2016-04-29 MAY 2016 IS INITIATING ANOTHER QUANTUM SHIFT

by Patricia Cota-Robles

HARD NEWS

- What Cheryl is saying is so important: there is no way we can continue to do as the agenda makers want us to do!
- Rama and Don are working with the computers – R's terminal crashed!
- Greg Palast did a show with Larry King on RT last night; went into detail on the rigging of the vote on Hillary's side, with Debbie Wasserman-Schultz & other Democratic organizations

T: Summing up what Cheryl read: the divine plan on earth and Mother Earth herself and Mother et al are moving forward, and we have a choice to participate or not – it's a good update! To be fully participating means to be in the power of the positive thought!

Reading: a gift received from someone who gets the entire newsletter of Lauren Gorgo

2016-04-25 Embodiment of LOVE: revelation phase Lauren Gorgo [SEE BELOW]

Camp Lovewave:

- about the elections and the stories around each candidate except Bernie, who comes from the simple basic tenets, which have not been heard since the time of JFK's clone
- talked of the 5 planets going retrograde, including Mercury
- causing us all to go inside the heart space and check everything out!

Trump: wherever he goes, violence seems to followed: they aren't trying to remove him entirely

- What R keeps hearing about these folks showing up at any moment: he sees the inter dimensional particles, dancing and folks interacting at such a deep level – quite a challenge to move through the waves of energy going through at this time
 - Everyone is feeling it!
 - With great certainty: everything coming into perfect balance at this time!
- Also transpiring: whatever energies that are coming about are doing so for our transformation and transfiguration; Patti CD Robles, Cheryl saying the same thing, as was Lauren Gorgo
- Things moving very very fast as things are being revealed!
 - Michael Sallia's article about many of the ET groups in Shamballa and Agartha who want to interact with people on the surface, and they are making it so:
 - the ones getting in the way are those creating the issues we see around us and keeping folks separated from the high heart! When we start thinking with our head, we get in trouble; when the emotions come – WHATEVER WE THINK IS INSTANTLY MANIFESTED – SO WE HAVE TO WATCH OUR THOUGHTS AS THEY KEEP FLOWING.
- guest on Camp Lovewave: a lady who journeys with those in hospice care instead of being in hospital: the person doing the leading takes some Ayuwaska which gets the DMT moving in the brain; the person who goes with them guides the meditation.
- One lady who was leading wanted to be in the Mahabharata and watch it unfold: when Krishna appeared to Arjuna, the lady decided to leave her body and the room was absolutely filled with golden yellow light; the lady guiding the meditation has never been the same since.
- Everything that is unlike ascension is in our faces and we have to dance around the stones and over the puddles! So humbling to watch – so grateful to be in this body now and to experience this – very magical, chaotic; brings frequencies into the uncomfortable place and, at the same time, is moving us and all around us into higher frequency, balance – which is what moves entire star systems. A huuuge thing, a very good thing.

David Barsimmeon before Camp Lovewave today: guest was Noam Chomsky

- discuss the situation of Joe Biden showing up unannounced in Iraq and giving Mr Al Abadi a shoulder to lean on. The Green Zone was overrun by folks
- story that happened right before Bush got in office – the time of Y2K when all the computers were supposed to shut down - talked to the guy who created www.cyberspaceorbit.com
 - Rama and few others -via a Internet Relay chat – he told us
 - the wingmakers are here YES, NOAM CHOMSKY WAS SAYING THIS!!!
 - The larger story: in order to enter the Gates of Ishtar, you go through Baghdad and pay honour LM Ishtar
- the people in Baghdad are saying that the West is very evil in what they have done to the Iraqis & they want this to change
 - this story goes back to the Stargates and the larger picture which will not be heard on MSNBC OR even RT unless maybe Putin gets on and tells it as it is! Good intergalactic bed time stories – then things would really move!
 - Those involved in telling the story know how to do so Mom and Pop Smith don't lock and load their sawed off shotguns and wait for ET! This will not help and is one of the reasons there has been no full contact!
 - Teran was almost in tears: we need Full Disclosure and have needed it for a while!
- The agony and the ecstasy of this because it is just horrendous to watch what our people are doing in the name of their "homeland" -
 - T: this is foreign to the kind of energies that are here now - even hard for R in this moment because the energies have changed and it is now old news! He's looking back into time – trying to be in 2 places at once, and nowhere at all – it is just that cosmic sound – the Om – the One Hand Clapping.

T: finishes reading Lauren Gorgo and then on to Democracy Now guests.

- If we don't cut the cords ourselves, the cords will be cut for us – both inside and outside!
- We are now able to express what we have been afraid to say, maybe for life times. Also refers to dependency – our souls have been hellbent on finding the places where we have had connections to the 3D
- All this for the action of self-sustainability – we need to release ourselves from all human attachments – it's about self-governance – the idea of detachment is paramount – the idea of loss is hard yet it leads to . . .

ASTROLOGY FOR THE SOUL

<https://youtu.be/Yq9ExxfmQo4>

*The search for deeper meaning,
Now occupies my soul.
It calls me to dwell in the subtle realms,
That the mysteries of life I may know.*

First things first - Check out Mona Valenas and her work at <http://www.marelunare.com/proyectos/proyecto-sirenas/> Oh yeah!

Now, as for the astrology of these days, it's important to manage the energy, our energy, very consciously these days, eh? There's a lot of different places it can go and some of them will dissipate your vitality, drain your resources, and distract you from what truly gives meaning and significance to your life. It may be easy to get caught up in the drama to the point of missing the show!

The upside to this as I see it, and the mantra is all about, is that the mysteries are revealing themselves to us now in the most subtle, and sometimes obvious, ways. The natural laws and Divine intelligence that is always there can guide our decisions and actions as well as heal our wounds and issues lingering from the past. If we don't allow ourselves to be fooled by the appearances or mental gymnastics we can see through the people and life situations in a super clear way. Wishing you one breakthrough after another!

MAY 2016 IS INITIATING ANOTHER QUANTUM SHIFT

by Patricia Cota-Robles

May 2016 is initiating another quantum shift of energy, vibration, and consciousness for Humanity and ALL Life evolving on this sweet Earth. I know that those words will create some anxiety and even a little resistance in many people since it seems that, every time we go through one of these major opportunities to move forward in the Light, the events in our lives become more intense. In anticipation of that response, the Company of Heaven is reminding each and every one of us that we have been preparing for many lifetimes to not only withstand, but to God Victoriously accomplish this unparalleled Divine Plan for Planet Earth

The Ascension process we are experiencing at this time has never been attempted in any system of worlds. Never has a planet that has fallen to the depth of separation and duality the Earth fell to been given the opportunity to move forward in the Light in such a short period of time. We are truly in uncharted waters, but you and I and every other person on Earth already have all of the skill, knowledge, strength, courage, and heart commitment we need to accomplish whatever it is that we have volunteered to do during these Cosmic Opportunities. That is true, or we would not have been allowed to embody on Earth during this auspicious time. Keep that profound Truth in the forefront of your heart and mind and KEEP ON KEEPING ON! Ask your I AM Presence to take full dominion of your thoughts, feelings, words, and actions and you will be guided unerringly through this difficult, but most wondrous, personal and planetary transformation. The time for you to fulfill your unique facet of the Divine Plan is NOW!

The encouraging news is that we have already birthed the New Earth and we have moved further up the Spiral of Evolution in the past three years than even the Company of Heaven anticipated. This means that the process of transmuting the gross mutations from the old Earth that we either deliberately or inadvertently created through the manipulation of our fragmented and fear-based human egos is much further along than outer appearances indicate. Consequently, the influxes of Light we are receiving during these opportunities, such as the Light and Divine Intervention we will experience in May 2016, are succeeding beyond the greatest expectations of Heaven.

On April 22, 2016, we experienced a monumental influx of Light from a very powerful Full Moon. Billions of people were focused on this particular Full Moon for various reasons. That focus of Humanity's attention formed a collective Cup of Consciousness through which the Light of God was able to flow to prepare the Earth and all her Life for the events that will take place in May.

April 22nd is celebrated every year as Earth Day. This year it happened to fall on the Full Moon. Throughout the Day millions of people around the world focused on Mother Earth and flooded her and all Life with Love, Compassion, Healing, and Reverence, all of which was greatly amplified by the other events taking place that day.

The Full Moon on April 22nd took place during the Sun Cycle of Taurus which is considered by Buddhists to be the most powerful Full Moon of the year. The annual celebration that takes place on that day is the Wesak Festival, which is considered the day of Buddha's Birth, Enlightenment, and Ascension. Every year billions of Buddhists and other exponents of Buddha's Love and Enlightenment focus on the Light, Healing Love, and Enlightenment Buddha brings to the Earth on behalf of Humanity.

Because this year is Leap Year, the Passover Full Moon celebrated in Judaism was pushed back one month. Usually the Passover Full Moon is the first Full Moon following the March Equinox which occurred this year during a Lunar Eclipse on March 23rd. But this Leap Year, Passover began at Sundown on April 22nd, so in addition to Earth Day and the Wesak Festival, on April 22nd millions of people also focused on the celebration of Passover. The collective focus of Humanity's attention throughout that sacred and holy day exponentially expanded the Light of the Full Moon and the various celebrations that bathed the Earth. In perfect Divine Order, that influx of Light paved the way for the events we will be blessed with in May.

THE MYSTICAL MONTH OF MAY

In the Heavenly Realms May is referred to as The Mystical Month of May. That is due to the various activities of Light that occur at both inner and outer levels during the month of May every year.

May 1st is considered Saint Germain's Ascension Day. Saint Germain and his Twin Flame Lady Portia, who is known in Inner Realms as the Goddess of Divine Justice, serve the Earth at this time in the capacity of Keepers of the 5th-Dimensional Crystalline Solar Violet Flame of God's Infinite Perfection. These August Beings of Light are actually Cosmic Beings that serve in this capacity for all of the Sons and Daughters of God throughout the Universe. However, because of the urgency of the hour on Planet Earth, the focus of their attention is being greatly intensified on this one tiny planet. The Violet Flame that they are responsible for sustaining on Earth is associated with the 7th Solar Aspect of Deity, and it will be the predominant frequency of Light bathing the Earth during the entire 2,000-year cycle of the Aquarian Age. This Sacred Fire pulsates with the perfect balance of our Father God's Blue Flame of Divine Power and our Mother God's Pink Flame of Divine Love.

After the myriad shifts of energy, vibration, and consciousness that have taken place since the Birth of the New Earth on December 21-22, 2012, we finally reached a critical mass that allowed us to complete our transition into the Age of Aquarius. On January 18, 2016, the moment we entered the annual Sun Cycle of Aquarius, the Earth and all Life evolving upon her were Inbreathed up the Spiral of Evolution by our omniscient, omnipotent, omnipresent Father-Mother God, the Cosmic I AM, All That Is.

During that Cosmic Inbreath, we officially Ascended into NEW frequencies of the 5th Dimensional Crystalline Solar Violet Flame of God's Infinite Perfection. This is a frequency of Light beyond anything we have ever been able to withstand at a cellular level. As we bathed in this Healing Sacred Fire, the Earth completed her sojourn through the Age of Pisces. During that evolutionary Inbreath, Mother Earth was securely anchored into the full embrace of the 5th-Dimensional Crystalline Solar Age of Aquarius on the New Earth.

Now, beginning on May 1, 2016 and building in momentum until every man, woman, and child on Earth has completed his or her Ascension into their Crystalline Solar Light Bodies on the New Earth, Saint Germain and Lady Portia have selflessly volunteered to sustain this unfathomable frequency of the Violet Flame of God's Infinite Perfection within the Divinity of each person's Immortal Victorious Threefold Flame. These precious Beings of Light will continue this colossal service to Humanity and the Light until every person's I AM Presence has integrated effectively enough into his or her physical, etheric, mental, and emotional bodies to sustain this perfect balance of our Father-Mother God unimpeded by the negativity still surfacing in the outer world.

From outer appearances, it may seem as though it will take aeons of time for the completion of this purging of the old Earth to be accomplished, but that is an illusion. The Beings of Light in the Realms of Illumined Truth said that, if that were true, our Father-Mother God would not have issued a Cosmic Dispensation that allows Saint Germain and Lady Portia to intervene in Humanity's Ascension process in this way. The Beings of Light have indicated that this Divine Intervention is tangible proof that we are far closer to our Victory in the Light than our life experiences and the life experiences of the masses of Humanity are reflecting at this time.

Through your I AM Presence, in your meditations and your quiet time throughout the day, invoke Saint Germain and Lady Portia and ask them how you can most effectively assimilate the NEW frequencies of this Divine Gift of the Violet Flame of God's Infinite Perfection. They are standing in readiness awaiting the opportunity to help you utilize this sacred Violet Flame through your unique understanding and your unique abilities. Trust yourself!

If you are not sure how to connect with your I AM Presence it is as simple as saying:

"I AM my I AM Presence and I AM One with the I AM Presence of ALL Humanity, as I AM lifted up ALL Life is being lifted up with me. Now, as One Voice, One Breath, One Heartbeat, and One Energy, Vibration, and Consciousness of Pure Divine Love I invoke Saint Germain and Lady Portia to reveal to me how I can most effectively assimilate and utilize the New frequencies of the 5th Dimensional Crystalline Solar Violet Flame of God's Infinite Perfection through my own unique abilities and my deepest understanding."

Once that invocation is stated, just enter the silence of your heart and remain in a state of Listening Grace. Know that the information you are seeking is being encoded within the Divine Intelligence of your Heart Flame and it will surface into your conscious mind whenever you need it.

MOTHER MARY'S TEMPLE OF THE IMMACULATE HEART

Another reason May is considered a mystical month is because during this time of year Mother Mary's Temple of the Immaculate Heart in the Inner Planes is opened for all Humanity. During the entire month of May, our I AM Presence escorts us into Mother Mary's Temple while we are in our finer body as we sleep at night. This may be a new concept for some of you, but there is no such thing as our Divine Self being unconscious. When our physical body sleeps, our I AM Presence guides a level of our higher consciousness into the Inner Planes where we seek out the schools of learning and the sacred Temples we need most in order to fulfill our Divine Plan. Since our fall from Grace aeons ago, we usually do not remember these experiences. Even though that is true for most people, the lessons we learn while we are asleep are always recorded in our Etheric Body. When we need them, our I AM Presence pushes the lessons to the surface of our conscious mind where they register in subtle but profound ways as an inner knowing.

This year Mother Mary is working closely with Saint Germain and Lady Portia to fulfill the unique facet of the Divine Plan that is unfolding day-by-day in 2016. Mother Mary said that in order for each of us to be able to eventually sustain the New frequencies of the Violet Flame and our 5th-Dimensional Crystalline Solar Light Bodies on our own, the Permanent Seed Atom in every Heart Flame must be strengthened and raised to a higher frequency of vibration. This multidimensional Permanent Seed Atom is the Chalice that cradles the Immortal Victorious Threefold Flame in our heart. The Immortal Victorious Threefold Flame pulsating within every person's heart consists of the Blue Flame of our Father God's Divine Power, the Pink Flame of our Mother God's Divine Love, and the Yellow-gold Flame of Divine Wisdom which reflects the Christ Consciousness of the Sons and Daughters of God.

Mother Mary assures us that as our I AM Presence raises the vibration of our Permanent Seed Atom to a higher frequency of 5th-Dimensional Crystalline Solar Light it will in no way adversely affect the health of our physical heart or body. It will, however, create a Chalice of Light that will be able to express much higher frequencies of our Mother God's Transfiguring Divine Love, and it will easily sustain the new frequencies of the Violet Flame that Saint Germain and Lady Portia are assisting us with at this time.

Mother Mary revealed that this newly strengthened Chalice of Light will also enable our I AM Presence to accelerate the frequency of our Threefold Heart Flame which will greatly increase the Divine Alchemy taking place within our Earthly Bodies. The Divine Alchemy occurring within our Earthly Bodies is literally transforming our physical, etheric, mental, and emotional bodies from carbon-based planetary cells into Crystalline-based Solar Light Cells. This is usually a slow process but with the assistance we are receiving from On High we will be experiencing the wonder and bliss of our Crystalline Solar Light Bodies and the New Earth much sooner than we can imagine.

To help you open your heart with receptive and joyous expectation of the Gifts being given to you by Mother Mary throughout the month of May this year, please envision entering her Temple of the Immaculate Heart as you contemplate the following visualization.

ENTERING MOTHER MARY'S TEMPLE

While in your finer body your I AM Presence escorts you to Mother Mary's Temple of the Immaculate Heart in the Inner Planes. As you enter the Temple the luminous Presence of Mother Mary greets you. She embraces you in her loving arms and with her embrace she will awaken within you the remembrance of your sojourn in her sacred Temple prior to this embodiment. You remember now that you came to Earth during this Cosmic Moment with but one desire, to do God's Will. You understand that you volunteered to be a powerful Instrument of God during this critical time and that you have been training for aeons for this mission. You also remember that you promised to be the full manifestation of Divine Love while serving Humanity and the Light in this embodiment.

With Mother Mary's assistance, you remember that encoded within your Heart Flame is a portion of the Divine Plan that you chose to bring with you through the veil of physical birth. Mother Mary reminds you of the vow that SHE took to assist you during this wondrous time when your Divine Mission will be fulfilled. Mother Mary helps you remember the capacity you have within your Lifestream to fulfill your Divine Purpose with dignity, honor, and victory.

During the holy month of May, Mother Mary assists your I AM Presence to expand the Chalice of your Immaculate Heart, which cradles your Immortal Victorious Threefold Flame. The expansion of this Chalice allows your Heart Flame to be brought into perfect balance and to sustain higher frequencies of the NEW Violet Flame of God's Infinite Perfection than you have ever known.

As this occurs, your Heart Flame blazes forth as a great force of Divinity within you Transfiguring your carbon-based bodies into 5th-Dimensional Crystalline Solar Light Bodies. This transformation allows you to be aware of the Presence of God in every cell and atom of your Being. This paves the way for the next phase of the Divine Plan. Now through all levels of Divine Consciousness you affirm:

"I AM the Immaculate Concept of my TRUE God Reality, NOW made manifest and sustained by Divine Grace. And so it is!"

THE NEXT STEP

Functioning within the frequencies of your Crystalline Solar Light Bodies, you are now able to consciously magnify the Divinity within yourself and all Life as your up-reaching consciousness magnetizes not only the substance of Divine Love, Healing, Prosperity, Peace, Joy, and Happiness into the world of form, but it also prepares the Earth and Humanity to receive the patterns of perfection for the New Earth that will flow forth from the Realms of Cause when the Portal of Light in Alaska is opened to full breadth in August 2016. These are the exquisite patterns that were previously beyond the comprehension of your finite mind. The patterns that you will now be able to fathom not only as a possibility, but as an imminent reality.

With the assistance that Mother Mary, Saint Germain, and Lady Portia are giving to Humanity during the Mystical Month of May in 2016, these new patterns will be easily recognized and tangibly perceived by an Awakening Humanity. The events in May will further prepare Humanity and Mother Earth to receive the influx of Light that will flood the mental and emotional strata of Earth with previously unknown patterns of perfection for the New Earth when the Portal from the Realms of Cause is opened in August. These patterns will serve as the catalyst that will greatly assist in transforming this blessed planet into the Heaven on Earth she is destined to be.

Your I AM Presence has magnetized this information into your sphere of awareness for a reason. You have been preparing for aeons of time to be an Instrument of God during this facet of the Divine Plan or you would not be reading these words. As this Divine Plan unfolds step-by-step, we will each be in our right and perfect place serving Humanity and the Light in the way that is in alignment with our Heart's Call. Only your I AM Presence can reveal to you how you will best accomplish your unique facet of this incredible opportunity to add to the Light of the world.

I will share with you how the Company of Heaven has asked us to fulfill our facet of the Divine Plan that will occur in August 2016. Please read the following information carefully and see if this opportunity resonates in your Heart as well. Your Light and Love are needed now!

Know that the more Lightworkers who are physically present for this miraculous Activity of Light that will take place on an Alaskan Cruise, August 13-20, 2016, the more powerful our Chalice of Light will be and the more Light we will be able to transmit into the physical plane of Earth to assist in fulfilling this unprecedented facet of the Divine Plan. Listen to your heart, and ask your I AM Presence to reveal to you how your Divine Presence will most effectively assist in this wondrous opportunity to selflessly serve Humanity and the Light.

All of the Lightworkers who have been prepared to serve in this wondrous way on behalf of Humanity and all Life on this sweet Earth will know who they are through the inner promptings of their Heart. Listen to your Heart, and Trust your inner guidance. KNOW that if you are being guided to be physically present within the Portal of the Realms of Cause in Alaska, then your I AM Presence and the Company of Heaven will assist you in paving the way. This is true whether you need assistance with time, energy, better health, or money to accomplish this facet of your Divine Mission.

In addition to those who are inspired to be physically present, there will be Lightworkers who will join in consciousness from points of Light around the world. These Lightworkers will project the Light flowing through their Heart Flames into the Portal of Light where the Lightworkers are physically gathered in Alaska. Thus our unified efforts will expand a thousand times a thousandfold.

THE DIVINE PLAN

We at the New Age Study of Humanity's Purpose have been asked by the Company of Heaven to orchestrate the 30th Annual World Congress on Illumination which will take place on an Alaskan Cruise, August 13-20, 2016. This event will be held within the Portal of Light through which the patterns of perfection from the Realms of Cause enter the mental and emotional strata of Earth. This Portal pulsates in all of its resplendent glory in the Ethers above Alaska in the USA.

On this Alaskan Cruise the Lightworkers who are physically present from around the World, will join their Heart Flames and form a transformer of Light, a Holy Grail, through which the Light of God will flow to open this Portal of Light to full breadth. Once that is accomplished, the Company of Heaven has revealed that not only the patterns of perfection from the Realms of Cause that reflect the Divine Love, Eternal Peace, Vibrant Health, Abundance, Bliss, Ecstasy, Wonder, and Awe of the 5th-Dimensional Crystalline New Earth will far more easily flow through the hearts and minds of Humanity into the physical plane, but we will receive patterns of perfection for the New Earth that we have not even been able to fathom with our finite minds.

The 30th WCI will be a wondrous and life-transforming event for all of those who are willing to respond to their Heart's Call and volunteer to serve as Instruments of God on behalf of our sisters and brothers in the Family of Humanity, and Beloved Mother Earth.

As 2016 unfolds, we will be sharing important information on how this facet of the Divine Plan will be God Victoriously accomplished. Alaska is a wondrous expression of the Nature Kingdom. In the embrace of Alaska's exquisite beauty, we will easily connect with the patterns of perfection that we will experience once the New Earth is tangibly manifest through the Portal of Light associated with the Realms of Cause.

If you are interested in joining us on this holy endeavor all of the information you will need to participate is posted on our website <http://www.eraofpeace.org/wci-2016> .

In order to organize a group this large on a Cruise Ship there are very specific deadlines for registrations that we are obligated to fulfill. Please go to our website <http://www.eraofpeace.org/wci-2016> and carefully read all of the information, so that you will not miss this amazing opportunity.

If you are interested in joining us for the 30th Annual World Congress on Illumination on our Alaskan Cruise you MUST REGISTER THROUGH OUR WEBSITE. You cannot register directly through the cruise line.

We are all Blessed beyond measure to be able to serve Life in this wondrous way. Please listen to your Heart and respond according to the inner guidance of your I AM Presence.

God Bless YOU, Precious One, on behalf of ALL Life evolving on this planet, for your willingness to be the Open Door that will secure unfathomable patterns of perfection from the New Earth in the physical world of form. Now let's focus on the Divine Intervention being given to Humanity by Saint Germain and Lady Portia, and Beloved Mother Mary during this powerful month of May.

30th Annual World Congress on Illumination, August 13-20, 2016.

Embodiment of LOVE: revelation phase

Lauren Gorgo

Here we stand on the other side of that robust eclipse journey, chastened but wiser...and holy crap, what a journey it has been.

For the first time ever I found myself actually wishing I could return to it...that somehow it felt better (?) inside the birth portal than to be thrust into the intensity that was waiting for me at the other end. Tumultuous or not, every single one of us has been altered in the most fundamental ways...to the point that we still don't completely know what that means.

April is always a month of obvious transition, both within and in the world around us. It is a time of being suspended between realities, of shedding our old skins and stories while beginning the intuitive foray into new, deeper level truth. Many souls also utilize this powerful energetic window of transition (literally) for their physical departure and so we have all have been deeply letting go in one way or another.

With so much intense transformation in so little time it is has been pretty difficult to determine which end is up but from what I am hearing, that familiar ass-over-teacup feeling is about to ground into something very productive.

If you are reading this then I am sure you are aware that in just a few days we will be in quite an extraordinary and rare celestial passage as FIVE planets will be retrograde...at once. (Jupiter, Saturn, Mars, Pluto & Mercury) Not knowing how to even process this I asked for a clearer understanding of what this will mean for those of us who are deep in the throes of embodiment.

What I was given was an image of a bulldozer clearing mountains of rubble from a roadway with the understanding that the next few months are going to provide us with quite an assortment of supportive energies to move some BIG things out of our way in order to clear the path to our new life and purpose...in some pretty permanent ways. Ways that will serve to finally reveal our true nature.

It feels like we are being given a really extraordinary opportunity to release, remove, reset, restructure, resurrect so much from our past before we move into the second half of 2016. This reads like a housecleaning of the highest order...even if very literally in that the deeper we descend into our bodies, the more we inhabit our dwelling spaces which always prompts us to let go of more stuff, to eliminate excess and to simplify.

For so many years we did not feel "at home" in ourselves or on the planet and that transient feeling of being between worlds has been reflected in our physical homes/living situations and lives. But now, after carving out so much internal space...dissecting & decluttering, detonating & dismantling our entire human existence...we are now ready to create some serious external space, for our new Self to fill in.

So just like the Phoenix rising, we get to...erm...sweep up our ashes. Who knew.

In the bigger picture, because the new reality system (grid) is now anchored (go team!) we too can finally anchor...both in our bodies and in our true lives. We diligently dedicated ourselves to building the foundation and framework for our new life template, and now we will get to embody it.

And because we let go of so much heaviness within, we can now more effortlessly...and with great universal support...bring the world we inhabit into greater alignment to more accurately reflect our hard earned lightness of BEing.

We seem to be headed for some very long-awaited cathartic moments...a monumental release of years, if not lifetimes, of spiritual imprisonment.

Guests: Noam Chomsky

world-renowned political dissident, linguist, author and institute professor emeritus at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he's taught for more than half a century.

During an event Tuesday night, Noam Chomsky was asked about Democratic presidential candidate Bernie Sanders and said he considered him more of a "New Deal Democrat" than a radical extremist, as some have portrayed him. Chomsky said Sanders' positions on taxes and healthcare are supported by a majority of the American public, and have been for a long time. He added that Sanders has "mobilized a large number of young people who are saying, 'Look, we're not going to consent anymore.' If that turns into a continuing, organized, mobilized force, that could change the country—maybe not for this election, but in the longer term."

Chomsky is a world-renowned political dissident, linguist, author and institute professor emeritus at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he's taught for more than half a century. He spoke at the Brooklyn Public Library at an event hosted by Live from the NYPL.

The event also featured Greece's former finance minister, Yanis Varoufakis. He discusses his role in the country's financial crisis in his new book, "And the Weak Suffer What They Must?: Europe's Crisis and America's Economic Future."

Varoufakis will be a guest Thursday on Democracy Now!

NOAM CHOMSKY: Well, Bernie Sanders is an extremely interesting phenomenon. He's a decent, honest person. That's pretty unusual in the political system. Maybe there are two of them in the world, you know. But he's considered radical and extremist, which is a pretty interesting characterization, because he's basically a mainstream New Deal Democrat. His positions would not have surprised President Eisenhower, who said, in fact, that anyone who does not accept New Deal programs doesn't belong in the American political system. That's now considered very radical.

The other interesting aspect of Sanders's positions is that they're quite strongly supported by the general public, and have been for a long time. That's true on taxes. It's true on healthcare. So, take, say, healthcare. His proposal for a national healthcare system, meaning the kind of system that just about every other developed country has, at half the per capita cost of the United States and comparable or better outcomes, that's considered very radical. But it's been the position of the majority of the American population for a long time. So, you go back, say, to the Reagan—right now, for example, latest polls, about 60 percent of the population favor it. When Obama put through the Affordable Care Act, there was, you recall, a public option. But that was dropped. It was dropped even though it was supported by about almost two-thirds of the population. You go back earlier, say, to the Reagan years, about 70 percent of the population thought that national healthcare should be in the Constitution, because it's such an obvious right. And, in fact, about 40 percent of the population thought it was in the Constitution, again, because it's such an obvious right. The same is true on tax policy and others.

So we have this phenomenon where someone is taking positions that would have been considered pretty mainstream during the Eisenhower years, that are supported by a large part, often a considerable majority, of the population, but he's dismissed as radical and extremist. That's an indication of how the spectrum has shifted to the right during the neoliberal period, so far to the right that the contemporary Democrats are pretty much what used to be called moderate Republicans. And the Republicans are just off the spectrum. They're not a legitimate parliamentary party anymore. And Sanders has—the significant part of—he has pressed the mainstream Democrats a little bit towards the progressive side. You see that in Clinton's statements. But he has mobilized a large number of young people, these young people who are saying, "Look, we're not going to consent anymore." And if that turns into a continuing, organized, mobilized—mobilized force, that could change the country—maybe not for this election, but in the longer term.

2016-04-28 Former Greek Finance Minister: Massive IMF Bailouts are "Ponzi Austerity" Scheme

As the White House is backing calls for Greece to continue to implement widespread austerity measures, we spend the hour with former Greek Finance Minister Yanis Varoufakis. Earlier this week, negotiations between Greece and international creditors hit an impasse over the bankers' demands for extra austerity measures. The International Monetary Fund is demanding cutting Greek pensions and eliminating income-tax exemptions if Greece does not hit its budget targets. "Cutting down pension is not reform. It's like confusing butchery for surgery," says Varoufakis. He served as the Syriza party's first finance minister after the left-wing party took power in 2015, after promoting an anti-austerity platform. He is in the United States promoting his new book, "And the Weak Suffer What They Must?: Europe's Crisis and America's Economic Future." Earlier this year, he launched a new pan-European umbrella organization called Democracy in Europe Movement 2025, or DiEM25.

AMY GOODMAN: Yanis Varoufakis joins us today as the White House is backing calls for Greece to continue to implement widespread austerity measures, following President Obama's meeting with German Chancellor Angela Merkel earlier this week. Greece and its international creditors are once again negotiating the terms of the bailout and the extent of the austerity measures creditors can impose. On Wednesday, White House spokesperson Josh Earnest told reporters the administration believes Greece must follow through on structural reforms.

REPORTER: Is there any concern within the White House about what appears to be an obvious deadlock between the creditors over the Greek debt situation and the International Monetary Fund?

PRESS SECRETARY JOSH EARNEST: I don't have any detailed knowledge of those ongoing discussions. Obviously, you know, we're very supportive of the efforts that members of the EU have made to deal with the financial challenges posed by Greece's finances. Part of that agreement included Greece following through on a number of structural reforms. And we certainly believe that—that Greece has a responsibility to do that.

NERMEEN SHAIKH: Earlier this week, negotiations between Greece and international creditors hit an impasse over the bankers' demands for extra austerity measures. The International Monetary Fund is demanding cutting Greek pensions and eliminating income tax exemptions if Greece does not hit its budget targets. It's the latest impasse in years of fierce political clashes between Greece and international creditors.

For more, we're joined by a man who had a front-row seat to these battles: former Greek Finance Minister Yanis Varoufakis. He has been called "the most interesting man in the world." He's also a professor of economic theory at the University of Athens and the author of more than 15 books, including, most recently, And the Weak Suffer What They Must?: Europe's Crisis and America's Economic Future.

AMY GOODMAN: Yanis Varoufakis's book takes a sweeping look at the history of the eurozone, the creation of the euro, the construction of the European Central Bank, the lead-up to the 2008 crisis, and what went so disastrously wrong in its wake. He served as the Greek finance minister from January 2015 to the following July as a member of the anti-austerity Syriza party, during which he helped lead Greece's battle against European central bankers and an historic referendum in which Greeks resoundingly voted down austerity. But only days after the "no" vote, Varoufakis resigned. At the time, he said, quote, "I shall wear the creditors' loathing with pride." Earlier this year, he launched a new pan-European umbrella organization called Democracy in Europe Movement 2025, or DiEM25.

Yanis Varoufakis, welcome back to Democracy Now! It's great to have you with us. Can you respond to what's happened right now with Washington and Germany, President Obama's meeting with the German chancellor, Angela Merkel, calling for continued austerity in Greece? What exactly does this mean?

YANIS VAROUFAKIS: Well, it means that we have a stupendous case of the White House spokesman violating the Obama line. When we were elected in January of 2015, President Obama came out with a splendid statement. If I recall correctly, he said something along the lines that the principle of the greatest austerity for the most depressed of nations needs to be re-examined. He was opposing it. And now we have, yet again, this typical disconnect in the American administration. It's quite astonishing and saddening. On the one hand, the president is making all the right noises, and on the other hand, his spokesman comes out and supports cruel, self-defeating, irrational, inefficient, mind-blowingly inane austerity.

And, Amy, allow me to correct the conventional wisdom peddled by the mainstream media. If you read or listen to all the reports regarding the negotiations and [inaudible] between Greece and its creditors, you will hear what we heard just before in your report, that the Greek government's negotiations have stalled, because supposedly Greece, the Greek government, Athens, is resisting structural reforms. But nothing could be further from the truth. The fact of the matter is that the Greek government last summer, in July of 2015, surrendered to the creditors. This is why I'm no longer the finance minister. And ever since, it governs by email. It's simply told—it is simply told what to do. And it's trying to do it. It is trying to implement it.

The problem at the moment, the reason why we have yet another impasse, yet another delay in the announcement of the great reforms and fiscal policies that will be applied to the case of a depressed Greece, is very simple. The International Monetary Fund and the German government are loggerheads. They are at each other's throats. They can't see eye to eye. The elephants in the room are tussling, and the little pipsqueak mouse, Greece, is being trampled upon. This is the truth. It's got nothing to do with the Greek government stalling on structural reforms. By the way, there are no structural reforms in question. Cutting down pensions is not reform. It's like confusing butchery for surgery. It's not the same thing.

NERMEEN SHAIKH: Well, earlier this month—I want to ask about the details of a discussion that WikiLeaks released, precisely of IMF officials in charge of managing the Greek debt crisis. Poul Thomsen, the head of the IMF's European Department, and Delia Velculescu, the IMF mission chief for Greece. Could you talk about what was revealed in those discussions and what the significance is?

YANIS VAROUFAKIS: Well, exactly what I just said. If you read the dialogue, it's very clear. The IMF people are utterly frustrated with Germany. Why? Because the IMF, whatever one may accuse them of—and there is a lot to say about the IMF—at least they are numerate: They can add, subtract; they know arithmetic. And they know that the Greek debt is unsustainable. They know that the numbers that the European Commission, on behalf of Germany, is imposing upon Greece are numbers that will explode, they will fail. In six months' time, we'll have another failure of the program, like we've had in the last six years. So the IMF wants to—the IMF, wherever it goes, it tries to impose what they refer to as internal devaluation—devaluing labor, devaluing pensions, closing down small firms, small shops, pharmacies, and replace them with supermarkets. That creates—you know, liquidate, liquidate, liquidate. So, that means, of course, a wholesome shrinkage in the economy, in the social economy. Now, that is their want. But at the same time, they are clever enough to know that when you shrink the national income and the social economy of a country like Greece, a program country, then you can't expect them to repay the gargantuan debt that has been accumulated. So, they're like a quasi-numerate villain, who wants to turn Greece into a desert, call it peace, and, of course, they understand that they have to call the debt.

The German government, on the other hand, and the European Commission that is acting on their behalf, simply do not want to talk about the debt, because this would mean going to the federal Parliament in Berlin and admitting that the loans for Greece, the so-called bailout loans for Greece, were not loans for Greece. They were loans, bailout loans, for German and French banks. And that money was never intended to come back to the German, to the Slavik, to the Portuguese taxpayers. It was always going to be money that was given from the taxpayers of Europe—initially from Greeks, and then everybody else—to the French and the German bankers. So they refuse the IMF's calls for debt relief. And now the IMF, Washington, D.C., and Berlin are clashing, and they can't agree.

If you read this dialogue, it's spectacular. At some point, they say, "What will it take to get the Europeans"—he means Berlin—"to see that it's about time to cut the debt?" And Poul Thomsen's response is, "We need an event." By that, he meant another crisis, another bankruptcy, another spate of bank closures in Greece, to concentrate the mind of Mrs. Merkel, who is named explicitly. So, this story, this illusion, this soothing myth—soothing for the media—that the Greek government is resisting reforms, and this is why we have an impasse, has been completely and utterly exploded by the WikiLeaks exposure of these dialogues.

AMY GOODMAN: What is Ponzi austerity, Yanis Varoufakis.

YANIS VAROUFAKIS: Well, Amy, we all know what Ponzi growth is—right?—what a Ponzi scheme is. It's when you pretend to be growing your income on the basis of unsustainable debt. And the more debt you take, the more you pretend that you're growing. But then you have to have even more unsustainable debt in order to maintain this illusion. Now, what is Ponzi austerity?

Once these bubbles burst, the only way you can continue to pretend that you're solvent is through even more debt, that will be utilized in order to repay or to pretend to repay the previous debts. And if you're going through a period of belt tightening to impress creditors that you're doing the right—the good Protestant thing, which is, you know, to be parsimonious and to tighten your belt, you have austerity, which continuously reduces national income, because when you reduce pensions, when you reduce investment, when you reduce all the determinants of aggregate demand, income of the nation shrinks. And you keep tightening that belt through more pension cuts, more reductions in public health and so on, and public education, and you keep on taking new unsustainable loans in order to pretend that you're not insolvent. That's Ponzi austerity for you.

AMY GOODMAN: Yanis Varoufakis, we're going to continue this conversation after break. Professor Varoufakis is the former finance minister of Greece, now teaching economic theory at the University of Athens. His new book is titled And the Weak Suffer What They Must?: Europe's Crisis and America's Economic Future. We'll be back with him in a minute.

Guests Yanis Varoufakis former finance minister of Greece and a professor of economic theory at the University of Athens.

We continue our conversation with former Greek Finance Minister Yanis Varoufakis as the White House is backing calls for Greece to continue to implement widespread austerity measures, following President Obama's meeting with German Chancellor Angela Merkel earlier this week. Greece and its international creditors are once again negotiating the terms of the bailout and the extent of the austerity measures creditors can impose. Varoufakis responds to the German government's claim that the majority of Germans oppose giving more money to Greece, and addresses the previous bailouts. "What happened to that money? It wasn't money for Greece. It was money for the banks," Varoufakis says. "The Greek people took on the largest loan in human history on behalf of German and French bankers." He notes the conditions of the loan "guaranteed our national income would shrink by one-third. So it was impossible to repay that money." He says he opposes taking additional funds until the country's economy is more stable.

AMY GOODMAN: That's Public Enemy, "By the Time I Get to Arizona." And that's where we are right now. We're in Flagstaff at Northern Arizona University, as we continue our 100-city tour, heading on to Phoenix this afternoon and Tucson at the Convention Center tonight. I'm Amy Goodman, host of Democracy Now! Nermeen Shaikh is in New York with our guest, Yanis Varoufakis, the finance minister of Greece who resigned over austerity. Nermeen?

NERMEEN SHAIKH: I want to turn to Michael Fuchs, a senior member of German Chancellor Angela Merkel's CDU party. He was asked in February 2015 why the majority of Germans were opposed to giving money to Greece.

MICHAEL FUCHS: Well, it's a little bit the Greek government, and particularly Mr. Varoufakis, who came up with some wordings which were not really in a way somebody who's—well, who is in a demand—is in need of money, and he should not handle our finance minister, neither our chancellor, like he did. And so, it was quite insulting our people. And that's one of the reasons the Germans are pretty upset about the situation.

NERMEEN SHAIKH: That was a member of Angela Merkel's CDU party. So, Yanis Varoufakis, could you comment on what he said about your negotiating style and its impact on how the Germans saw the Greece debt crisis?

YANIS VAROUFAKIS: Oh, by the way, there's no such thing as the Germans. If you go to Germany, you get a variety of opinion. We began our Democracy in Europe Movement with our comrades in Germany. Everywhere we go in Germany, we have immense support as a pan-European democratic movement. It is the German government that saw me as a major, major inconvenience. And you know what? They were very right to see me as a major inconvenience.

And you know why I was extremely inconvenient? Because I didn't want any money. What I was saying to our electorate before the election, that was the basis for my being elected. And what I was saying to the creditors after my election was very, very simple. The problem is not that Germany has not paid enough. Germany has paid too much, in the case of the Greek bailout. We had the largest loan in human history. The question is, what happened to that money? It wasn't money for Greece. It was money for the banks. And the Greek people took on the largest loan in human history on behalf of German and French bankers, under conditions that guaranteed that their income, our income in Greece, would shrink by one-third. That is Grapes of Wrath, John Steinbeck material. One-third of national income, poof, disappeared. So it was impossible to repay that money. And they knew that, in the first place. So the only reason why they effected this so-called bailout of Greece was to save their own banks and to present this as solidarity with Greece. And my simple line was this: We're not going to take another euro from the German taxpayers, from the hard-working people of Germany, of Slovakia, of France, until and unless we stabilize our economy.

And, you know, let me put it this way. The German Swabian housewife, the Protestant ethic, what does it recommend? That if you're bankrupt, you should not borrow more money. Right? So this is what I said. This is why I was extremely inconvenient, because I was utilizing the ethos and the morality of the Protestant ethic, of the spirit of capitalism, according to Weber and to the German traditions. And they just—they couldn't believe it, that here was a Greek finance minister who was not asking for more loans. So, you know, I can understand why the gentleman was very upset with me.

AMY GOODMAN: Ninety-one percent of the bailout went to German and French banks?

YANIS VAROUFAKIS: Yes. Well, the first bailout, the first bailout. The second bailout, 100 percent. And the third bailout, which I didn't sign, Amy, it was $85 billion. Of that, precisely zero will go to Greece. So, these are just typical extend-and-pretend loans.

What happened was very simple. In 2010, the Greek state went bankrupt, because it was part of a common currency area, a monetary union, that was simply not fit to the purpose of sustaining the great financial collapse of Wall Street, the city of London, the Frankfurt banks, the French banks, etc., and the Greek banks, and so on and so forth. So, there was a cynical transfer of private sector, private bank losses onto the shoulders of the weakest of taxpayers, the Greeks, knowing that those shoulders were weak, so weak that they wouldn't be able to sustain that burden, and that burden would then be transferred to the shoulders of the German, the Slavic, the French taxpayers. And once they did this, it's like Shakespeare, it's like Macbeth: You commit one crime, then you have to commit a second crime to hide the fact that you committed the first one, and then a third one, and then a fourth one. And the second crime, of course, was the second bailout, because once the first bailout makes whole the bankers, then, within a few months, it becomes abundantly clear that the Greek state cannot sustain that loan. So, a second predatory loan is enforced upon the Greek government in order to pretend that it is making its payments for the first loan, and then a third one, and then a fourth one. And the worst aspect of it is that these loans, which were not loans to Greece, were given, extended, on condition of stringent austerity that shrunk our incomes. So we entered a debt deflationary cycle, a great depression, with no end in sight, and a great depression which sees—has absolutely no chance of a New Deal kind of solution like we had here in the United States in the 1930s, as long as the powers that be in Berlin—we heard the White House spokesman siding himself completely with Berlin—insist that this extending and pretending shall continue.

The International Monetary Fund is demanding additional austerity measures from Greece if it does not hit its budget targets. It's the latest impasse in years of fierce political clashes between Greece and international creditors. We are joined by a man who had a front-row seat to these battles: the former Greek finance minister for the anti-austerity Syriza party, Yanis Varoufakis. In his new book, "And the Weak Suffer What They Must?: Europe's Crisis and America's Economic Future," he describes how he helped lead Greece's battle against European Central bankers and a historic referendum in which Greeks resoundingly voted down austerity. But only days after the "no" vote, he resigned. Varoufakis elaborates on the resignation statement he issued last July, when he wrote, "Soon after the announcement of the referendum results, I was made aware of a certain preference by some Eurogroup participants, and assorted 'partners', for my ... 'absence' from its meetings; an idea that the prime minister judged to be potentially helpful to him in reaching an agreement. For this reason I am leaving the ministry of finance today." He famously said at the time, "I shall wear the creditors' loathing with pride."

NERMEEN SHAIKH: So I want to go to your—a short excerpt from your resignation statement last July, when you famously said, quote, "I shall wear the creditors' loathing with pride." In explaining your decision to leave, you wrote, quote, "Soon after the announcement of the referendum results, I was made aware of a certain preference by some Eurogroup participants, and assorted 'partners', for my 'absence' from its meetings; an idea that the prime minister judged to be potentially helpful to him in reaching an agreement. For this reason I am leaving the ministry of finance today." So could you talk more about the decision, your decision, to resign from the government, and also why Prime Minister Tsipras decided to go against the will that was expressed in the referendum?

YANIS VAROUFAKIS: Well, it's a very sad affair. Let me put it this way. We were elected to say no to the creditors. No to what? Not to an agreement, to an honorable agreement, but no to the extending and pretending, to the continuation of the depression. And the agreement that Tsipras and I had was that we were going to be steadfast in that, no? We would compromise, compromise, compromise, but we will not be compromised on this. We will not give the debt deflationary great depression cycle another spin. And we had agreed amongst ourselves that if the pressure gets too much, we may even have to resign. But we are not going to be the ones that sign on the dotted line of yet another deepening magnification of our country's, of our people's misery and depression.

At some point, the creditors, it became spectacularly clear that they were only interested in the—in a coup d'état, in overthrowing our government. In 1967, we had a coup d'état in Greece using the tanks; now we had a coup d'état using the banks. They closed down the banks to asphyxiate our government. And we put it to the Greek people. We said to them, "This is the ultimatum that we are being given. You decide: yes or no. We recommend no. But if you say yes, then we will make way for a surrender." By the way, I didn't expect them to say no, because they were being terrorized on a daily basis by the media, who were saying to them that if they dare vote no, then Armageddon will happen the next day. And their banks were closed. You had pensioners who had no access to their small bundle of savings. And yet, the magnificent Greek people, on the Sunday of 5th of July, gave us a resounding 62 percent no. Even constituency in the land, even constituencies of the right wing and never voted for us, backed us. On that night, I was levitating with enthusiasm, because the Greek people had energized us.

My prime minister saw things differently. He said to me in his office that night, "It's time to surrender." I spent two or three hours trying to dissuade him. I didn't manage it. He was the prime minister; I was just a finance minister. So I decided to resign and to go back to my apartment and script this letter of resignation. That letter was the hardest text I ever had to script, because, on one hand, I had to register my total, utter, vertical opposition with the prime minister's decision to surrender; on the other hand, I didn't want to write a letter that clashed with my comrade and friend. And I phrased it in such a way as to say that the creditors clearly have an interest in my removal—which is perfectly understandable, because they were simply interested in overthrowing our government, and our determination to say no to another extend-and-pretend loan. The prime minister thinks he's going to get an agreement, and therefore I'm going to make his life easier by removing myself.

Of course, there has been no agreement. What there has been is a complete and utter surrender, and a surrender document which will go down in European history as a very black spot on Europe's democracy. You only have to read the first page of it. It reads like a genuine surrender-to-an-enemy document. And even as we speak, is it not true that even that surrender has not resulted in some kind of agreement? The IMF and Berlin are still at loggerheads on whether they should turn Greece into a stable desert or a constantly declining, miserable, depressed state. This is the difference of opinion between the creditors. And the Greek government, once it surrendered, is simply watching the show of the two elephants tussling, waiting to be told whether we're going to be a desert or an economy in a permanent state of depression.

NERMEEN SHAIKH: Well, an expression that you used—

AMY GOODMAN: Yanis Varoufakis, you talk about austerity as "fiscal waterboarding." Explain.

YANIS VAROUFAKIS: Actually, it's—fiscal waterboarding is something quite separate from austerity. Austerity is a self-defeating process. You cut government spending, you increase taxes in order to balance the other governments' books, but you fail. Why? Because, yes, you reduce government expenditure, the cost of running the government, but on the other hand, the economy shrinks, so tax take is also reduced, and therefore your books don't balance, and then you cut even more, and then national income shrinks even further, and then you have to cut even more. So it's a never-ending downward spiral. That's the problem with austerity.

Fiscal waterboarding is something quite different. It's the predatory relationship, the coercive relationship, between the creditors and the Greek government. In order to push the Greek government into even further austerity, in order to keep pretending that the original program works, what the creditors do is this. They have lent Greece a huge amount of money, and Greece has to make repayments every month, every year—the Greek state. Of course, the Greek state is bankrupt. It cannot make these repayments. So it has to keep borrowing from the creditors to be giving money back to the creditors every month, every second month, to pretend that it is ahead of its repayment schedule. But the creditors, every second month, every third month, bring the Greek state to the state of asphyxiation by refusing the loans which are necessary for the Greek state to repay them, so that the Greek state is not declared to be in default. So they bring the Greek state to the verge of not being able to pay pensions, of not being able to pay the electricity bill in schools, and then—or to have to default to the IMF, to the European Central Bank. Then they, at the last moment—this is waterboarding, isn't it? What is waterboarding? You subject the subject to a process of asphyxiation, and just before death comes, you give the subject a gulp of oxygen, and then you repeat. This is precisely what they're doing. Instead of oxygen, it's liquidity, not to run the Greek state, but to keep giving your torturer money back so that the torturer can carry on torturing you ad infinitum. That's fiscal waterboarding.

NERMEEN SHAIKH: Well, I want to ask about something that you wrote about in your book, And the Weak Suffer What They Must?, about the question of the impact of the financialization of the economy. You called the U.S. economy, in the book, a minotaur. So, could you explain, first of all, what you mean by that, and how U.S. financialization helped lead to the 2008 crash, and whether anything has changed since, in your view?

YANIS VAROUFAKIS: Well, in brief, after the Second World War, the New Deal is in power, initially the Roosevelt administration, then the Truman administration, then even the Eisenhower administration, that accepted the New Deal principle. They designed a global system, a global financial and economic system, which was actually quite remarkable in its design, audacity and rationality, to a large extent. The idea was, we have—we dollarize the whole of the capitalist world. Maybe in Britain they have pounds, in France they have francs, but they are all linked to the dollar. The dollar is the currency of capitalism. And in addition to that, you have the surplus country of the time, which was of course the United States of America, taking part of its surpluses and monetizing, dollarizing Europe and Japan, helping them out, not out of philanthropy, but because they understood that unless you take surpluses from where they're produced to give them to—to channel them, to funnel them to the deficit regions, to create the incomes which are necessary to keep buying American goods, in order to maintain and replenish and recycle the American surpluses, the whole system will no longer be sustainable.

But that system ended with the famous Nixon shock of the 15th of August, 1971. Why? Not because Nixon made a mistake, but because America lost its surpluses. So you can't recycle surpluses if you don't have them. And then we moved to the second phase of postwar global U.S. hegemony, which was exactly the opposite of the first. Instead of recycling its own surpluses—America didn't have surpluses—it was recycling other people's surpluses. And how did it do it? By means of the United States' trade deficit. The trade deficit of the United States, which was ever-expanding, operated as a huge vacuum cleaner that was sucking into the United States the net exports of Japan, of Germany, later China, of Saudi Arabia—oil and so on and so forth. And how was it paying for it? How can you keep expanding your deficit? Well, if you are the United States, you can, as long as you create circumstances that attract the profits of the German firms, the Japanese firms, the Saudis, the Chinese firms, into Wall Street, and you close the circle.

But what happens when you give Wall Street a few billion dollars every 10 minutes to play with? They create instruments—you know, financial derivatives and all those beautiful toys of financialization—to make it really expand exponentially and to create, print their own money, in a sense. That's financialization. And as long as that worked to stabilize a very unstable global capitalism, we had this semblance, this illusion. Remember the great moderation of Ben Bernanke? It was the most immoderate capitalist world you can imagine, but it seemed moderate because you had this recycling. You had capital flowing into Wall Street, constantly paying for the expanding trade deficit of the United States. But the pyramids of financialized money, private money minting, that started on Wall Street, combusted under the weight of their own hubris in 2008. And ever since, the global economy is in disarray.

AMY GOODMAN: Yanis Varoufakis, I wanted to turn to a clip of your conversation that you had this week at the New York Public Library, "LIVE at the NYPL," about the response of economists to the 2008 financial collapse.

NOAM CHOMSKY: One of the more interesting moments in the history of science and scholarship was actually in 2008. For—as you know, for decades, economists had been claiming, with extreme arrogance, that they completely understood how to control and manage an economy. There were fundamental principles, like the efficient market hypothesis, rational expectations. And anyone who didn't accept this was dismissed as a kind of a—some strange kind of moron. The whole system collapsed. The whole intellectual edifice collapsed in a most amazing fashion, and had no effect on the profession.

YANIS VAROUFAKIS: None at all. This is—well, it did have—it had the effect that sometimes, you know, when we're driving on a freeway—and I usually go well above the speed limit—condemn me, if you will—and I get stopped by the police. For the next 20 minutes, I drive below the speed limit. But it doesn't last for more than 20 minutes. Then, after a while, I just go back to where I was. This is exactly like the economics profession. They had a brief moment of—

NOAM CHOMSKY: Some did.

YANIS VAROUFAKIS: Some of them, some. Or at least of being a bit humble and staying—you know, keeping their heads under the parapet for a bit. But then, within 20 minutes, they forgot about it, and they carried on teaching the same rubbish to their students.

AMY GOODMAN: That's the former finance minister of Greece, Yanis Varoufakis, speaking with MIT professor emeritus Noam Chomsky earlier this week at the New York Public Library. We're going to go to break. When we come back, we're going to talk to Professor Yanis Varoufakis about the refugee crisis, about why he thinks Greece—Germany is doing this to Greece, and what does France have to do with it, and more about his new book. It's called And the Weak Suffer What They Must?: Europe's Crisis and America's Economic Future. We'll be back with him in a moment.

2016-02-25 Psychic Edgar Cayce Predicted Putin Would Save Us From World War III

by Sean Adl-Tabatabai in Conspiracies

<http://yournewswire.com/psychic-edgar-cayce-predicted-putin-would-save-world-from-ww3/>

One of the world's most famous psychics, Edgar Cayce, predicted that Russian President Vladimir Putin would be a "force of light" in preventing World War III from occurring amid the global turmoil we see today.

His predictions were made over 80 years ago in a series of "World Affairs Readings" about the future of world finance, world leadership, collective spirituality, and the important role Russia would play on the world's stage.

Cayce referred to Russia as being "the thorn in the side of the financial powers" who would try to organise themselves against the good of humanity in a post WWII world.

Wakingtimes.com reports:

When asked in 1932 about political and economic trends in Europe Cayce zeroed in on Russia:

Europe is as a house broken up. Some years ago there was the experience of a mighty peoples being overridden for the gratification and satisfaction of a few, irrespective of any other man's right. That peoples are going through the experience of being born again, and is the thorn in the flesh to many a political and financial nation in Europe, in the world... Q. What is the name of that nation referred to? A. Russia! (3976-8)" [Source]

70 years after the defeat of the Axis powers, Russia has been reborn, but the rest of the world is now largely under the thumb of the Western globalist banking cartel. This cartel is organized as the IMF, the World Bank, the Bank for International Settlements, and the global network of central banks, reserve banks, development banks, and investment banks that hold the world's elected governments in perpetual receivership and the world's people in bondage to mathematically impossible to pay debt.

Present Day on the Edge of the Knife

In 2013 the US was attempting to invade Syria under obviously false pretenses. Putin prevented US involvement by threatening to intervene militarily in a conflict that at that time had not yet devolved unto the horrid conditions we see today.

With the deliberate destruction of Ukraine by the George Soros funded color-revolution destabilization team then the advances of the IMF to debt-conquer Ukraine with tens of billions of dollars in forced development loans, Putin's Russia emerged as the singular force capable of checking the banking cabal's global advance, and is refusing to allow Ukraine and Crimea to fall into the hands of Western backed forces.

The grand chessboard that is the Middle East is ablaze, and the world is on a razor's edge, caught between the very real possibility of escalation to third world war and the seemingly distant hope of world leaders suddenly finding sanity and de-escalating the situation.

Cayce spoke of Russia's role as being the 'hope of the world' in a coming time such as this:

"In Russia there comes the hope of the world, not as that sometimes termed of the communistic, or Bolshevik, no; but freedom, freedom! That each man will live for his fellow man! The principle has been born. It will take years for it to be crystallised, but out of Russia comes again the hope of the world."

(Edgar Cayce, 1944, No. 3976-29)

As events in Syria and Iraq have become more convoluted and devastating for people in the region, the Islamic State (ISIS) has been on a campaign of shock and awe, reigning bloody terror on Christians, Syrians, Kurds, moderate Muslims, Shia Muslims, and anyone in between. ISIS, as everyone apparently knows, is funded and supplied weaponry by the US and Israel as a means of indirectly toppling the Assad regime in Syria.

As the US and its allies pretend like they are not responsible for ISIS and act like they are powerless to stop ISIS, Putin has calmly told the world in no uncertain terms the truth about the West's support for ISIS and the other mercenary factions which have completely destroyed Syria, already killed hundreds of thousands of people, if not millions, and forcing the engineered refugee crisis on Europe, expanding the crisis now into Macedonia.

In this video Vladimir Putin cogently explains the Syria situation with striking clarity:

Who Created ISIS?

The Spiritual Development and Leadership of Russia

Even before WWII, Cayce appears to have foreseen the need for Russia to evolve spiritually in some manner so that it would be able to rise in opposition to the decaying moral values of the capitalist West and play its part as the great hope of the world.

Cayce was asked, "What should be the attitude of so called capitalist nations toward Russia?"

On Russia's religious development will come the greater hope of the world. Then that one, or group, that is the closer in its relationships, may fare the better in the gradual changes and final settlement of conditions as to the rule of the world. (3976-10)

Six months later, additional information was presented which helped to clarify this earlier prediction.

Out of Russia, you see, there may come that which may be the basis of a more world wide religious thought or trend... (3976-12)

When Hugh Lynn Cayce asked about the Russian situation in June 1938, he was told:

A new understanding has and will come to a troubled people. Here, because of the yoke of oppression, because of the self indulgences, has arisen another extreme. Only when there is freedom of speech, the right to worship according to the dictates of the conscience—until these come about, still turmoils will be within. (3976-19) [Source]

Essentially Cayce appears to be referring to Russia after the trials under Soviet rule and the collapse of the Soviet Union, as well as the need for the world to return to humanistic values in order to free itself from the oppression of the Zionist cartels which have been organizing against the human race for centuries.

Cayce is saying that some sort of much needed spiritual leadership will come from Russia in this time, some kind of attitude that will make it possible for a transition of this calibre to occur without having to experience the guaranteed destruction of any World War III.

Putin is at best no saint, and there is no underestimating the potential for deception by any nationalistic organization, but in a survey of the major players on the field at the moment, when the human race is teetering on a razor sharp knife's edge, Putin appears to be bringing something to the table that other world leaders aren't wielding... common sense.

And what would spiritual leadership look like in a world gone mad, anyhow? At first it would appear as common sense. Of course.

"Aristotle even goes as far as to say that common sense is where consciousness originates. So if a society is lacking in common sense, and there's little to no conscience, morality, empathy, consciousness, creativity, taste, discernment or love, how does one propose to govern such a population?" [Source]

Putin's actions in Syria makes the most common sense, among the available options. Already he has likely prevented the invasion of Syria by Turkey, checking President Erdogan at the border, and he has severely disrupted the operations of ISIS. Both are wins for the cause of common sense in an arena of treachery.

Did Edgar Cayce somehow know that Russia would take the common sense gap between spiritual leadership and the guaranteed destruction of World War III which is being engineered by the West?

Speaking on the current state of US and Russia relations at a recent summit, Putin said, regarding America:

"You must rise above the endless desire to dominate. You must stop acting out of imperialistic ambitions. Do not poison the minds of millions of people; like there can be no other way but imperialistic politics." –Vladimir Putin

Putin is directing our attention to the 800 pound gorilla in the room that no one else seems willing to talk about: America and the West no longer have any moral superiority in the world.

Cayce also made comments about America's future moral decay:

In the final World Affairs reading given on June 22, 1944, less than six months before Edgar's death, he addresses the spirit and "the sin of America."

What is the spirit of America? Most individuals proudly boast "freedom." Freedom of what? When ye bind men's hearts and minds through various ways and manners, does it give them freedom of speech? Freedom of worship? Freedom from want?...In the application of these principles...America may boast, but rather is that principle being forgotten... and that is the sin of America. (3976-29) Reading 3975-15, given on January

Conclusion

Did Edgar Cayce foresee Putin's interfering role in the Western cabals plan to overtake the world through financial domination, political destabilization, and all out world war, order out of chaos?

Cayce also predicted the possibility of a THIRD World War. He spoke of strifes arising..."in Libya, and in Egypt, in Ankara, and in Syria; through the straits around those areas above the Persian Gulf." [Source]

Whether or not you believe in the power of the human mind to connect with Source and withdraw information about the future, things are lining up in such a way that Cayce's prophecies regarding Russia are proving quite prescient now, giving us a clue that at least we shouldn't hold on too tightly to any preconceived notions about what will happen in coming years.

And in a vacuum of any common sense or humanistic leadership from the present powers that be, why not look to a revered psychic for direction? In the end, though, all we have from Cayce is really just the inspiration to action we get from looking into his past for clues and hope about our future. If you're concerned about the direction things are taking, let Cayce's words rouse you to action.

May 2016 - Finding the Way, Finding the Words

Carl Boudreau

Monday, 25 April 2016

Recap

Currently, the dominant background aspect is a mutable T-square. It took shape in the heavens in the last months of 2015. Essentially, the T-square has lowered everyone's tolerance for self-serving ideological hype. It puts a premium on detail, accuracy and down to earth service.

March

The total solar eclipse in March gave the mutable T-square teeth. It began penalizing those who ignored its mandate and rewarding those who obeyed it. This eclipse also weakened our ties to the past, making space for reform and innovation.

April

April brought mixed vibes. There were four major planetary retrogrades. These caused interruptions, disruptions and delays across a broad range of processes and projects with all the stress and confusion that implies.

The Upside of Retrogrades

But retrogrades also allow us to catch up, update, revise and renovate. Disruptive as they can be on the surface, retrogrades introduce flexibility and deep, creative insight.

April's Kite

Beneath the turmoil caused by the retrogrades, a kite formation drew the surface disorder into constructive channels. At a deeper level, the kite synergized, coordinated, synchronized the long-term, behind the scenes, below the surface transformations supported by the retrograde motion. A new foundation is being built where few can see it beneath the surface turmoil. April's chart will quietly support the efforts of those heeding the T-square's message. It will impede those ignoring its demands for honesty, integrity and respect for the truth.

May's Outlook

May will be like April, but better. Two planets, Mercury and Jupiter will return to forward motion. A return to forward motion brings relief in virtually all affected areas.

Saturn and Pluto will quietly continue their retrogrades, making no new waves.

Neptune will be preparing for its mid-June retrograde. Neptune retrogrades provide relief from ideological rigidity, among other things, and generally weaken attachments of all kinds, making new attachments possible.

In May, a kite formation will steadfastly support efforts that are in accord with the thrust of the mutable T-Square. It will continue the quiet, behind the scenes task of creating the future.

Some of May's Details

Mercury stationary/direct, May 22 UT

The Mercury retrograde cycle, which began April 28th UT, will play out primarily in May. It will produce the usual delays, postponements and cancellations and such, all the things typical of Mercury retrogrades.

By all accounts, though, the turmoil and confusion of April were such that even with the Mercury retrograde, May will be a noticeable improvement over April.

Besides, the inconvenient effects of a retrograde fade before it ends. As May progresses, our lives will become progressively more ordered and manageable.

Jupiter will turn direct on May 9th UT.

You'll recall that the power of Jupiter, the wealth creating planet, has been impaired since it entered Virgo. When Jupiter retrograded in January, the level of Jupiter's impairment reached critical levels.

At the January retrograde, slowly improving, painstakingly achieved economic gains abruptly vanished. We lost economic momentum. The recent stock market downturn began.

Things have already begun picking up, though, as Jupiter approached the end of its retrograde. When Jupiter turns forward in May, we should all feel relief as the economy regains traction.

Jupiter's retrograde motion only accounted for part of its impairment, though. Jupiter will remain impaired after it moves forward. But its forward motion should still bring very noticeable improvement. It will take us out of the discomfort zone.

Jupiter will also square Saturn on May 9th. Saturn is still retrograde in Sagittarius.

In my view, Jupiter's exact square to retrograde Saturn as it turns direct underlines and renews the T-square's demand for economic policies based on sound reasoning and a commitment to the general good.

Pluto continues retrograde in Capricorn.

Jupiter will try to resume its active work with Pluto. Wealth producers will pressure governments to make changes in economic and financial areas. Unable to exercise power while Pluto retrogrades, however, governments can only dig deeper, reexamining the old issues and reconsidering options.

Look to Your Personal Resources

With governments unable to exercise power because of retrograde Pluto, people might seek legislative relief, regulatory changes or court intervention. However, with Saturn retrograde, such help will be slow in coming.

The clarifications and rectifications taking place during Saturn's retrograde won't permit much in the way of legal, regulatory or legislative action.

Everyone will have to look deeper into their own affairs to see if their grievances really need official intervention. And deeper into their personal resources to see if they can solve them on their own.

Neptune is preparing to retrograde in June.

People will begin rethinking their beliefs. Views will become fluid and changeable enough to speed formation of a new consensus.

May's Kite

May, like April, will benefit from a kite formation. May's kite will continue to help resolve the innumerable conflicts being generated by the mutable T-square. It will also continue to facilitate the deep background work being done in so many areas by so many planets in May.

A Closer Look at May 9th - Mercury Transits the Sun, Etc. This Will Change Everything
Something very special will take place in May. Essentially, several rather important astrological events will occur within a relatively brief time on May 9th UT. They point to significant developments in the realm of Mercury.

- Retrograde Mercury will transit, or eclipse, the Sun. (It does so 13 or 14 times per century.)
- Jupiter will be stationary/direct in Virgo (ruled by Mercury) during Mercury's transit.
- The Moon will be Void of Course in Gemini (sign ruled by Mercury) during both events.
- Mercury will trine the North Node in Virgo exactly close to Jupiter's station.

Suffice it to say that Mercury's influence will be very, very strong at the moment of Jupiter's station. It will also be in the midst of an extraordinary transit of the Sun.

Let me just share what I make of this.

The Big Shift to Mutable Rhetoric

The times are now dominated by mutable energies. However, our shared language is still dominated by patterns established in the era of cardinal and fixed energies.

The bright, sharp language of cardinal and fixed rhetoric is ill-suited to the subtle, nuanced ideas inspired by mutable energy.

The events of May 9th will hasten the end of our reliance on the outdated language of cardinal and fixed energies.

As Mercury transits, or eclipses, the Sun, it will drive the values of the mutable T-square deep into the fabric of mass communication, causing a shift to more mutable language patterns. People will find themselves newly empowered by a language better suited to their new mutable mode of thinking and feeling.

We can look forward to facing the challenges of the time ahead with a language that suits what we are thinking and experiencing and, thus, enhances our communication. Things are challenging enough without a language that fights us whenever we try to speak. People with a strong Gemini, Virgo, or Mercury will find themselves benefitting most from this major shift in mass consciousness.
