

Volunteers Needed

Work with Green Edge NYC to prepare for our Annual Solar-Powered Film Series
September 10th, 11th, 12th and 17th, 18th, 19th

Green Edge NYC and Solar One are partnering to bring a series of FREE screenings of several important documentaries to Solar One's unique outdoor solar-powered eco-cinema in Stuyvesant Cove Park in Manhattan.

Enjoy warm fall evenings with your fellow eco-aware New Yorkers as you help set up Solar Ones outdoor cinema along the East River at 23rd Street and the FDR Drive.

The Festival will feature environmental documentaries such as A Sea Change, The Garden, Addicted To Plastic, and the world premiere of Burning In The Sun.

Volunteers are needed for a variety of tasks such as setting up the outdoor screen, arranging chairs and tables, managing concessions and greeting people as they arrive. We'll start setting up at 5:30 p.m. and will likely finish cleaning up at 11:30 or so.

Your participation will make the Series a resounding success! Contact us with your availability. If you can only come one night, or are willing to help out 2 or 3 evenings, you'll enjoy a lovely fall evening, meet some good folks and help to raise the eco-consciousness level of NYC!

Volunteers are needed on the evenings of:

September 10th, 11th 12th
September 17th, 18th 19th
