

GreenUrbanLiving.co.nz is all about helping you find ways to make a difference in the way you live. Many people think you need a large rural property to be able to live sustainability but by making a few small changes to the way we live, we can all make a difference to our environment, our families health and our pockets.

It's amazing what you can do in an urban environment from balconies, to town houses, to quarter acre sections. It can be as simple as collecting rainwater to irrigate the garden or growing your own vegetables.

By visiting GreenUrbanLiving.co.nz, I am sure that you will find many handy hints and tips to live your life more eco friendly. Much of it is about getting back to basics and reclaiming the knowledge that our grandparents took for granted.
