

Saturday June 9, 1pm
Columbus House
Pavilion Kick-Off

What is home? What is neighborhood? What is community? For people who experience living without a home, these are compelling questions—perhaps home is a shelter or a make-shift tent in a river side neighborhood along with a community of friends.

Join Columbus House as we dig deeper into the questions about where we live, kicking off a week of presentations by advocates for people who do not have a place to call home.

Sunday June 10, 3pm
Grassroots Organizing
with Mothers (and Others)
for Justice

Empowerment through community organizing. Mothers (and Others) for Justice is consistently recognized by the Connecticut General Assembly and by professional advocates throughout the state as an authentic, persistent and consistent voice for people who are poor.

The group will share their experiences with grassroots organizing and listen to your stories about your housing situation. Learn how community organizing can empower individuals seeking to promote change in programs and policies that improve the lives of women and their children.

Wednesday June 13, 11am
Tenants Rights Workshop
with New Haven Legal Assistance Association

Know your rights. NHLAA will be taking questions about fair housing and provide information about what legal rights you may have if you are unfairly facing housing discrimination, eviction, or landlord abuses.

Friday June 15, 11am
Moving Forward Training
with Connecticut Fair
Housing Center

This training session is designed to help you if you are going through the moving process. Learn about resources and get tips on staying organized as you look for housing.

Connecticut Fair Housing Center will answer questions about your fair housing rights and help you understand what tools you have if you are a victim of discrimination.

Saturday June 16, 2-3pm
Paddington Storytime with
Be Homeful Project

Paddington is homeless when he first travels from Darkest Peru to London in search for a home. How would Paddington have felt when he didn't have a home? Why is it important to have a home? How can we help families who don't have homes be safe and comfortable?

After listening to Paddington's story, kids can draw what having a home means to them and learn how they can help to make sure there are resources available to protect families from being homeless.

For more information
about events or sponsoring
institutions visit:

yalebuildingproject.org
columbushouse.org
artidea.org

June 9–17
New Haven Green

Homeless: Housed

Organized by
Columbus House &
Yale School of Architecture

Hosted by the
International Festival
of Arts & Ideas

Saturday June 9, 1pm
Columbus House
Pavilion Kick-Off

What is home? What is neighborhood? What is community? For people who experience living without a home, these are compelling questions—perhaps home is a shelter or a make-shift tent in a river side neighborhood along with a community of friends.

Join Columbus House as we dig deeper into the questions about where we live, kicking off a week of presentations by advocates for people who do not have a place to call home.

Sunday June 10, 3pm
Grassroots Organizing
with Mothers (and Others)
for Justice

Empowerment through community organizing. Mothers (and Others) for Justice is consistently recognized by the Connecticut General Assembly and by professional advocates throughout the state as an authentic, persistent and consistent voice for people who are poor.

The group will share their experiences with grassroots organizing and listen to your stories about your housing situation. Learn how community organizing can empower individuals seeking to promote change in programs and policies that improve the lives of women and their children.

Wednesday June 13, 11am
Tenants Rights Workshop
with New Haven Legal Assistance Association

Know your rights. NHLAA will be taking questions about fair housing and provide information about what legal rights you may have if you are unfairly facing housing discrimination, eviction, or landlord abuses.

Friday June 15, 11am
Moving Forward Training
with Connecticut Fair
Housing Center

This training session is designed to help you if you are going through the moving process. Learn about resources and get tips on staying organized as you look for housing.

Connecticut Fair Housing Center will answer questions about your fair housing rights and help you understand what tools you have if you are a victim of discrimination.

Saturday June 16, 2-3pm
Paddington Storytime with
Be Homeful Project

Paddington is homeless when he first travels from Darkest Peru to London in search for a home. How would Paddington have felt when he didn't have a home? Why is it important to have a home? How can we help families who don't have homes be safe and comfortable?

After listening to Paddington's story, kids can draw what having a home means to them and learn how they can help to make sure there are resources available to protect families from being homeless.

For more information
about events or sponsoring
institutions visit:

yalebuildingproject.org
columbushouse.org
artidea.org

June 9–17
New Haven Green

Homeless:
Housed

Organized by
Columbus House &
Yale School of Architecture

Hosted by the International Festival
of Arts & Ideas

Saturday June 9, 1pm
Columbus House
Pavilion Kick-Off

What is home? What is neighborhood? What is community? For people who experience living without a home, these are compelling questions—perhaps home is a shelter or a make-shift tent in a river side neighborhood along with a community of friends.

Join Columbus House as we dig deeper into the questions about where we live, kicking off a week of presentations by advocates for people who do not have a place to call home.

Sunday June 10, 3pm
Grassroots Organizing
with Mothers (and Others)
for Justice

Empowerment through community organizing. Mothers (and Others) for Justice is consistently recognized by the Connecticut General Assembly and by professional advocates throughout the state as an authentic, persistent and consistent voice for people who are poor.

The group will share their experiences with grassroots organizing and listen to your stories about your housing situation. Learn how community organizing can empower individuals seeking to promote change in programs and policies that improve the lives of women and their children.

Wednesday June 13, 11am
Tenants Rights Workshop
with New Haven Legal Assistance Association

Know your rights. NHLAA will be taking questions about fair housing and provide information about what legal rights you may have if you are unfairly facing housing discrimination, eviction, or landlord abuses.

Friday June 15, 11am
Moving Forward Training
with Connecticut Fair
Housing Center

This training session is designed to help you if you are going through the moving process. Learn about resources and get tips on staying organized as you look for housing.

Connecticut Fair Housing Center will answer questions about your fair housing rights and help you understand what tools you have if you are a victim of discrimination.

Saturday June 16, 2-3pm
Paddington Storytime with
Be Homeful Project

Paddington is homeless when he first travels from Darkest Peru to London in search for a home. How would Paddington have felt when he didn't have a home? Why is it important to have a home? How can we help families who don't have homes be safe and comfortable?

After listening to Paddington's story, kids can draw what having a home means to them and learn how they can help to make sure there are resources available to protect families from being homeless.

For more information
about events or sponsoring
institutions visit:

yalebuildingproject.org
columbushouse.org
artidea.org

June 9–17
New Haven Green

Homeless:
Housed

Organized by
Columbus House &
Yale School of Architecture

Hosted by the International Festival
of Arts & Ideas

Saturday June 9, 1pm
Columbus House
Pavilion Kick-Off

What is home? What is neighborhood? What is community? For people who experience living without a home, these are compelling questions—perhaps home is a shelter or a make-shift tent in a river side neighborhood along with a community of friends.

Join Columbus House as we dig deeper into the questions about where we live, kicking off a week of presentations by advocates for people who do not have a place to call home.

Sunday June 10, 3pm
Grassroots Organizing
with Mothers (and Others)
for Justice

Empowerment through community organizing. Mothers (and Others) for Justice is consistently recognized by the Connecticut General Assembly and by professional advocates throughout the state as an authentic, persistent and consistent voice for people who are poor.

The group will share their experiences with grassroots organizing and listen to your stories about your housing situation. Learn how community organizing can empower individuals seeking to promote change in programs and policies that improve the lives of women and their children.

Wednesday June 13, 11am
Tenants Rights Workshop
with New Haven Legal Assistance Association

Know your rights. NHLAA will be taking questions about fair housing and provide information about what legal rights you may have if you are unfairly facing housing discrimination, eviction, or landlord abuses.

Friday June 15, 11am
Moving Forward Training
with Connecticut Fair
Housing Center

This training session is designed to help you if you are going through the moving process. Learn about resources and get tips on staying organized as you look for housing.

Connecticut Fair Housing Center will answer questions about your fair housing rights and help you understand what tools you have if you are a victim of discrimination.

Saturday June 16, 2-3pm
Paddington Storytime with
Be Homeful Project

Paddington is homeless when he first travels from Darkest Peru to London in search for a home. How would Paddington have felt when he didn't have a home? Why is it important to have a home? How can we help families who don't have homes be safe and comfortable?

After listening to Paddington's story, kids can draw what having a home means to them and learn how they can help to make sure there are resources available to protect families from being homeless.

For more information
about events or sponsoring
institutions visit:

yalebuildingproject.org
columbushouse.org
artidea.org

June 9–17
New Haven Green

Homeless: Housed

Organized by
Columbus House &
Yale School of Architecture

Hosted by the
International Festival
of Arts & Ideas