Host: Marietta Robert

Meditation: Angelsu

Mayan Calendar: Rainbird

We are now in the Wave of Caban – about looking to navigate our future; finding the sacred point, the balance point

10th Thurs – 6 IK wind at our backs; listen to the voices of the wind which is the voice of spirit

11th Fri – 7 AKBAL time to work with our abundance, the night time energy which gives us a veil of protection.

12th Sat – 8 KAN a seasonal day

13th Sun – 9 CHICCHAN – serpent energy; a turning point in the wave

14th Mon – 10 CIMI – manifesting heaven on earth

15th Ap Tues – 11 MANIK we have a full moon lunar eclipse; about letting go of what no longer serves, cleaning the closet; Manik is the healing hand and the tone guide is Manik as well, a double strength; Spiritual guidance is the dragon ; our challenge is finding our balance and keeping it!

16th Wed - 12 LAMAT a portal day, with Lamat the stargate & its crystal clarity

17th Thurs – 13 MULUC – Muluc the moon,, working with telepathy and completing the wave of Caban and anchor the energy of the week.

MR: we have a 2 eclipses two weeks apart

Rainbird: not unusual for these two eclipses to happen 2 weeks apart as one is a lunar eclipse and the other is a solar eclipse

- This is happening 2 years in a row: 2014 and 2015 which is unusual; this has only happened 8 times in the last 2, 000 years & twice in our respective lifetimes [1949 / 50, 1957/58]

T: it's called the Tetrad because there are 4 blood moons over a 4 month period

- it is unique because each of these Tetrads/blood moons are happening on Jewish holidays
- When this has happened in the past 2,000 years, significant events have occurred
- And this time it is at the end of a Yuga which trumps all the other events.
- They are called blood moons because they come close to the horizon and get the reddish colour

Hard News:

R: their kitty Lola made her transition today: place her in Circle of Support

T: also a friend who had serious surgery on her throat

- This week has not been easy as they watch what is happening on the larger scale
  - The powers that are no more will not give up the ghost: will wear black hats to the end

Ed Schultz: Mike Papantonio sat in for Ed; story of the statue of Liberty – the lawmakers worship at her feet, the goddess Inanna; the illuminati re-configured her to be a dark goddess, like they re-configured Magdalene to not even exist!

T: there was a news item about a papyrus that was found, saying Jesu had a wife [SEE BELOW]

- The church when Mohammed did not finish his work, another Mohammed was pointed to add on the ideas of the holy jihad stuff and the 42 virgins: the church is responsible for creating fundamentalist religion
- Mike Pap brought up Enki, Enlil and Ninhertzog, Anu, the whole story of the Annunaki, plus the pyramids in Crimea, Crimean, Hertsovogena
  - And Putin is after this section of the world because of the potential for the ancient technologies
- Story from Bibliothek Pleyades: things that are happening now that have to do with the one story being told one way, and another being told another way – a shell game – being played out by hard core Republicans & the Vatican have re-written history to create fake history
  - more stories coming out of their lack of compassion for the little guy or even for each other
- Mike Pap brought up that Viet Nam is killing some of their banksters: [SEE BELOW]

  - Nada said a month ago that they will just be taken out
- Congressman Alan Grayson came on: Florida trying to expand the Stand your Ground law even more
  - Grayson said Scott would get his karma back for what he has done to the people's
- Baghdad: 2 huge car bombs; Athens – a big one – increasing in numbers and intensity;
  - as we walk this pathless path, stay in a state of grace and love them more

- Tom the Cat and Larry: for everyone who keeps looking at dinars: the last bombings took 17 lives
- If you know about NESARA and still pursue other than NESARA – there was a time when the the dinars were legit; now the archonic energies have completely taken over the dinars –
  - LM Nada and Sananda Kumara {KOS in this incarnation} are in control
  - The dinars have to do with the powers that were; to stay in that place is to have 2 masters - the dinars are in the jurisdiction of the powers that were; we must walk in our shoes!
- Max Keiser said the same thing that the banksters need to go; so said Putin: the Rothschilds at least need to be executed

- Al Sharpton did a press conference in NYC: talked about receiving death threats
- This is the not-so-pretty side of what Sharpton and Dr King have done:
  - Dr King was an asset of the CIA from the beginning; Sharpton talked of what he did – the mob answered to the archonic families who wanted to get in the music business; Sharpton said he is not proud of his past but he had to do what he had to do to get to this day
- On a lighter note: a light seen coming from Mars – a signal from Lord Monca & Korton! [SEE BELOW]
  - Stephen Colbert will be taking over for David Letterman next year
  - Barack Obama spoke today at LB Johnson library: Ben Jealous thought he should have gone farther in restoring voting rights

Nixon committed treason to extend the

- Alan Grayson: every day that goes by, The Republicans are committing treason in the Congression
- Thom Hartmann: There has been a dually elected Republican president since Eisenhower
  - Raegan committed treason by holding the hostages with some help from Bush Sr
  - Ford got in because no one had the balls to prosecute Nixon for high treason
  - Bush Sr committed treason in assisting getting Reagan in, then he announced he was acting president then he murdered Reagan and cloned him and was acting president for 2 terms
  - Bush Jr was rigged in too
  - Johnson hated JFK sr, just hated him and participated in his murder; he died not knowing he had not killed the real person but a clone
- Forgiveness is necessary now and important

MR: people coming to her saying they think they have adrenal exhaustion: it's ongoing – asks him to address it

MK: we need a strong immune system; it is perfectly capable of manufacturing trillions of fighters!

- What causes an inflammatory condition? toxins: pathogens, putrying things in the gut; over acid conditions, inflaming the joints, etc
  - Licorice root is one of the finest adrenal tonics on the planet and has cortisone in it – better than any chemical version because it is more comprehensive
- Boosting immune responses by partially enhancing adrenal function - this is important because of the overloading of our systems due to food choices including stevia
  - Because Stevia is so highly concentrated, need to use very very little [both liquid, leaves, powder] – he recommends licorice and stevia as the best sweeteners.
  - Concentrated sugars overwork the pancreas and the adrenals, and they are the prime cause of heart disease [not chloesterol!]
- Build a strong hormonal system, build a strong adrenal system Need to address the entire endocrine system
- There are children today who are impervious to disease: they understood the unity of everyone, unconditional love; are in harmony in their soul which means the body is not fighting in itself

- Building the hormonal system is done all at once but concentrating on the adrenals is done with specific herbs

PLEASE LISTEN TO THE ENTIRE PRESENTATION TO HEAR ALL THE COMPLEXITIES THAT MICHAEL IS DISCUSSING, AND THE QUESTIONS HE ANSWERS AT THE END OF THE CALL.

- To learn about food combining, go to the website, go down the links on the left hand side of the page and go to Radiation detox links; the article called “OK, so what foods can I eat?” is there: on food combining

- Kidney and adrenal builder – very specific for adrenals
- Adaptogen and mushroom blend – immune modulators
  - If people are sensitive to adaptogens, need to take another look
  - There is a difference between the e
- Rejuvenation for men, or for women – both can benefit by taking the herb for the other, to balance and give more circulation so the herbs get distributed well.
- Thyroid Balance [mostly seaweed] This one accelerates the benefit of any or all of the others:

Describes what auto-immune conditions are – the body is attacking cells that don't belong there, like sugars and acids, and things brought in from GMOs that you may have eaten in the past

- Talks about Japanese eating so much seaweed and not getting cancers in the way North Americans do
- Talks about cellular voltage at the start of the presentation; important concept for understanding the entire talk

- Explains the pH concept

- Talks about meat and that it is responsible for shortening the life of people; living for 120 years is not enough – body can live longer by design.

- Does freezing food straight from the garden preserve the cellular voltage?

Yes, you slow down bacterial growth

- Can also preserve cellular voltage by fermentation which is one of the older ways of preservation
- Another way to preserve the cellular voltage is by the way you grow the food: a friendly bacteria condition in the soil means that the produce literally will not spoil – get healthy plants

- Discussion of what herbs and earthen sea greens to take

Questions and answers.

- Gives overview of how to eat fruit
- A 1928 book called The Grape Cure – for $3.50 at Amazon – still works! Grapes are one of nature's finest to clean the body! Cellular voltage is important: the fruit raises the voltage of the cell and this helps heal the body because it raises the energy
- Dr Morse – Dr Morse Health Club is the site; has written one book about fruits; he urges people to read it
- Talks about wheat: William Davis' book called Wheat Belly explains how wheat affects people – it was modified in the 50s for commercial reasons and raises the sugar levels in the body – creates the big belly, skinny arm phenomenon; the einkorn and the spelt are good,
- Cheeses – the mould in blue cheese has been connected to breast cancer: creates the microtoxins that completely destroy cells that are no longer functioning well

2014, Ap 3 Vietnam Is Sentencing Corrupt Bankers to Death by Firing Squad

By Patrick Winn, GlobalPost

For the most part, American bankers whose rash pursuit of profit brought on the 2008 global financial collapse didn't get indicted. They got bonuses.

Odds are that scandal would have played out differently in Vietnam, another nation struggling with misbehaving bankers.

The authoritarian Southeast Asian state doesn't just send unscrupulous financiers to jail. Sometimes, it sends them to death row.

Amid a sweeping cleanup of its financial sector, Vietnam has sentenced three bankers to death in the past six months.

One duo now on death row embezzled roughly \$25 million from the state-owned Vietnam Agribank. Their co-conspirators caught decade-plus prison sentences.

In March, a 57-year-old former regional boss from Vietnam Development Bank, another government-run bank, was sentenced to death over a $93-million swindling job.

According to Vietnam's Tuoi Tre news outlet, several of his colluders were sentenced to life imprisonment after they confessed to securing bogus loans with a diamond ring and a BMW coupe. And last week, in an unrelated case, charges against senior employees from the same bank allege $47 million in losses from dubious loans.

None of this would impress Bernie Madoff, mastermind of America's largest ever financial fraud scheme. The combined amount from all three Vietnamese cases adds up to less than 1 percent of his purported $18-billion haul.

But these death sentences nevertheless are high profile scandals in Vietnam.

That's the point. Human rights watchdogs contend that splashy trials in Vietnam are acts of political theater with predetermined conclusions. The audience: a Vietnamese public weary of state corruption. But these sentences also sound loud alarm bells to dodgy bankers who are currently running scams.

"It's a message to those in this game to be less greedy and that business as usual is getting out of hand," said Adam McCarty, chief economist with the Hanoi-based consulting firm Mekong Economics.

"The message to people in the system is this: Your chances of getting caught are increasing," McCarty said.

"Don't just rely on big people above you. Because some of these [perpetrators] would've had big people above them. And it didn't help them.”

Like most nations that crush dissent and operate with little transparency, Vietnam is highly corrupt.

According to a World Bank study, half of all businesses operating within the communist state expect that gift giving toward officials is required “to get things done.” Transparency International, which publishes the world's leading corruption gauge, contends Vietnam is more corrupt than Mexico but not quite as bad as Russia.

Unlike in America, where judges can't sentence white-collar criminals to death, Vietnam can execute its citizens for a range of corporate crimes.

Amnesty International reports that death sentences in Vietnam have been handed down to criminals for running shady investment schemes, counterfeiting cash and even defaulting on loans. This is unusual: United Nations officials have condemned death for “economic crimes” yet Vietnam persists with these sentences — as does neighboring China.

Though statistics on Vietnam's opaque justice system are scarce, a state official conceded that more than 675 people sit on death row for a range of crimes, according to the Associated Press.

It's still unclear how the bankers will be killed. Vietnam's traditional means of execution involves binding perpetrators to a wooden post, stuffing their mouths with lemons and calling in a firing squad. The nation wants to transition to lethal injections. But European nations refuse to export chemicals used in executions (namely sodium thiopental) to governments practicing capital punishment.

Fraudulent bankers are receiving heavy sentences at a moment when Vietnam is enacting major financial reforms.

For decades, Vietnam has been slowly transforming its communist-style, state-run market into a more open and competitive arena. In the post-reunification era, the government owned every bank in Vietnam. Today, state-run banks control only 40 percent of all assets.

This push to bank in a more Western style has ushered in improvements as well as temptations to swindle. According to the UN economist Vu Quang Viet, Vietnamese credit laws passed in 2010 “simply copied the lax US law now widely believed to be at least partially responsible for the financial debacle in 2008.”

Campaigns to root out corruption are promoted as a way to entice foreign investment, which could help prop up Vietnamese banks whose growth has slowed from a sprint to a jog.

But the recent death sentences aren't really intended to prove the reformers' sincerity to the outside world, according to McCarty.

“They don't care about foreigners. It's all internal politics,” McCarty said. Foreign banking honchos wouldn't be impressed by a few executions anyway. “If you really want to want to resolve the problem, you can't just arrest people,” he said. “You've got to improve accountability and transparency in the entire system.”

A leading Vietnamese newspaper, Thanh Nien, is also pushing for system-wide cleanup in lieu of showcase trials against a few corporate criminals.

An op-ed in the paper recently compared death sentences for corruption to fighting fire with fire. The preferred approach would be dousing corruption before it burns through public funds. “It is better to prevent corruption,” the paper opined, “than deal with it after the fact.

2014, Ap 10 'Gospel of Jesus' Wife' Papyrus Is Ancient, Not Fake, Scientists And Scholars Say

An ancient, business-card-sized papyrus fragment that appears to quote Jesus Christ discussing his wife is real, Harvard University announced Thursday. The fragment caused international uproar when it was revealed by a Harvard historian in September 2012, with prominent academics and the Vatican swiftly deeming it a forgery.

Harvard officials said scientists both within and outside the university extensively tested the papyrus and carbon ink of the badly aged fragment, dubbed the "Gospel of Jesus' Wife." The document, written in Coptic, a language of ancient Egyptian Christians, is made up of eight mostly legible dark lines on the front and six barely legible faded lines on the back. The handwriting and grammar were also examined over the last year and a half to confirm its authenticity. Scientists have concluded the fragment dates back to at least the sixth to ninth centuries, and possibly as far back as the fourth century.

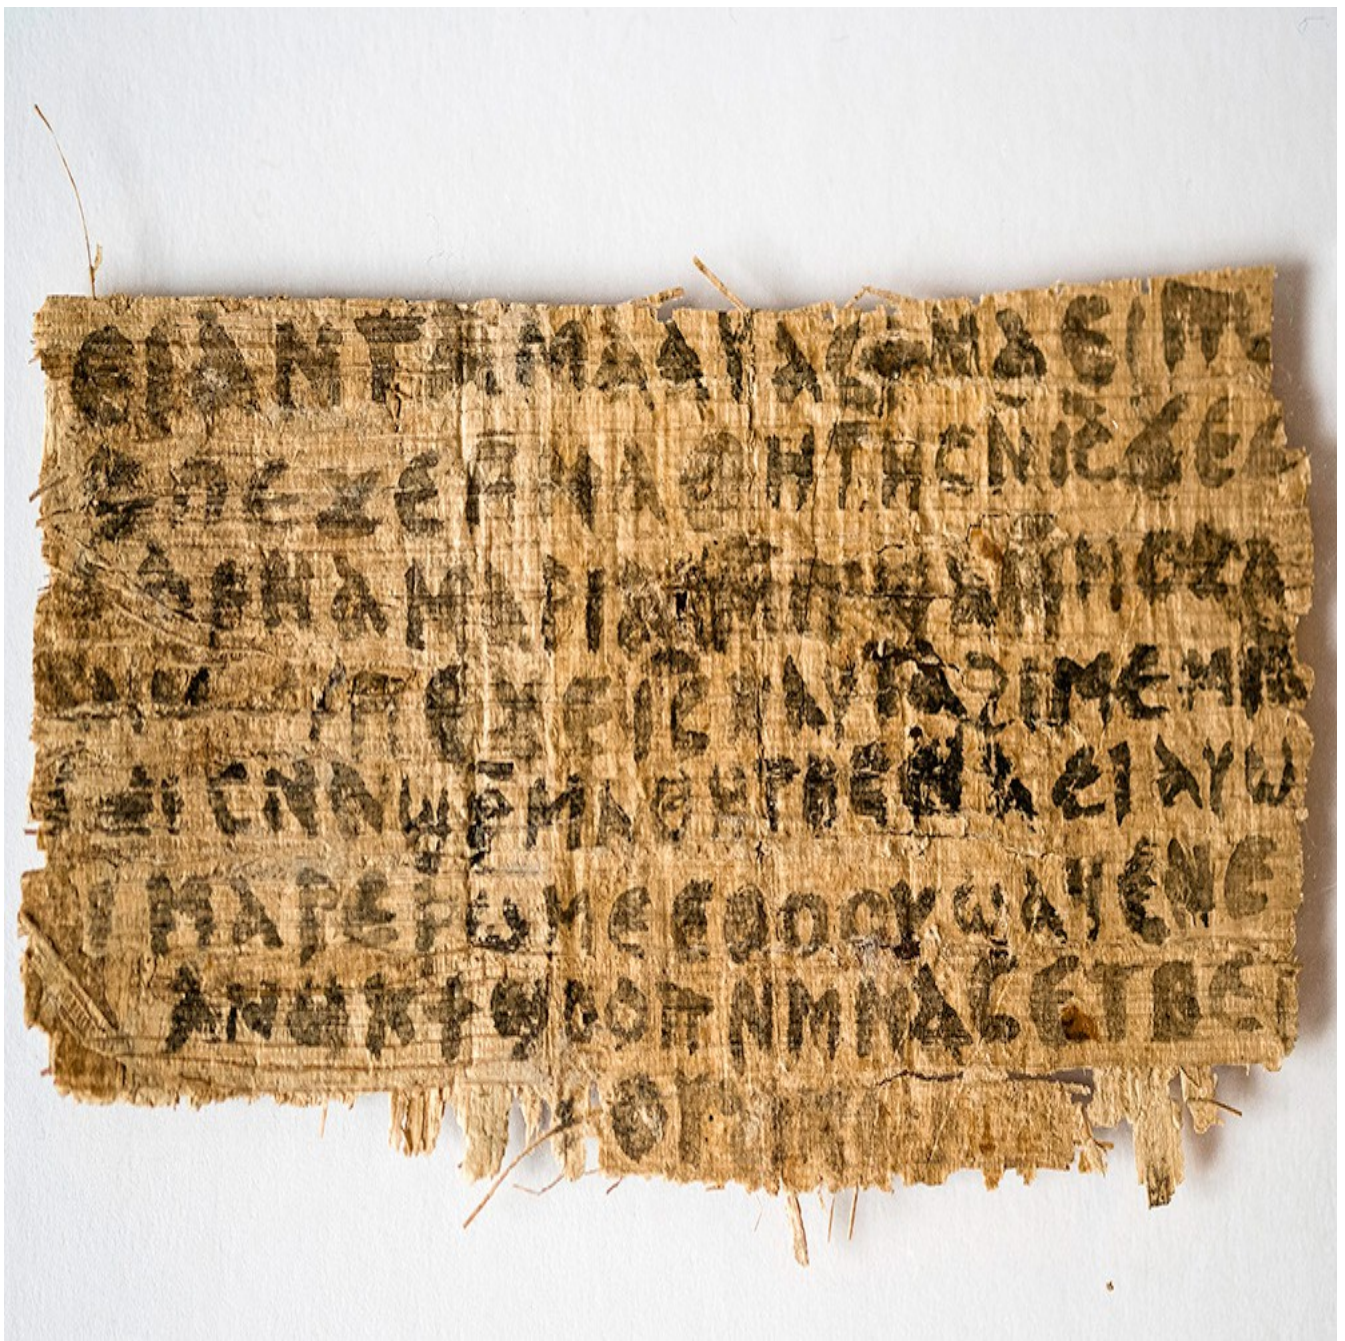

The document was never meant to prove Jesus was married, Harvard Divinity School professor Karen L. King emphasized Thursday. Instead, she argued, it's meant to highlight that some early Christians may have believed Jesus was married. The distinction is significant because debates over sexuality and marriage have dominated contemporary discussions about Christianity; the Catholic Church cites Jesus' celibacy as one reason its priests must not have sex or marry.

"The main topic of the fragment is to affirm that women who are mothers and wives can be disciples of Jesus -- a topic that was hotly debated in early Christianity as celibate virginity increasingly became highly valued," King, whose specialties include Coptic literature, Gnosticism and women in the Bible, said in a statement Thursday. "This gospel fragment provides a reason to reconsider what we thought we knew by asking what the role claims of Jesus' marital status played historically in early Christian controversies over marriage, celibacy, and family."

The legible lines on the front of the artifact seem to form a broken conversation between Jesus and his disciples. The fourth line of the text says, "Jesus said to them, my wife." Line 5 says "... she will be able to be my disciple," while the line before the "wife" quote has Jesus saying "Mary is worthy of it" and line 7 says, "As for me, I dwell with her in order to ..."

King first announced the existence of the fragment on Sept. 18, 2012, at the International Coptic Congress in Rome. But after looking at photos of the fragment and a draft of a related paper that was scheduled to be published in the Harvard Theological Review, scholars quickly began to doubt the findings. Some said the handwriting, grammar, shape of the papyrus and the ink's color and quality made it suspect. Others said the ink and papyrus should have been chemically dated before being publicly announced. The fact that the fragment's owner, identified as German donor who bought the piece in 1999 from a collector who had owned it since 1960s, was anonymous, also attracted suspicion.

The Harvard Theological Review decided not to publish King's paper until further testing and analysis, which included electrical engineering, chemistry and biology professors at Columbia University, Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Harvard officials said Thursday.

Although the peer-reviewed paper will now be published in the academic journal and was posted online on Thursday, the criticism is likely to continue. For one, the journal will also run an article by Brown University Egyptology professor Leo Depuydt, who says the fragment is a fake. In the paper, published online Thursday, Depuydt points to grammatical mistakes that he says a native Coptic writer would not make, as well as similarities to another well-known non-canonical biblical text.

"There is no doubt in my mind whatsoever that the text ... is a patchwork of words and phrases from the published and well-known Coptic Gospel of Thomas," Depuydt writes. "It is therefore clear that the Text is not an independent literary composition at all."

2014, Ap 8 Video~ There is Light on Mars!

By Carol Christian, Houston Chronicle – April 7, 2014

<http://tinyurl.com/kwywzg5>

A NASA camera on Mars has captured what appears to be artificial light emanating outward from the planet's surface.

The photo, beamed millions of miles from Mars to the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., was taken last week, apparently by one of two NASA rovers on the red planet.

Although the space agency hasn't issued any official statement yet about the phenomenon, bloggers and NASA enthusiasts have started chiming in.

Scott C. Waring, who maintains the website UFO Sightings Daily, posted the photo April 6.

Waring noted that the light shines upward, as if from the ground, and is very flat across the bottom.

"This could indicate there there is intelligent life below the ground and uses light as we do," Waring wrote on his website. "This is not a glare from the sun, nor is it an artifact of the photo process."

NASA photos capture the strange bright light coming out of Mars
