malissa Williams — both of whom were black — after a car chase in November 2012. Brelo rubbed his face and nodded his head as the judge read the verdict, and then wept.

Protesters march after Michael Brelo verdict in Cleveland

Shortly after, the Department of Justice announced it would review Brelo's case.

The high-speed pursuit started after Russell's 1979 Chevy Malibu backfired while driving past police headquarters. Officers thought the noise was a gun going off inside the car, and 13 cops responded by firing shots.

Brelo, who joined the Cleveland Police Department in 2007, was the only officer to face criminal charges. Prosecutors say he waited until the car had stopped moving and no longer posed a danger to fire 15 rounds into the windshield, firing a total of 49 rounds into the car.

Defense attorneys claimed Brelo was fearful for his life, believing Russell and Williams had a gun. The judge agreed that he acted accordingly.

"Brelo reasonably perceived a threat," said Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court Judge John O'Donnell.

Altogether, the officers fired 137 shots. Experts testified at the trial that Russell had 23 bullet wounds and Williams had 24, reported NBC affiliate WKYC.

O'Donnell said that while he found beyond a reasonable doubt that Brelo caused at least one fatal wound to Williams' chest, he couldn't determine that the other fatal shots came from his gun.

"One or two other officers inflicted" the others, O'Donnell said, and therefore, he couldn't find Brelo guilty of Williams' death.

Not guilty verdict in Cleveland police trial

Nevertheless, he said, Brelo "ran afoul of the Constitution" when he got on top of the car, taking action that officers are not trained to do. But, he added, Brelo could still face lesser charges.

Brelo's attorneys argued that it wasn't possible to prove who fired the fatal shots, while prosecutors claimed that Russell, 43, and Williams, 30, were still alive until Brelo ambushed them.

The Iraq war Marine veteran faced as many as 22 years in prison. He will remain on unpaid suspension while an administrative review continues of him and the other officers involved, Cleveland Police Chief Calvin Williams said.

Brelo's attorney, Pat D'Angelo, said on Saturday he was "elated" with the verdict.

"We didn't do anything illegal. We didn't do anything wrong. And I'll be damned if I'm going to let any bully push us around," he said. "We stood toe-to-toe with an oppressive government trying to put away a law-abiding citizen."

Malissa Williams' brother, Alfredo, slammed D'Angelo, the verdict and the police department.

"Why should I call the police to my house when I know they let police get off with murders?" he told WKYC.

"If he would have never gotten on the hood of the car, they would be living today," he said. "The bullet came from the officer's gun."

Cuyahoga County Prosecutor Timothy McGinty said the case would still have a ripple effect on the Cleveland Police Department and officers around the country, despite the not guilty verdict.

"I am convinced that this prosecution and this case will prevent future deaths of police and civilians," he said. "This case also points out that retraining is needed for returning combat veterans who serve in police departments."

A Department of Justice investigation — opened in part because of Brelo's case — found last December that Cleveland police had engaged in a pattern and practice of excessive force and violating civil rights for years.

Separately, on Saturday afternoon, the Department of Justice announced it would review the testimony and evidence from Brelo's trial.

"We will continue our assessment, review all available legal options and will collaboratively determine what, if any, additional steps are available and appropriate given the requirements and limitations of the applicable laws in the federal judicial system," it said in a statement.

The verdict was read on a Saturday because of the possibility of protests afterwards, WKYC reported. Judge O'Donnell asked for calm across Cleveland, and a crowd gathered peacefully outside the courthouse holding signs and American flags after.

"Hands up, don't shoot," they chanted, the rallying cry that emerged from last year's Ferguson, Missouri, white officer shooting of black teenager Michael Brown. The slogan has been used again and again in officer shootings of black males across the country recently.

Cleveland Mayor Frank Jackson also appealed for peace from residents Saturday.

"This is a moment that will define us as a city and define us as a people," he said. "Actions that cross the line, either by police officers or citizens, cannot and will not be tolerated."

Racial tensions in Cleveland got even more strained after Russell and Williams' death when police shot 12-year-old Tamir Rice, also black, to death last November. Tamir was playing with a pellet gun that police thought was a real weapon. His family has filed a wrongful-death lawsuit against the police department.

O'Donnell acknowledged those strained relations on Saturday.

"Every week, I pass a mountain of stuffed animals left in memory of a 12-year-old that many people believe was murdered by the police," he said.

From reactions to the death of Marilyn Monroe to a graphic lynching in a pond, Los Angeles-based photographer Tyler Shields' images contain emotive and often controversial subjects.

"Historical Fiction," an exhibition of his new works will be on view May 19-June 27 at Andrew Weiss Gallery in Los Angeles.

This new series of large-scale color saturated and black and white photographs capture artistically staged reactions to 1960s American political and pop culture history. Events include the first men on the moon, the disbanding of The Beatles, the golden era of air travel, racial violence, and the deaths of James Dean, John F. Kennedy, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and Marilyn Monroe.

"With 'Historical Fiction,' I have tried to create a narrative of history frozen in time, as if each image were part of a book where the first and last 100 pages have been torn out, and the story is for you to decipher. What happened before and what happened after is only up to the imagination of the viewer, and it's that viewer that can envision themselves in many of these moments," stated Shields.

Shot over a period of 12 months in locations around the US, Shields lends his signature dose of provocation to each image, urging the viewer to engage with the subject. The exhibition focuses on the complexities of one of the most influential eras of American history, reimagined through Shields' lens.

"Historical Fiction" by Tyler Shields is on view at Andrew Weiss Gallery in Los Angeles from May 19-June 24.

The website below has all or most of the photographs in the entire exhibition.

Crescent Moon Phase: challenge, perseverance

Moon in Leo

Goddess of Wisdom: All

God of Will: All

Skill: feet on the ground, eyes on a magic carpet ride

Sabian Symbol for the Lunar Month: "a mature woman reawakened to romance"

Sabian Symbol for the Solar-Lunar Year: "the music of the spheres"

One of the most challenging skills to master is to simultaneously maintain focus in the present moment (and the joy that it brings) while also seeing ahead when opportunities to be able to do so are presented.

Panoramic views of the future are visible to us this weekend. Uranus spends the last two days at the degree of the Sabian symbol "a magic carpet ride of Oriental imagery." The magic carpet is a vehicle to gain a higher view, a wider perspective. Situations and conditions that happen this weekend foreshadow the future. They will come back around in the future.

The skill of letting our eyes and mind take off on "magic carpet rides" while keeping our feet "grounded" and keeping things real is our challenge this weekend. Challenge is the nature of the Crescent Moon phase, and we are in double-Crescent energy right now. When wise owls hear and feel "challenge," we "kick in" the word "perseverance." We know that we are co-creating with Spirit, more directly than we have ever experienced. Our aim is true, and we persevere.

The energetics this weekend are all about movement and restriction of movement. This is reflected in the macro level of the world and the micro level of our lives. Restriction of movement is symbolic of restriction of spirit. Restriction of movement is accomplished through control and fear. It's an attempt to stop progress and forward movement. It's an attempt to take us out of natural alignment with the value and love of life.

An old energetic imprint of fear, control, and restriction (especially as it relates to freedom of mobility) is trying to be "revived" inside of us and inside of the world. This astrological dynamic is in fullest force on Monday. But there is a higher dynamic that is stronger and naturally overriding. Because of this, efforts at control will wilt. Efforts at freedom will bloom. It may not look like it, but that is the ultimate outcome.

There's a "soundtrack" or "exit music" as we complete our "magic carpet rides" this weekend.

It's the "music of the spheres" of the Sun, the Moon, Mercury, Venus, the Earth, Mars, the Black Moon, Saturn, Chiron, Uranus, Neptune, Pluto, AND Eris! That's a big orchestra! A lot is happening right now. Massive shifting in people (relationships), places, and things is occurring. At times, this sends things into temporary disequilibrium. This is why wise owls keep our feet on the ground while enjoying the magic carpet ride of the eyes and mind.

We keep it real. We keep it with love. See you Monday.
