HARD NEWS

T: their paypal was hacked by a black op; KOS has assigned #15, a Wingmaker at 38 levels about the President, is to keep an eye on things

- Thanks for all help up to now; would very much appreciate some extra blessings!

T: the DNC talking about going after Bernie: [SEE BELOW]
2016-07-22 Leaked DNC emails reveal secret plans to take on Sanders

R: Stevie Wonder called R for 2 minutes! I know what you know, Lord Rama: it's all about Michelle! Michelle Obama is the one! You just watch and see

T: watching Steve Colbert who was at the RNC convention – came on his show very late.

- The time frames are all wonky! Steve is very, very funny!
- It was over ½ hour into the late, late show with James Corden
- After Colbert, he had E. Warren

R: Orange Hitler: enough talk about the man in Orange!

T: Once Colbert was over, and lo and behold was listening: Michelle was on air, together with a James Corden; they did the songs for educating girls, Michelle's global project.

- Just an amazing time to be alive! And it will be more than we can possibly fathom, just to keep up with it.

R: Natasha

- about how Nibiru is continuing to affect earth and the 9th planet [Nemesis], & how there are actual NASA scientists coming forward to talk about this – they are extremely worried about the effects of Nibiru and what is happening across the solar system with the mystery planet; some think it might be “the Dysen Sphere” - a shield that is around the planet and cloaks the planet:
  - there was an episode on Star Trek about this idea: the technology is millions of years ahead of what we have now - it is magnetic pulse waves that go across the solar system and galaxy and affect everything –
- asked R to put his hand on her pad – immediately, he got a tingle and the energy went through his palm chakra, up his arm and into his heart chakra – and he got an electric blue light flash in his 3rd eye – reminds him of the movie “Lucy” - Scarlett Johansen, literally becomes a goddess and starts using all her brain: an intense movie – Morgan Freeman also in it
  - what he experienced was the energy to his heart chakra and then the electric blue light in his 3rd eye, then seeing geometric images at light speed: he is integrating new technologies, new wisdom being downloaded.

- all kinds of technologies are coming forth that are completely intelligent; not a bad thing
- at the same time as they want to play with dark technologies, there are also a great healing coming about with all of this
- Netasha talked of vets coming forward finding ways to get in touch with Netasha, Snowden, Scahill, because they have the wisdom to go to the same level of wisdom that Snowden has to go behind the scenes: all kinds of good things coming forth
  - vets coming out of the woodwork who have been mercenaries, soldiers of Fortune – aka Blackwater are having to deal with with what is happening: their heart chakras & DNA strands are opening by themselves; these vets and other life forms who were created to be super soldiers, killing machines, are now developing a conscience; as the heart opens, they have to deal with what they did in Iraq, Afghanistan – and it's OMG! What did I do?
  - now is the time to heal it – we are in the magic moment – it's not 2016 – we are moving into 2017
  - As Harmonic Convergence comes around again [August!] , we are moving into 2018 – which is not what the calendars are telling us
- this is the time for full disclosure on a massive scale – the only thing holding it back is duct tape, baling wire, et cet - Full disclosure cannot be stopped
  - Netasha wanted to share this:
    - Obama, Xi and Putin have been meeting continuously; when the word is given behind closed doors, who is going to pick up the mike and say it: could be all 3 together, sharing how we go from the stone age to Star Trek.
    - The new movie, Star Trek: Beyond is coming out: Spock and Kirk get to meet a different culture, race of beings – about saving a race and the ramifications on earth.

Sam Seder: laid it out about Orange Hitler and his plans to control the earth: we are literally watching the next Hitler come into power, with all the sheeple in the arena – the guy who owns the arena owns Quicken Loans

- It's a program for computer software, also a corporation – the software allows them to watch!
- We think we have internet neutrality and we don't. Not a nice being – a secret bankster / gangster

T: Medea Benjamin was at the Republican convention - had a hand-made cloth sign and she had read the speech and when he went to the part about building a wall, she opened up the sign - "build bridges, not walls!" - his goons went beserk!

T: a lot of people have been falling asleep over the political process and just when you fall asleep, Hillary announces Tim Kaine as her running mate

R: Michael Moore says he's as boring as watching paint peel on your wall; but behind the scenes, he's a dirt ball and a half

- Tim Kaine was elected with the help of Hillary and Bill
- He had a word with the supreme court and the former Gov McDonald got off the charges and from his crimes.
- He got help to get the Senate position

R: talks of the parties there used to be: mix and match sex parties, with piles and piles of crack cocaine on the tables as well

T: Tim is completely pro the TPP; Hillary's people forced that topic off the table!

- Also for complete deregulation of all banking laws: get rid of the consumer protection agency!! Contrary to the cuddling up to Bernie that HRC has been doing & saying we need to regulate the banks! Not under her watch!

- Also fracking was taken off the table, due to being beholden to the oil companies, the Arab countries and Wall Street
- also taken off the table: ending apartheid in Israel and Palestine – Hillary is against this: apartheid reigns under Hillary's watch – her overlord is Netanyahu so apartheid will not be changed
- as for the Republicans: Pence makes Palen look like a balloon fest: he will do all the dirty work – even though people thought the VP s were appendages – but they can get things done behind the scenes.
- another outrageous shooting in Munich: 8 dead – Munich is a super, open city [via DW News] and a friendly city – friends living in north of Munich are surprised – have never had much crime – one of the biggest shopping malls in Germany, with thousands of people present – there is one great big street in front of the mall which was totally packed. Also a park there – Olympic Park with a festival to take place there.
  - The police completely shut down the centre of Munich; all the transportation systems were closed while they looked for the attackers;
  - As T watched this, she began to wonder if the attackers have been cloned and made to be emotionless ? What is going on which is like a huge rash!

CONFERENCE CALL

- about the Mayan calender and resonance of the heart – the Harmonic Convergence - every single year, in August, we move another year ahead. 2016 is 2017 and becomes 2018 on Aug 18
- Even though it looks like you're in a prehistoric place and relatives think nothing is happening – that is not so: R says Morpheus said to Neo that he was not exactly what the date is any more

R: all kinds of sites connected with social sites talking about, showing decloakings

Ross: RT posted – about a large craft appearing about NYC

Ross: Rama has been seeing elemental folks – why don't we see them?

R: As you find stuff about UFOs, send to Penny

T: Cheryl has stopped sending stuff; she's focussing on her own work

- the word is focus – in 20-30 minutes, Rama can be in a different environment - he cannot see these elementals unless he is in an off-the-wayside place

R: he's talking about a mtn chain that is part of the Rocky Mtn chain – the mtns near Santa Fe is the anchor point for the entire Ashtar Command

- seeing the violet light; the dimensions are coming in
- being in a wilderness area helps – talks of the Santa Domingo Pueblo - the opposite side – of this pueblo is another pueblo where lady Di landed

Ross: what about those who are not Rama? He has spent some time in the outside world being quiet and not seen anything

T: Rama's focus is very unique – he is Ashtar's son who is planning to take Ashtar's chair

- yet part of Ross' ancestral lineage that is very unique too: his ancestor met St Germain as he signed the Declaration of Independence
  - as Sir Francis Bacon, St G never died – just moved between worlds
- Can take prana yama yoga to raise your vibrations

Ro: taking tai chi right now; has a friend who has taught meditation

T: discusses the level of awareness of whomever is doing the teaching: you need to be able to say “I want to do yoga and work with elements beyond the physical”

- Tai Chi might be slow to begin with, but at the master level can kill – need to have the consciousness to go with it.

RO: his friend has been doing this for 10 years.

- George Read is the one who signed the Dec of Independence

T: a page from an elder in the Moorish science temple [not completed]

Ro: George Read had cold feet about signing it

T: all of them did: the minute they signed it, they were considered treasonists and were on a hit list by the British crown: all died in a short time; in the end, the crown took everything

- Jefferson had and he died a total pauper.
- St Germain said no one said this would be easy; sign it and I will make sure your descendents will see it done.

RO: he wants to see the beings with his own eyes . . .

T: some testing you need to do

Ro: and Thomas is one of his names!

T: Doubting Thomas wanted to put his hand in the side of the christ - they had an experience when they lived at Shield and Sherula's when she said she'd see it when she saw it – T & R were shocked to hear her say this, as she was one of the gardeners on the ship of 144,000

Carlton:

T: no longer safe to walk while being black in Atlanta? Is this true? There are way more cops than there used to be

C: not doubting that; he just hasn't had the experiences of that and also things going on there that are going on elsewhere

- brings up Ross's point about 1 person's experience with different life forms vs another's:
- many are curious about UFOs; some people have spiritual guides but know nothing about them

T: another discipline: train yourself in remote viewing – a specific outcome to see other things

C: some in regular contact with ancestors, or the plant kingdom or the animal kingdom – to him, he feels that we have to keep our hearts open, continue to cleanse self and the experiences relevant to our journey will become clear – maybe a leprechaun

RO: in constant telepathic contact with a pashcat

Ca: before he came across these calls, knew a couple of folks in Atlanta that had shows: when people say follow me and not the voice within – there's a problem.

- He has spent many nights looking up there – dimensionally speaking, he has not had any experience with what Ross has. It's coming and he will have experiences that others might not have

T: used to wonder too when she was in her 20s, 30s – this is not usual what happened to her – running into a wiccan society and those involved with ET s and UFOs – was in esoteric astrology classes at the age of 13!

- When we chose to come in in white skin, we choose to take on the karma to clear up the universal karma, whether our families had anything to do with it or not.
  - T has about 1/8 of Potawatami in her via her father:
  - T has also learned a lot through her children – one got more into the side of alcohol – he could not touch alcohol – no enzymes in his liver to fight this. At a soul level, he chose Tara and so he chose that condition as well
- Going back to Ross' story: the chances of the ancestor having slaves are very, every high -
RO: another ancestor had slaves, even if Reid ancestor didn't
T: another relative is helping with that karma – try and find out more about
  - CANNOT TRUST WIKIPEDIA; IT'S OVERSIGHTED BY THE BUSHES

R: asks for the spelling of the name – it's READ- George Read.

T: all kinds of material coming out

Ro: was a congressman from Delaware

T: Jefferson was from Virginia but he sold slaves in the north! You will never find this in Wikipedia:
– the dirty dog of Christopher Columbus – the italian one –

Ra: He and his sponsors were actually looking for gold and the 7 cities of Eldorado for the gold,

- the gold was the alchemical gold, the monoatomic gold that could make you immortal
- the mayan calendar goes back to 1519 – Emperor Montezuma already knew the prophecies of the golden helmeted ones coming to the planet; Cortez took advantage of the prophecies and said he was Quetzecatl; Montezuma could have kicked their asses, but he was following the prophecies

T: when the dirt ball Coumbus [not complete]

- need to know how to open the doors in the pyramids – could not open them unless your consciousness was high -
- instead of finding the gold, they found the black women who were very lovely, and used them as slaves. There is tribe called the Olmec – 10-12' tall, black and beautiful – don't mess with them – these ones go back 50 – 100,000 years
- they were so tall because they are galactic in their origins and came that way

T: there are people who have something wrong with their spines and they keep on growing – most of these kinds of folks end up dying.

- Sirius A and B, andromeda
- the tall whites are mostly from Tauceti – hang out in the nordic areas – in the northern areas: Anastasia has been here for 450 billion years: in the higher altitudes of northern Siberia in her bare skin.

T: Tara has not seen a unicorn in the physical, but has all the books

R: has not seen a unicorn yet – consciousness

Ro: they are mostly in Kilimanjaro

T: They are all over the world – she is reading bits from the unicorn books Friday and Sat nights;

- the writer has filmed them EVERYWHERE – mountain unicorns are different from others

Ro:

T: there was one black one – the picture he took didn't turn out; he realized he forgot to ask permission to film it

Ross: Robert Vavra – writer about unicorns

T: one of the books she has: Robert was the photographer for National Geographic – he had an experience which raised his awareness and so he was able to see them

Ca: the National Geographic channel owned by Fox News

ca: Quicken Loans is owned by Dan Gilberts – based out of Detroit; he owns inner centre property in Detroit, and owns the Cleveland Cavaliers basketball – he's liked in Detroit – quicken

Loans was located in suburban Detroit, moved them downtown and helped enliven the downtown area

T: not nice behind the scenes, is what Rama has heard: has made deals with Trump

Ca: the conservative talk show – someone making a heil hitler sign on TV

Ro: and Alex Jones busting in on Young Turks – almost a fist fight!

T & R: saw The Voice, intro song – one insert: Jill Stein came on Fox news, ripped them a new one!

- Yes, she is making herself known! Yet all roads lead to the transformation of this planet and there is no way the forces of light can be bought
- Mother still says they won't have to kill people, there are many who want to take themselves out. The planet is ascending and the ascension process is making a statement that the energy coming in is so powerful and and that 3D has been deleted – have to keep your head in clouds and feet on the ground

Ro: is that why we're seeing all the killings every other day?

Ca: it seems like what is going on – old energies dying out, and they are really turning up the killings all over the world in a short period of time – it all was Trump consciousness to be in the ascendent -

T: that is one of many things going on: they have bitten off more than they thought they could chew: – they planned from 1980 for this time now; have killed 2 billion since then – now the underground bases have been shut down so they cannot do their dirty work out of sight, and that is why we're seeing it above ground

- the comedian was asking Jon Stewart: why did you resign from your job in Egypt – he's not a democratic person: he executed 800 people in a few months with no due process – it is outrageous but they are desperate – the Chilcott Report: indicted Tony Blair

Ro: did they retell the story of Blair, Bush ?

R: he believes that the 3 of them being taken up in public is on the menu – all them: Rice, Gonzales and the others are still wandering around free: only a matter of time before they are picked up

T: Clinton is still the real Clinton, an original

R: we get to see these ones being hauled off, crying their eyes out

T: yes, she's a lookalike - is not the same person – they did make a clone from the original of HRC. They could not make a clone of Saddam because they could not get a sample of his DNA – he lived underground and had 10s of thousands of photos of all the criminals having sex, orgies etc; he had the goods on them and when he said he needed his exorbitant sum, he got it

RA: there were real Annunaki life forms, and live scorpions

T: Yes, Saddam is on a star ship awaiting trial, along with Hitler and Osama the look-alike, as Tim Osborne ended up dying in a Minnesota hospital

CA: as we look to next week and the DNC – everyone expecting everything; what [not complete]

Ra: Debbie Wasserman Schultz and the DNC will completely trash Bernie – and he will create a floor [vote?] and it will get notices and people will have to deal with it

T: there is a picture of Hillary and she don't look pretty!

CA: the latest wikileaks will play a role?

Ro: an huge number were released today

T: send it to them! [the news item and the e-mails]

In the Light of the Most Radiant One, and in the Office of the Christ and only in the Office of the Christ, we invoke the loving energies of St Germain and the Violet Flame.

Greetings, Children of Ra!

- Indeed, we are in a new moment of consciousness. It is so much great joy transpiring in the midst of watching the great clash of civilizations, as one old Empire is on its way to the boneyard and, in the midst, a new civilization is taking place, one of peace and love, harmony balance, joy, ecstasy.
    - We have heaven on earth right now; there are moments in this story, on this beloved blue green sphere of living love, living light - there is so much ecstasy happening as the flora and the fauna are living in harmony, respecting all life.
    - This is happening more and more: Venus Project coming into manifestation in spite of whatever may be going on. It is not so much about affluenza, but how we can influence our story, as we are co-creating a new story, her story, the return of the black goddess, the black madonna
  - Now is the time; enough time has passed. The black nobility are among us; we see them sitting in the White House. Contrary to the belief structures of the old timelines, these two represent the frequencies of the return of these ones called the Aboriginal Moabite Nation.
    - This story is so big, and we all have a piece to play in it
    - It is in the forefront at the moment about the people who come from the black land, Kennet – her land, Egypt. What is transpiring at the moment as the goddess rising to the occasion with the life forms that are out of balance.
    - It is like in the movie called Koyaanisqatsi, the Hopi word for “life out of balance”. ***
      - We are watching it – for the moment, Orange Hitler taking the gauntlet and saying “I am the cop on the beat that will bring you law and order!”
    - it is a sad commentary on the effects of mind control and the issues of her wayward children; yes, they are Her children who played around on the dark side and fell and have not chosen to respond to the call of love – yet their so-called soldiers of fortune, androids, are responding to the call of love and saying “I will not longer kill for you, Black Wolf. Enough. We want love; we want peace, now is the time.”
  - These moments as we are watching the ones on the front lines - it is when front lawns, sidewalks in front of our homes, become the front lines.
    - It is that they have been asked to show up and they come in now. She is speaking of her various sisters, brothers, who are decloaking and letting us know that they are here and come in peace. In many places on the planet, they are landing, having contact with all of us.
  - It is the How of it: how we change this story in the moment because we are at such a critical juncture in the timelines
    - the need of the hour brings it to the forefront of the discussion: how we can live in peace and harmony without . . . what she is seeing with good men, good women who only want to take care of their loved ones yet, because of something Bernie has addressed, called “inequality”, they compromise, take a lesser paying job, do what they do to cover the bases.
    - She is saying: as the hour of need arises, they are here, making their presence known and we're watching the self-appointed global elite, as they call themselves, freak out in so many ways because their twilight has come.
- T: was pretty shocked when the Hollande gov't took the footage from what happened in Nice and destroyed it; they are caught with their pants down here. Being said on RT that it was unconscionable that they let a big truck like that get past the barriers to the promenade.

M/A: with all due respect, the family Rothschild holds no weight any more on this planet.

T: Is Hollande part of the French Rothschild plan?

M/A: Yes. Baron von Rothschild, Nicholas Rothschild, the rest, the blonde bombshell who hangs with the Clintons: they will all be taking a little ride with her. They have to deal with the grander story, and she does mean in the moment. Already we are watching the various conflicts that don't get talked about, yet do get discussed like Hans ?, Jimmy Church & others, speaking about how we have been fired upon - unprovoked attacks against their craft

- and, with all due respect, it is not US airspace or Russia's Airspace or China's airspace: they come like the wind. "The answer, my friend, is blowin' in the wind." How it gets played out in the moment is . . .

T: brings up the final song from the RN convention "You can't always get what you want" - the Rolling stones version: it would be interesting if they took the lesson from that song! The lesson they are upcoming to get is not what they are expecting

M/A: they don't always get what you want - T: but you get what you need!

M/A: what her children need is a visit to the palaces of King Dracos and Princess Ardala to deal with the crimes that have gon one long before Pangea sank: that is how far back the stories go back - Millions of years and then some - maybe even trillions of years if you want to give it a number.

T: they looked up the various [geological] ages in the dictionary with Richard: there are rocks all over the planet that are trillions & trillions of years old.

M/A: the story is not a new one: it is about how we made a conscious commitment in righteousness and love that we would see to it that the beloved blue green marble called Gaia/ Vyamus will rise and ascend to be the shining star called Terra Nova, Tita Lacoria, the Diamond One. We are here to see to it that that is the accomplishment of the hour -

- all of us here, within ear shot, are the ones being called to clarion active duty and this is no small task
- there are 7 billion plus of us on this beloved planet; many of us have already tipped the scales - the morphogenic field has kicked in: it is called love - the vibratory frequencies of the magnetic pulsar waves are what is driving this story - cannot interfere with these sideral technologies; they are part of the nature of how we ascend in these temples of living goddess/god
- And right now the answers ARE blowing in the wind: 30 trillion + cells in these temples are saying "I am rising to the occasion and transforming from within" - and as we know RNA and DNA can change its shape, change its lattice structure, with thought form energy - it's already happening and it can't be stopped
- Her wayward children know it and they know that we are the progenitors who take up the gauntlet after they leave, yet they want to burn their bridges.

T: we are already taking up the gauntlet whether they are gone or not, and it is an upward trek

M/A: Yes, it is up hill; we go a few steps and we stop and take some breaths and then we go a few more steps, and it may seem like we are crawling like a snail -

- yet we are moving at such quantum light speed - we have no idea, and our temples, our bodies are going through it and you feel like a dead rat, like this one, and there are times when you feel like Metatron and you can take on the universe.
- And it is simply as Master Obywan described: it's about your point of view. Change your point of view! Change your point of view, perspective and you get a whole new slice of reality and the angle is not what you saw before. Shift the story even further . . .
- This is what is happening with the millenials, the prophets, all the players in the story - even the ones as she has said - the super soldiers who have developed heart
  - it is a bit like if you saw the movie The Wolverine - Logan has to look at his ghosts from his past, what he did with his brother Victor, and the issues about how this story evolves into what we are forming right now – not a comic book, it is real

- it's called the Justice League of Planet Earth and all the legendary folks are part of it, M/A are part of it; it is how the story gets told. Lord Zoroaster and the wisdom that he brings; Lord Melchoir, the others who came and said to Lord Sananda: "We got this one; be meeting you along the path!"

- At this time, what is transpiring – this whole history reading into the moment, Justice League of Planet Earth, is evolving into the next step.
  - As we are handed the gauntlet in the moment and how we take it and use it in the wisdom of what we're being given right now – the keys to the local Universe of Nebadon
  - this piece of this story is so big; there are so many teachers, masters who want to participate with their slice of how they woke up and got to the next level.
  - As we hear their wisdom and their sharing, it helps us in our path to take what they have brought - the darshan - and drink of that nectar of Lord Krishna's sacred drink and it will bring us the soma that instantly wakes us up – soma is the fluid in the pineal, pituitary, hypothalamus - as you take this substance and dry it , it becomes a white powder that looks like white gold

T: it's from the upper Himalayas

M/A: the monkeys in the caves

T: They are not monkeys, they are sasquatch – they are humans

M/A: Excuse her: there are some snow monkeys who hang out with the sasquatch people and they all join together and eat the soma

T: she knows they are not monkeys; they are humans

M/A: Thank you - that piece of the story is our soma . . .

T: It's like lichen that grows inside the cave

M/A: it's like a form of algae that is dry but still grows

T: it is a phenomenon – because it's like there's 25 feet of snow everywhere but there is a subclimate inside the caves

- M/A:
- and this has to do with the life forms, whether they are animal, vegetable or mineral – they did not come from earth, they came on the solar winds and the limbs of the solar flares, the star clouds that brought that brought the spores and goe pulled by a gravitational field and floated down to the planet and sprouted and the people came and partook of the spores and woke up to the wisdom of how to build star ships.
  - This story is written on the walls of the Giza pyramid of Khofu and Cheops and within the Halls of Eecords Master Serapis Bay is in charge of – this whole piece of this is in our midst now.
    - What we are experiencing, whether we know it or not, or believe it or not: our crown chakras are being split wide open right now, not by an axe but by a fairy lord named Tinker Bell who comes with her wand and says "Tag; you're it; do the magic that you must do: you have the wisdom of a creator god – use it and use it wisely"
    - now is the time; we have the blueprints . . .

T: It's overwhelming Mother – there is so much activity on every plane of existence

M/A: It's like it's never been before – the halls of Records are wide open

- as LM Cheryl says on the calls: as you come to visit us in the ashrams and the great learning centres and on the ships, we will help you get to the next level; we only need to ask
- they heard the call so are responding; Gaia/Vywamus has lit the beacons, the Riders of Rohan have arrived with the councils of Gandor:
- let the games begin and, in the same breath, it is only about peace and love

She passes the talking stick!

M/A: she's not a legal scholar; she's a goddess who comes with the ankh and bestows upon us the wisdom of eternal life if we can handle the frequencies of 100 trillion suns in this nano second: it is about waking up to who we are and all that we are

T: a lot of us in different ways focus on various things like higher sense perception or hearing voices or bringing through sounds – clair audience, clair voyance, clair sentience
Let's not to be attached to anything in particular – the more we open our field, the more there is that can happen.

M/A: all the gifts, the abilities of the avengers, the x men, the justice league, are in our midst – it is not just that the stories are being told: they are based in facts. ## Fighting Islamophobia and Education Apartheid: Lamis Deek and Fahd Ahmed & Chicago Teachers

<http://www.lauraflanders.com/?video=X95tDrUFKyI>

What is it about Palestine, Islamophobia, and anti-Arab racism that even many liberal Americans still don't get? And why hasn't President Obama ended the abuses of the War on Terror? This week's guests bring us updates from the grassroots. Fahd Ahmed is the Executive Director of DRUM South Asian Organizing Center; a membership-led organization of low-wage South Asian immigrant workers and youth in New York City. He came to the US as an undocumented immigrant from Pakistan in 1991. Lamis Deek is a human rights attorney and activist originally from Nablus, Palestine. Now based in New York, she has represented high profile defendants, including Ahmed Ferhani, who was targeted in an NYPD "sting operation" which lured marginalized men into manufactured plots of conspiracy to commit terrorism. She's chief counsel to the Global Justice and Human Rights Law Network, the founder of the Muslim Defense Project of the National Lawyers Guild, and part of the growing international legal movement for war crimes prosecution in the Middle East and North Africa.

Also in this episode: we speak to three Chicago teachers organizing against education Apartheid and the School to Prison Pipeline. Teachers in Chicago have been protesting unfair labor practices since early 2016, citing long-term fiscal concerns and the 1400+ jobs at stake.

the 3rd column is called Accepted Egyptian Chronology

And here is listed Thutmoses III – Pharaoh from 1501 BC to 1447 BC – meaning 54 years, not 17 years

T: We are in the most important change on the earth since the time of Egypt!!!

“His own mother was not Hebrew, but an Ammonite princess. This king is recorded as having erected “pagan” golden calves. Murray suggests that this same Queen Maacah was later the wife of the succeeding king, Abijam, who is listed as the son of Maacah and Rehoboam. Her suggestion is based upon the fact that some versions of the bible list Maacah as the mother of Abijam's son Asa. Other versions list Maacah as his grandmother, but place her name where the name of the mother would ordinarily be listed and never mention who his mother was, a pattern quite unlike all other descriptions of royal Hebrew sons. Murray wrote, “The only way that Abijam and Asa could have had the same mother, was by marriage of Abijam with his own mother.”

2016-07-22 Leaked DNC emails reveal secret plans to take on Sanders

By Elliot Smilowitz and Joe Uchill

<http://thehill.com/blogs/ballot-box/presidential-races/288900-leaked-dnc-emails-reveal-secret-plans-to-take-on-sanders>

Top officials at the Democratic National Committee (DNC) privately planned how to undermine Bernie Sanders's presidential campaign, according to a trove of emails released by WikiLeaks on Friday.

The Sanders campaign had long claimed the DNC and Chairwoman Debbie Wasserman Schultz had tipped the scales in favor of Hillary Clinton during the party's presidential primary.

The email release will reignite that controversy just days before Democrats gather in Philadelphia for their convention to officially nominate Clinton for president.

Guccifer 2.0 told The Hill he leaked the documents to Wikileaks.

In one May 21 email, DNC press secretary Mark Paustenbach writes to communications director Luis Miranda about planting a narrative to the media that Sanders's "campaign was a mess."

"Specifically, [Wasserman Schultz] had to call Bernie directly in order to get the campaign to do things because they'd either ignored or forgotten to something critical," he wrote.

"It's not a DNC conspiracy, it's because they never had their act together," Paustenbach concluded.

In another email from early May, DNC CFO Brad Marshall appears to write about a plan to question Sanders's religion.

The email does not name the Vermont senator, but it talks about a man of "Jewish heritage" Marshall believes to be an atheist. It makes reference to voters in Kentucky and West Virginia, two states that were holding upcoming primary elections.

"It might make no difference, but for KY and WVA can we get someone to ask his belief. Does he believe in a God. He had skated on saying he has a Jewish heritage. I think I read he is an atheist. This could make several points difference with my peeps. My Southern Baptist peeps would draw a big difference between a Jew and an atheist," the email says.

Marshall did not respond to a request for comment. But he did tell The Intercept, which first noticed the email, "I do not recall this. I can say it would not have been Sanders. It would probably be about a surrogate."

Wasserman Schultz wrote in May that Sanders "isn't going to be president" and in April that he "has no understanding of" the Democratic Party.

Emails from Wasserman Schultz pertaining to Sanders show a frustration with his campaign's claims of DNC bias and with media reports focused on Sanders's battles with the committee.

Wasserman Schultz sent an email to NBC anchor Chuck Todd with the subject line "Chuck, this must stop," and set up a time for the two to talk about MSNBC's "Morning Joe" co-host Mika Brzezinski calling on Wasserman Schultz to step down.

In another email chain, Miranda said Brzezinski was willing to talk with Wasserman Schultz.

"She's already served as a judge and jury without even bothering to talk to me. Not sure why I should trust having a conversation with her would make any difference. Or that she even matters, to be frank," Wasserman Schultz wrote back after a brief exchange.

In response to a New York Times story about Sanders's defiance in the wake May's unruly Democratic state convention in Nevada, Wasserman Schultz wrote: "Every time they get caught doing something wrong, they use the tactic of blaming me. Not working this time."

2016-07-21 Scientists unlock 'green' energy from garden grass

Summary: A new way of deriving hydrogen from grass has now been developed using just sunlight and a cheap catalyst. Garden grass could become a source of cheap and clean renewable energy, scientists have claimed in a new report.

A team of UK researchers, including experts from Cardiff University's Cardiff Catalysis Institute, have shown that significant amounts of hydrogen can be unlocked from fescue grass with the help of sunlight and a cheap catalyst.

It is the first time that this method has been demonstrated and could potentially lead to a sustainable way of producing hydrogen, which has enormous potential in the renewable energy industry due to its high energy content and the fact that it does not release toxic or greenhouse gases when it is burnt.

Co-author of the study Professor Michael Bowker, from the Cardiff Catalysis Institute, said: "This really is a green source of energy.

"Hydrogen is seen as an important future energy carrier as the world moves from fossil fuels to renewable feedstocks, and our research has shown that even garden grass could be a good way of getting hold of it."

The team, which also includes researchers from Queen's University Belfast, have published their findings in the Royal Society journal Proceedings A.

Hydrogen is contained in enormous quantities all over in the world in water, hydrocarbons and other organic matter.

Up until now, the challenge for researchers has been devising ways of unlocking hydrogen from these sources in a cheap, efficient and sustainable way.

A promising source of hydrogen is the organic compound cellulose, which is a key component of plants and the most abundant biopolymer on Earth.

In their study, the team investigated the possibility of converting cellulose into hydrogen using sunlight and a simple catalyst -- a substance which speeds up a chemical reaction without getting used up.

This process is called photoreforming or photocatalysis and involves the sunlight activating the catalyst which then gets to work on converting cellulose and water into hydrogen.

The researchers studied the effectiveness of three metal-based catalysts -- Palladium, Gold and Nickel.

Nickel was of particular interest to the researchers, from a practical point of view, as it is a much more earth-abundant metal than the precious metals, and is more economical.

In the first round of experiments, the researchers combined the three catalysts with cellulose in a round bottom flask and subjected the mixture to light from a desk lamp. At 30 minutes intervals the researchers collected gas samples from the mixture and analysed it to see how much hydrogen was being produced.

To test the practical applications of this reaction, the researchers repeated the experiment with fescue grass, which was obtained from a domestic garden.

Professor Michael Bowker continued: "Up until recently, the production of hydrogen from cellulose by means of photocatalysis has not been extensively studied.

"Our results show that significant amounts of hydrogen can be produced using this method with the help of a bit of sunlight and a cheap catalyst.

"Furthermore, we've demonstrated the effectiveness of the process using real grass taken from a garden. To the best of our knowledge, this is the first time that this kind of raw biomass has been used to produce hydrogen in this way. This is significant as it avoids the need to separate and purify cellulose from a sample, which can be both arduous and costly."

2016-07-22 Nice Attacks, Destroying Evidence at Crime Scene: French Government Orders Destruction of CCTV Video Footage

By Gearóid Ó Colmáin

Global Research, July 22, 2016

A report in 21st of July edition of Le Figaro newspaper states that France's anti-terrorist executive ( sous-direction anti-terroriste- SDAT) has ordered Nice's urban surveillance authorities to destroy all CCTV footage of the Nice Attacks on Bastille Day that rocked the city on the 14th of July 2016.

Although SDAT have cited articles 53 and L706-24 of the prosecution procedure and article R642-1 of the penal code, authorities in Nice interviewed by Le Figaro say that it is the first time they have ever been asked to destroy evidence at a crime scene – something they point out is illegal.

The explanation given by the French Ministry of Justice is that they don't want 'uncontrolled' and 'non-authorized (non maîtrisée) diffusion of the images of the terrorist attacks. The Judicial Police have noted that 140 videos of the attacks in their possession show 'important pieces of the inquiry' (éléments d'enquête intéressants). The French government claims it wants to prevent ISIS from gaining access to videos of the attacks for the purposes of propaganda. They also claim that the destruction of evidence is intended to protect the families of the victims. The comments section of the Le Figaro article is replete with outrage and disgust by the fact that the French government, instead of preserving evidence for the purposes of a thorough, independent investigation, is in fact behaving rather more like the chief suspect in the attack – ordering the destruction of vital evidence.

There is something rotten in France's Judicial Police. Shortly after the Charlie Hebdo attacks on the 7th of January 2015, the judicial police behaved suspiciously before and as they did after the 'suicide' of Limoge's deputy Police Commissioner Helric Fredou. Fredou was found dead shortly after the arrival of the French Judicial Police to his office in Limoges shortly after the Charlie Hebdo massacre. His family were not allowed see his body for 24 hours after his death; they suspect foul play. The Judicial Police claimed he had shot himself in the head, though his mother said she did not see evidence of this. The police commissioner was said to be suffering from depression, a claim denied by the family doctor. Fredou was found dead in his office before the publication of a report on the relationship between Jeanette Bougrab, a former press secretary of Nicolas Sarkozy, and one of the deceased in the attack, Stéphane Charbonnier

He was found dead in his office before the publication of a report on the relationship between Jeanette Bougrab, a former press secretary of Nicolas Sarkozy, and one of the deceased in the attack, Stéphane Charbonnier known as 'Charb'. The relationship between Bougrab, who is close to all the leaders of the French Zionist movement, and Charb, was one of the most controversial aspects of the Charlie Hebdo massacre story. Fredou was also investigating the background of the Kouachi brothers who were accused of the massacre. They had lived in the town of Limoges.

An article in France's l'Est Républicain newspaper attempts to reassure the public of the French government's bona fides with the title 'No, the footage of the attack has not been deleted'. The report asserts that the Ministry of Justice have not ordered the destruction of evidence but just the deletion of the images from the cameras in Nice. This reassurance might be enough to placate those who are loathe to question the narrative of the war on terror. But, as the recent booing of French Prime Minister Manuel Valls in Nice showed, the French people are waking up.

Now France's Judicial Police and anti-terrorist authorities want to destroy evidence of the attacks. In most crime cases, those who destroy or seek to destroy evidence are usually trying to cover something up. I have already pointed out some of the inconsistencies in the story we have been told about the Nice massacre. I have not claimed nothing happened or no one was killed but rather that the video evidence so far presented does not match the story. Perhaps new video evidence proving the government's story will emerge. Let's hope so! If researchers and journalists with a proven record of peace advocacy and a passion for truth and honesty in reporting were to gain access to those videos, ISIS would be weakened, not strengthened.

But we would be naive to believe the French government intends to weaken ISIS, given the incontrovertibly proven fact that they support the child-murdering head choppers in Syria. While some will find their comfort zones and systems justification syndrome perturbed by this information, many more will simply fall back to sleep. Falling asleep is easier in the short term but in time people will realise that the mattress is being pulled from under them, so that when they wake up in terrible discomfort, it will be too late. It's time to wake up!

2016-07-22 In the Wake of the Failed Coup: Turkey's Human Rights Crisis and the Spectre of Torture

By Dr. Binoy Kampmark

Global Research, July 22, 2016

With the failed military coup in Turkey against the Erdoğan regime, the state is facing the gravest human rights crisis in decades. Infamously bad in terms of treating journalists, suspicious of various perspectives of history, and ever hostage to flashpoints of authoritarianism, the current Republic is now underdoing the next grave challenge.

Within days of the coup's launch on July 15, the government in Ankara engaged in an aggressive campaign of sackings, expulsions, mass arrests and detentions. Newspapers deemed sympathetic to the US-based cleric Fethulla Gülen, a figure suspected of having a hand in the challenge to Erdoğan, were shut down. Six hundred schools were closed.

In the subsequent declaration of emergency, Ankara announced that it would suspend Turkey's involvement with the European Convention on Human Rights and the European Court of Human Rights. This might stand to reason, given that Turkey has received more judgments against it from the ECHR than any other state in Europe. It doesn't want enemies keen to avail themselves of such legal avenues.

States of emergency tend to be inimical to human rights, sometimes in most acute fashion. The point was well acknowledged by the drafters of the Convention, who inserted Article 15 to combat the overstretch security states invariably have. The Convention makes it clear that the derogation itself, while permitted in certain circumstances, cannot apply to various recognised norms such as the right to life, slavery, extrajudicial assessment and importantly, the ban on torture and degrading treatment.

As a manifestation of state-directed power, torture's only justification is a self-based one, ever circular in its purposes. The aftermath of coups in Turkey have historically been littered with instances of torture, often an outcome of frustrated power trippers and fanatics keen to defend the higher ideals of the Kemalist state. A thesis has been advanced that the guiding Turkification program of the state lent itself to the systematic use of torture against dissidents and ethnic minorities. While the constitution bans torture (Art. 17), its presence in Turkish political life has been powerful and dreaded.

As the Medical Foundation for Care of Victims of Torture noted in a 1999 report, "Torture is systematically applied in Turkey as an administrative practice. Whoever is deprived of his/her freedom is under permanent threat of torture from the very minute of detention." In 2008, Turkey's justice minister Mehmet Ali Şahin revealed the discomfiting statistic that some 5,000 individuals had submitted complaints about torture and ill-treatment at the hands of the police forces between 2006 and 2007.

The last full scale military coup in 1980 was the prelude to the arrest of a 650,000 individuals of whom 230,000 were put on trial, relatively dwarfing the recent exercise by Erdoğan. Of those, 517 were sentenced to death, while 299 prisoners died under as such "undetermined" circumstances.

What followed were harrowing instances of brutality that became the subject of legal action against the surviving coup leaders twenty two years later. The statistical record also shows that 171 died under the gruesome torture conditions they faced. As Isa Tekin recounted, after being jailed at the notorious Diyarbakir prison, soldiers present performed acts of torture "beyond any person's imagination."

Correspondents such as Deniz Yüzel are already concerned that instances of torture might have been used against the latest crop of coup plotters. He cites the case of a Turkish general who emerged bloodied and battered after confessing that he had been a member of the Gülenist group. [T]he question arises as to the circumstances under which this [confession] may have come about."

Similar concerns have emanated from the Council of Europe's Commissioner for Human Rights, Nils Muižnieks. "I am alarmed by images showing torture and ill-treatment being inflicted on suspected perpetrators, as well as signs of torture on persons taken into custody, which were published in various media" (Statement, Jul 20).

The curt response from the Brussels based ambassador Erdoğan İçsan took issue with those "prejudicial remarks based on unconfirmed assumptions and allegations. In your words, you are 'unable to determine the veracity of such allegations'."

Veracity or not, traditional justifications were also cited: that Turkey had survived a vicious challenge from forces linked to the Fethullah Gülen Terrorist Organisation "to overthrow the democratically elected government in Turkey." The Turkish Grand National Assembly had been attacked by heavy weapons; the Turkish people had been fired upon.

For those more familiar with recent Turkish history, the idea of an emergency rough on law and those claiming protection under it was far from novel. Turkey had been living in what effectively amounted to such a state for years, making any assertion to the contrary feeble. As Die Welt noted, "the state of emergency is going to have to work hard to get noticed at all." The danger here is whether the environment has become all too rich for officials to do their worst in achieving what they might consider the best. The precedents are all too clear: torture is both system and pattern.

2016-07-22 The Encirclement of China is Well Underway: France Prepares to Lead EU Missions in the South China Sea

By Asia-Pacific Research

The naval encirclement of China is well underway. It was started over a decade ago by the United States with the re-militarization of Japan and the tightening of Washington's military partnerships with countries like Australia and South Korea. The same is true about the missile shield being erected in South Korea, which targets China, Russia, and North Korea.

The excerpts that will follow are taken from a 14 July 2016 article written by Yo-Jung Chen, a Japanese-educated naturalized French diplomat that immigrated to France from Taiwan. The retired French diplomat wrote the article in The Diplomat seeking to justify the deployment of the French military into the South China Sea. Coming from a retired French diplomat who was stationed in Asia, the article offers some interesting insights. Aside from his post as the deputy consul of the French Consulate-General in San Francisco, Yo-Jung's Chinese background helped qualify him as the press attaché for the French Embassy in China and deputy consul at the French Embassy in Singapore.

Yo-Jung Chen misleadingly identifies "Chinese aggression" as the reason for the plans of France to redeploy to the South China Sea and to lead a series of European Union military expeditions in the body of water against the People's Republic of China. Never questioning the French occupation of places like Polynesia or New Caledonia, the retired French diplomat also tries to naturalize the French military presence in the South China Sea by talking about the colonial history of France in Vietnam and the South China Sea and by referring to France as a Indo-Pacific nation. What Yo-Jung fails to identify and mention is the inalienable rights of the Chinese to peacefully navigate in the South China Sea and the security and military threats emanating from the US and its allies against the Chinese.

The maritime dispute between the Philippines and China has been used as a pretext by the US and its allies to target China. Nor has Beijing threatened the freedom of navigation. Over 100,000 vessels sail through the South China Sea every year and there has never been any major cases of China preventing freedom of navigation.

On the contrary, Beijing fears that the US and its allies seek the tactical capability to halt Chinese shipping in the South China Sea. Nothing is mentioned by Yo-Jung Chen about "US aggression" or Washington's plans to cut off Chinese shipping in the South China Sea. This is what has pushed Beijing to try its best to prevent Washington and its allies from militarizing the South China Sea by claiming as much adjacent waters and nautical miles as possible.

What the plans of France and the European Union to militarily deploy their naval forces to the South China Sea illustrate is that the European Union is Washington's accomplice and military partner in the objective of encircling China. This announcement is in line with the return of German naval forces to the Pacific Ocean. It is also no coincidence that many of the countries involved in the naval encirclement of China are either NATO members, like France and Britain, or NATO partners, like Australia and Japan.

South China Sea: The French Are Coming

Yo-Jung Chen, 14 July 2016

The U.S.-led international efforts to defend the freedom of navigation guaranteed by the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS), aiming at preventing the entire South China Sea from becoming an exclusive Chinese lake, has just received a powerful boost in the form of the July 12 ruling of The Hague-based UN Permanent Court of Arbitration. Much to China's anger, most of its sovereignty claims over the South China Sea are rejected in this ruling.

To the surprise of many, a seemingly unrelated European power, France, has announced its intention of coordinating the navies of fellow European Union nations to conduct Freedom of Navigation Operations or FONOPs in South China Sea. On June 5, at the Shangri-la Dialogue in Singapore, French Defense Minister Jean-Yves Le Drian mentioned this initiative for joint EU patrols of "the maritime areas of Asia" and for a "regular and visible presence there."

From a strictly strategic viewpoint, France's announced plan will not have a determining impact on the situation in the South China Sea. After all, despite being a major military power with global reach, France's military presence in the region is limited. Besides, outside of France, what other EU nation has a permanent naval and air presence in the Pacific?

But however small the strategic impact may be, the French initiative promises to weigh in heavily on the diplomatic front, adding significantly to China's already stark isolation in this case.

The scope of this diplomatic impact should be measured in the wake of the July 12 ruling of the UN Permanent Court of Arbitration, in a context where China is attempting, without much success, to put together a "coalition of the willing" of countries presumably supportive of its position in the South China Sea.

The French initiative thus has the potential of further weakening China's position by conspicuously bringing Europe in as an additional heavyweight to the international pressure for respecting the rule of law, represented by The Hague-based arbitration court's ruling.

France in the Asia-Pacific

Contrary to general perception, France is no stranger in this volatile theater in the Far East. The announced French initiative may not be so surprising when one recalls that France is also an Asia-Pacific nation with vital interests in the region. It has territories in the Southern Pacific: French Polynesia, New Caledonia, and Wallis & Futuna islands. Combine this to territories in the Indian Ocean (La Reunion, Mayotte, Kerguelen, etc.), and France is also an Indo-Pacific nation.

These overseas territories add to those in the Caribbean's to give France the world's second largest Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ) (11 million square kilometers) after the United States, 62 percent of which is located in the Pacific and 24 percent in the Indian Ocean. 1,500,000 French citizens live in the French Indo-Pacific territories (500,000 in the Pacific) besides the 130,000 French nationals in various Asia-Pacific countries.

These territories, EEZ, and population necessitate adequate protection and policing. This explains the permanent presence of 8,000 French military personnel in the Indo-Pacific area (2,800 in the Pacific). In the Pacific area alone, France operates two surveillance frigates, four patrol vessels, two multi-mission ships, five maritime surveillance aircraft, four tactical transport aircraft, and seven helicopters.

Although the European Union as such does not particularly shine as a visible strategic presence in the Asia-Pacific region, France, through various treaties and agreements, maintains a network of "strategic partnerships" with Asian countries such as Japan, China, India, Indonesia, Australia, Singapore, and Vietnam.

France also has developing strategic relationships with Malaysia and New Zealand. And it takes part in almost every major regional strategic forum such as the Shangri-La Dialogue in Singapore, the ASEAN Regional Forum, and the Pacific Coast Guard Forum, to mention only a few. France is the first of EU nations to have signed up to the Treaty of Amity and Cooperation in Southeast Asia, the TAC.

Moreover, France is a major provider of defense equipment in Asia. It has recently inked a deal to provide 12 new submarines to Australia. It is in the process of selling Rafale jet fighters to India and it has assisted Malaysia in setting up its submarine force. France also maintains research cooperation on defense matters with Singapore. Few people know that fighter pilots of the Singapore Air Force train on a permanent basis in southern France.

On a historical note too, France is not new in the region. According to Professor Shawn McHale writing in May 2016 for the "Rising Power Initiative," France, as colonial ruler of Vietnam at the time, in 1931 asserted its sovereignty over part of the South China Sea. French sovereignty was challenged by Japan throughout World War II and both stopped their claims only in the 1950s.

Why France and the EU?

Given this background, questions may still linger on why France, which, along with other European countries, has important trade interests with China, would choose to ruffle Chinese feathers at this point by entering the fray in the South China Sea.
