

The human state has the capacity to find solutions to all of our problems, if we put our collective minds & hands to work. Wefirst

Weekend Workshop

Impact through Appreciation

Did you ever think if we would just collaborate, we could make this work?
If we would build on the strengths we have, we could create a solution?

Well, you're right. We found out that there's nothing more powerful in creating change than a group of diverse, dedicated people willing to move forward together and learn from their actions.

In this workshop, we want to share with you the best method we found so far to activate resilience in your own group. SALT is a way of working that reveals strengths in people. Combined with the action based learning cycle 'The Community Life Competence Proces' it brings people together around any concern they might have, to take action together, learn and grow.

This way of working has proved to be extremely effective and is applied today by organizations as UNAids and UNICEF all over the world to actively involve communities in the battle against AIDS and malaria. In more than 68 countries, communities successfully use this approach to create an effective response to local challenges. In Belgium and the Netherlands we use it to build resilience and community engagement with youngsters, asylum seekers, lawyers and mothers.

The good news: You can learn this approach during the weekend of April 15-17th, 2016

After this weekend :

- > You will have an intense experience of human resilience
- > You will have a roadmap of the approach and practical tools for every step
- > You will have ideas on how to apply these tools in your own group
- > You will be connected to people who can support and maybe co-create this process with you
