Hard News:

T: there is a tremendous, universal gift that is coming to the planet: there is no way the people can overlook what is happening

R: when Ed started his radio show this am- 10:30 am - he laid it out that the NRA is a domestic terrorist organization funded by lunatic fringe on the right: Koch Bros, Dick Morris [tied in with dark side of Hollywood]; Dick Cheney - as the Sirian commander said, it will not go without some repercussions.

- Time to get the dirty money out of politics

KOS: this is a black ops & has all the smell of Aurora, columbine where things are set up too perfectly.

- People can go into Walmart, other large stores and buy a Glock, a fully automatic weapon

Ed: brought up names of Troy Davis, Trayvon Martin, Gabby Giffords, the Central Park 5

- Yesterday, Al Sharpton had 4 of the Central Park 5 on; Ed mentioned this and the events since 9/11, and Naomi Klein's book Shock Doctrine which outlines the situation where False Evidence Appearing Real {FEAR} is what is happening.
- Goes back to having a black man in the White House and those who don't want him there - Mother keeps talking about this - time to get past this -
- As we go through Dec 21, 2012 - we are going where we have never been before: KOS said for the first time in 26, 826 years, we will see things we have never seen before: this is NOT about extinction events, but shifting consciousness on a global AND a universal scale

R: listened to this: Rita Melchizadeck's video of Dec 21st - nothing to fear in the silence - the revolution is evolution

- in high school, he carried a gun but never used it: he felt like he needed to carry one - it was the Krips vs the Bloods, and he hung out with the Bloods: the culture of gang violence of the time -
- he chose the path when he heard the words of Ram Dass - at the age of 13, he used to sit and discuss the universe et al
- We are going through the Dark Rift and Mother seals the door where evil dwells
 - Uranus goes direct and the hidden things will be revealed
 - in the last 100 years, the 13 families have killed 2 million people
 - We are here to witness and send only love: brings up emotional challenges

Randi Rhodes show: Mike Papantonio was on and Chris Rock If bullets cost $5,000 a bullet where would we be with this today? We would think twice

T: not that simple, as the police force works for the New World Order: the police can use as many bullets as they want at our expense

R: this brings up all the issues for everyone: to every 3 people, there is one gun in the US alone!!!

- Why do we need so many guns?
- What about the 2nd amendment: why do we have a standing army - Thos Jefferson said if you have a standing army doing nothing, shit happens - Like in Palestine:
- The Cosmic Christ is here, his star is being seen; his ship also - won't hear it on main media; the brotherhoods and sisterhoods are here, and we are the cavalry coming into full flower: as one is harmed, all are harmed, as one is healed, all are healed.
- There are solutions here: it's how we get along with each other & the various cultures coming together

KOS: this brings in a national dialogue that leads to action! As we claim we are a free country and the richest country - America is not broke but has been corraled by the 13 families

- Nibiru is here, Mother is here and she is coming as LM Ma'at who puts the feather on the scale

Angelsu: as it is happening in our nation, it is happening in China - over 20 kids in a school attacked with a knife - none were killed because it wasn't a gun

T: Thom Hartmann: the #1 issue is inequality

R: M Moore said America is not broke - there is enough

T: yet 1/3 of the entire wealth is off-shored - so THAT IS INEQUALITY

- Of the 158 wealthy nations, we are 88 down in being safe
- The thing about gun laws: education is MIS-EDUCATION - they are not telling the truth
- this has to do with secrets - JFK said no more secrets

R: in the land of Pan, we were transparent as glass; started to get more opaque ; when we put clothes

we could not read each other's auras and shit started to happen

T: worldtruth.tv - Brezinski: populist movement is threatening to derail a movement towards a NWO

- During a recent speech in Poland, ZB warned [SEE BELOW]
 - the rise in world-wide activism is proving . . .
 - the context of the environment in which he made the comments was a lament
 - European Forum for New Ideas - advocates a super state for external control

• ZB is an archon, but his powers have been stripped from him!

R: Brez is at the genius level: reptiles have more genius than most humans

T: Bill Clinton is a hybrid from a human and a reptile, and has an IQ of over 200 - yet he has a heart.

- We can take this article / information from a neutral place that Brez is acknowledging that what he wants to achieve will not be possible
- The worst possible things that could happen are happening - they think they can break the people and this will not happen. We cannot throw in the towel at the final moment: they are suppressing information, voting and trying to instill the fear that we have been beaten
- Uranus went direct and URANUS MEANS SUDDEN CHANGE FOR THE GOOD!!!!

KOS says we will see a lot of things: and they will suddenly appear

T: the mental health of the nation: Reagan shut down the mental health programs and put them out on the streets, so the homeless are also mentally unbalanced

Question from someone: when will we have Neo's powers and be able to shift bullets?

R: the energies in this universe are shifting

Angelsu: we have to believe that we can do it and we have to believe it again - and again - and again!

T: and we have to ground it and we cannot do it alone the more inequality there is, the less chance there is for community and that is exactly where they are going with this!

T: really something to watch Barack Obama: there have black ops to kill the whole family hundreds of time and how he stay's strong - we know some things about reality like that around Benghazi are not known, and that McCain and Lindsay Graham have trashed Susan Rice

- Obama called what McCain and Graham did as "totally outrageous" - closest to seeing him get angry
- Susan Rice not out of the woods yet: some deaths she is responsible for over in Africa -
- What will happen is the whole truth will come out!

Audio from Ed Schultz' show: Obama's speech about the tragedy at the school

Caller: has a feeling that the shootings are about mind control

T: yes, all shootings are about Black Ops

Caller: mother killed because she knew too much

T: thought she heard Rachel Maddow say that mother shot another victim in the neighbourhood before the son shot her!

Caller: thinks the family was involved in dark stuff

T: the shooting in the Aurora was not done by the person who is in jail: his mind was erased of memory by drugs

Caller: the many who shot Gabby says the same thing: he does not remember doing it.

T: Gabby G shooting was Black Ops: wanted her out of there because her vote was a swing vote

- she had a lucid dream about 3 mos before and saw herself being shot

Caller: what about the nurse who took the call?

T: this was a Black Ops - she knew something about the inside situation

- The 2 reporters from NZ were being pranksters: T saw them on Al Jazeera - they were totally traumatized - this current story is the straw that breaks the camel's back

Ed show: David Cay Johnston on Ed show on the 10th: Senator Barack Obama said in 2007 by 2013, we should have universal health care [he was already campaigning with Hillary the clone]

- the real Hillary was already in the Hague, in solitary confinement
[Hillary has stomach cancer and has for years; there are 15 look-alike clones out there]

Caller: asking about Hillary and Bill and bed

T: Hillary is gay; H and B have not had sex in years; partner is Anthony Wener's wife.

Back to David Cay: spoke of Paul Ryan economics - need to go in the other direction: tell Republicans you want to lower the age of medicare and retirement to 55. We have liberals and progressives reacting to what Republicans want instead of putting forth their own agenda : playing a defensive game: if you do that, nothing ever gets done

- this has been the plan since 1891 and the Bankers Manifesto when the 2 party system was created so the game could get played and the banksters planned to take over the world behind the scenes - instead of going into the light at the end of the Mayan calendar, we will have the NWO and be the richest people on earth.
- What did the Trilateral Commission do? at Stanford they created light terms for dark things: illuminati is the word for bringing in light; war is peace and peace is war]

DCJ: if we got universal health care and ran it like the French do,

- Barack Obama said WE WOULD HAVE UNIVERSAL HEALTH CARE BY 2013

T: people do not realize that one of the 2 things ruining our economy is the bleeding of the money going to the insurance folks - BO restricted them to 85% -

- it took 100 years to bust the hold of the insurance companies who put the money in their pockets
- if they use more than 15% of the money for administration, they have to give a rebate to the people from whom they got the money.
- BO was not able to get the cost of everything : eg using a box of kleenex costs $5! The drug plan costs an enormous am't
- In Cuba, a pill costs one penny! Medical system is free; training medical doctors is free
- And why is health care an entitlement that is bankrupting the country? Why isn't it a national operation [single payer] that costs more than the income tax we pay?
- For people to work to 67 is a death sentence for many
 - it contradicts the religious teachings the Republicans say they stand for
 - taking from those who have less to give it to those who have more is called evil
 - it is a system of sick care instead of a public service model
- For white rich people - life span is expanding
- For white poor people, black poor people - life span is not growing, in many cases falling back!

Caller: did T see the You Tube where Neil Keenan talked at the end - speaking from Indonesia, he is exhausted, everything is in order; waiting for one person to do what he said he would do and when he does, it will all blow apart!

R: watched; it's good: has to do with someone testifying against the 13 families; St Germain has it in his pocket

Caller: encouraging to know this: there is money to go around; about to happen

T: $135 Trillion; 2nd law suit was for the money with the 40 zeros behind it

Caller: video did show the documents had been filed; also said that the indigenous people of Indonesia has been guarding the gold for 60 years 7 will be happy not to worry about this anymore

T: there will be a huge shift!

What did KOS say? that we would see a huge change and we

R: talking in terms of BO putting a ban on all assault weapons - he may bring back what Bush Jr dropped and he may add something else

Neil Keenan has been working hard under very difficult conditions in Jakarta for almost two months. Today, along with a little history, he has some very important words to share with us. Preceding his words, Neil has asked our own Michael—known to many of you from the Global Announcement post here last month—to create a brief video preface to put his message in context.

In the very near future, the Elders will be setting up a very private meeting with him, and this is when they will finally rid themselves of their 60-year-old responsibility and allow Neil to assume it, knowing, as Neil has said, that there will never be one moment when they lose one cent. For the first time they will be relieved of their burden, knowing that not only their beloved Indonesia, but all of mankind will be treated with humanitarian care.

This was the Global Accounts' original purpose but they were hijacked not once, but twice, and used for war against us, the people of the planet, in an effort to control and enslave us. That time is now coming to an end and I believe this simple message from Neil will bring that end much closer.

Until recently Neil did not understand the importance of the fact that after going through Ceremony, he was specifically 'chosen' by the Elders in Indonesia to do this work.

This particular kind of Ceremony is not to be taken lightly: the Elders communicate with Mother Earth and Father Sky and, in my understanding of it, they ask if this is the person they have been waiting for to help them. Then, they wait for a response which usually comes in symbolic language from Mother Earth, and according to that response the particular person is chosen—or not chosen. My sense of this choice is that at the very least the person must be of impeccable integrity and, from my personal knowledge of Mr. Keenan, he embodies this quality.

Putting it in another way, a way that might more easily be understood by the Western world, the Elders communicate with the quantum field, which is the positive energy we call Love surrounding us all, about which many of us have only recently learned. They ask if this person is acceptable to it and it responds yea or nay. Other names for this energy are known as God, the Source, the Universe, I AM THAT I AM, the Field.

My personal experience with this field has been extraordinary. While I don't understand 'the numbers' of quantum theory, in my own personal life I have deeply lived its world view: everything we think, say, do, or feel is important and affects not only our own lives but that of the entire planet. This is because everything—absolutely everything—is energy and is interconnected, and so follows the law of energy: like attracts like.

I believe quantum theory is also the long-lost connection between God and Science. Today, as we all begin to go forward together in Unity instead of Duality, perhaps we can begin to heal this false division between God and Science deceitfully and knowingly inflicted on us by the cabal.

It seems the Universe chose this auspicious day, December 13th, at the new moon, for Neil to make this announcement. As I have posted elsewhere today, the number 13 is far more sacred than the dates of 12.12.12. An excerpt from Drunvalo Melchizedek's book, The Serpent of Light, highlights the general importance of Ceremony. If you have further interest in understanding the Global Accounts you can listen to an audio explanation that I've just posted here. The new moon's energies along with the planetary alignments today all support this simple announcement from Neil Keenan. . .

Thank you, Neil, from my heart.

Love and hugs,
~Jean

R: what he is hearing is that she made a conscious choice to leave today and let everyone know they are not alone

Caller: has been watching Santos' teaching -

T: Dec 21st is longest, darkest night: what Santos says - when Satan kills the sun is the darkest night and shortest day - then the sun rises again. In the older times, we did not have spring or fall

- those birds are super sensitive - this is the darkest time on the planet: chemtrails in the air -
- Caller: they are just not hardy; she was healthy - it was her first egg and it didn't come out right
- T: Angelsu asked T to talk about Gracie [the dog T & R have been baby-sitting]
- had a fracture in left rear leg; she has an angel of a vet who came to the house today - he is 6'4' tall with beautiful big hands - T could feel the bond between them. He said he had a lucid dream en route to the house;
 - Pamela [Gracie's "mum"] is leaving Santa Fe to go to Hawaii and now you have to show a passport to get on an airplane, thanks to the Rep gov. The roof of Pamela's house was leaking - everything inside sopping wet; it was a circle day yet she succumbed - Gracie said she does not want her bones anywhere except in New Mexico - Gracie was communicating spiritually: she would go to Hawaii so she would be with her Mum [Pamela], but still wants her bones in NM.
 - The vet explained that when she fractured the leg, the bottom bone is not aligned with the top bone - nature has formed a sack around the injury which makes it feel like she can put her foot down - which caused it to fracture again. This has happened about 3 times. This time it is very swollen - close to the hip joint.

Angelsu: Destiny card - asked about the beloved cockatiel - celebrating everything and feeling the universal flow of energy and joy, express all the things inside you that you would not normally do - as we speak about the birds and the dog, we are celebrating the beings they are - The bird was so in love: does it not make sense that she would go trying to give birth?

Caller: the mate was standing at her head and talking to her for the longest time - he was talking and whistling: he could have been celebrating her victory

Angelsu: we can anchor in this wonderful energy with you, and the energy of all the animal beings

Caller: we are all part of giving birth to this new reality - the first time for all of us

T: does not want to hurt Gracie more via the amputation of the leg; yet the vet said it is a simple operation: he only knows 2 surgeons who have the compassion for animals to do it; once the leg is removed, there is only a little tissue and no more pain

- The crystals that were brought to AK were brought here 20,000 years ago: there are additional earth generator crystals that were brought to the natural crystal bed and put there for this special day of 12/12/12
- Gracie is saying something: not saying that she wants to leave, but that she is 14 years old - it's a simple surgery; said if he were doing it, he would charge $300 for it and in 10 days, this would be a bad dream.
- Gracie would not be happy without her Mum: the energies between Hawaii and NM are connected
 - Hawaii is 19.5; Santa Fe is north of that - Washington, DC is 19.5 for a different reason because there is a Giza sized pyramid under the White House
- The symbol of that is overpowering: the whole country is being guided by 19.5 - Mexico City is 19.5 degrees, the connection to the Mayan and Kahuna energy of the South West

Caller: Hawaii has a 3 months quarantine for animals

- Oct 31, 2008 - the 10,000 banksters were boarded on international air force jets and flown to The Hague and put in prison cells. The moment McCain conceded on Nov 4 at 11:11 and for 6 hours after that, BO was debriefed and the first thing he did was order the execution of Hillary and the banksters - literally cutting off the head of the beast.
- Clinton has said nowhere could this be done in 4 years - minimum needed was 10 years!
 - It took 100 years of set-up to get it where they wanted in order to get NWO going - from Oct 1 - Oct 1st 1991 - a hundred year contract so that by the time we got to 1991, Oct 1st - they abandoned the regulations and started the dot com bubble - day trading programs

2012, Nov 26 Brzezinski~ “Populist Resistance” is Derailing the New World Order

<http://www.infowars.com/brzezinski-populist-resistance-is-derailing-the-new-world-order/>

Rise in “populist activism” a threat to “external control”

Paul Joseph Watson

Infowars.com

November 26, 2012

During a recent speech in Poland, former US National Security Advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski warned fellow elitists that a worldwide “resistance” movement to “external control” driven by “populist activism” is threatening to derail the move towards a new world order.

http://www.youtube.com/watch?feature=player_embedded&v=bHknL5z8f6k

Calling the notion that the 21st century is the American century a “shared delusion,” Brzezinski stated that American domination was no longer possible because of an accelerating social change driven by “instant mass communications such as radio, television and the Internet,” which have been cumulatively stimulating “a universal awakening of mass political consciousness.”

The former US National Security Advisor added that this “rise in worldwide populist activism is proving inimical to external domination of the kind that prevailed in the age of colonialism and imperialism.”

Brzezinski concluded that “persistent and highly motivated populist resistance of politically awakened and historically resentful peoples to external control has proven to be increasingly difficult to suppress.”

Although Brzezinski delivered his comments in a neutral tone, the context of the environment in which he said them allied to his previous statements would indicate that this is not a celebration of “populist resistance” but a lament at the impact it is having on the kind of “external control” Brzezinski has repeatedly advocated.

The remarks were made at an event for the European Forum For New Ideas (EFNI), an organization that advocates the transformation of the European Union into an anti-democratic federal superstate, the very type of bureaucratic “external control” Brzezinski stressed was in jeopardy in his lecture.

In this context, it must be understood that Brzezinski’s point about “populist resistance” being a major hindrance to the imposition of a new world order is more of a warning than an acclamation.

Also consider what Brzezinski wrote in his book Between Two Ages: America’s Role in the Technotronic Era, in which he advocated the control of populations by an elite political class via technotronic manipulation.

“The technotronic era involves the gradual appearance of a more controlled society. Such a society would be dominated by an elite, unrestrained by traditional values. Soon it will be possible to assert almost continuous surveillance over every citizen and maintain up-to-date complete files containing even the most personal information about the citizen. These files will be subject to instantaneous retrieval by the authorities,” wrote Brzezinski.

“In the technotronic society the trend would seem to be towards the aggregation of the individual support of millions of uncoordinated citizens, easily within the reach of magnetic and attractive personalities exploiting the latest communications techniques to manipulate emotions and control reason,” he wrote in the same book.

Brzezinski’s sudden concern about the impact of a politically awakened global population isn’t born out of any notion that he identifies with their cause. Brzezinski is the ultimate elitist insider, the founder of the powerful Trilateral Commission, a Council on Foreign Relations luminary and a regular Bilderberg attendee. He was once described by President Barack Obama as “one of our most outstanding thinkers”.

This is by no means the first time Brzezinski has lamented the burgeoning populist opposition to external domination by a tiny elite.

During a 2010 Council on Foreign Relations speech in Montreal, Brzezinski warned fellow globalists that a “global political awakening,” in combination with infighting amongst the elite, was threatening to derail the move towards a one world government.

2012, Dec 13 Outrageous HSBC Settlement Proves the Drug War is a Joke

POSTED: December 13, 3:25 PM ET

<http://www.rollingstone.com/politics/blogs/taibblog/outrageous-hsbc-settlement-proves-the-drug-war-is-a-joke-20121213>

Assistant US Attorney General Lanny Breuer
Ramin Talaie/Getty Images

If you've ever been arrested on a drug charge, if you've ever spent even a day in jail for having a stem of marijuana in your pocket or "drug paraphernalia" in your gym bag, Assistant Attorney General and longtime Bill Clinton pal Lanny Breuer has a message for you: Bite me.

Breuer this week signed off on a settlement deal with the British banking giant HSBC that is the ultimate insult to every ordinary person who's ever had his life altered by a narcotics charge. Despite the fact that HSBC admitted to laundering billions of dollars for Colombian and Mexican drug cartels (among others) and violating a host of important banking laws (from the Bank Secrecy Act to the Trading With the Enemy Act), Breuer and his Justice Department elected not to pursue criminal prosecutions of the bank, opting instead for a "record" financial settlement of $1.9 billion, which as one analyst noted is about five weeks of income for the bank.

The banks' laundering transactions were so brazen that the NSA probably could have spotted them from space. Breuer admitted that drug dealers would sometimes come to HSBC's Mexican branches and "deposit hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash, in a single day, into a single account, using boxes designed to fit the precise dimensions of the teller windows."

This bears repeating: in order to more efficiently move as much illegal money as possible into the "legitimate" banking institution HSBC, drug dealers specifically designed boxes to fit through the bank's teller windows. Tony Montana's henchmen marching dufflebags of cash into the fictional "American City Bank" in Miami was actually more subtle than what the cartels were doing when they washed their cash through one of Britain's most storied financial institutions.

Though this was not stated explicitly, the government's rationale in not pursuing criminal prosecutions against the bank was apparently rooted in concerns that putting executives from a "systemically important institution" in jail for drug laundering would threaten the stability of the financial system. The New York Times put it this way:

Federal and state authorities have chosen not to indict HSBC, the London-based bank, on charges of vast and prolonged money laundering, for fear that criminal prosecution would topple the bank and, in the process, endanger the financial system.

It doesn't take a genius to see that the reasoning here is beyond flawed. When you decide not to prosecute bankers for billion-dollar crimes connected to drug-dealing and terrorism (some of HSBC's Saudi and Bangladeshi clients had terrorist ties, according to a Senate investigation), it doesn't protect the banking system, it does exactly the opposite. It terrifies investors and depositors everywhere, leaving them with the clear impression that even the most "reputable" banks may in fact be captured institutions whose senior executives are in the employ of (this can't be repeated often enough) murderers and terrorists. Even more shocking, the Justice Department's response to learning about all of this was to do exactly the same thing that the HSBC executives did in the first place to get themselves in trouble – they took money to look the other way.

And not only did they sell out to drug dealers, they sold out cheap. You'll hear bragging this week by the Obama administration that they wrested a record penalty from HSBC, but it's a joke. Some of the penalties involved will literally make you laugh out loud. This is from Breuer's announcement:

As a result of the government's investigation, HSBC has . . . "clawed back" deferred compensation bonuses given to some of its most senior U.S. anti-money laundering and compliance officers, and agreed to partially defer bonus compensation for its most senior officials during the five-year period of the deferred prosecution agreement.

Wow. So the executives who spent a decade laundering billions of dollars will have to partially defer their bonuses during the five-year deferred prosecution agreement? Are you fucking kidding me? That's the punishment? The government's negotiators couldn't hold firm on forcing HSBC officials to completely wait to receive their ill-gotten bonuses? They had to settle on making them "partially" wait? Every honest prosecutor in America has to be puking his guts out at such bargaining tactics. What was the Justice Department's opening offer – asking executives to restrict their Caribbean vacation time to nine weeks a year?

So you might ask, what's the appropriate financial penalty for a bank in HSBC's position? Exactly how much money should one extract from a firm that has been shamelessly profiting from business with criminals for years and years? Remember, we're talking about a company that has admitted to a smorgasbord of serious banking crimes. If you're the prosecutor, you've got this bank by the balls. So how much money should you take?

How about all of it? How about every last dollar the bank has made since it started its illegal activity? How about you dive into every bank account of every single executive involved in this mess and take every last bonus dollar they've ever earned? Then take their houses, their cars, the paintings they bought at Sotheby's auctions, the clothes in their closets, the loose change in the jars on their kitchen counters, every last freaking thing. Take it all and don't think twice. And then throw them in jail.

Sound harsh? It does, doesn't it? The only problem is, that's exactly what the government does just about every day to ordinary people involved in ordinary drug cases.

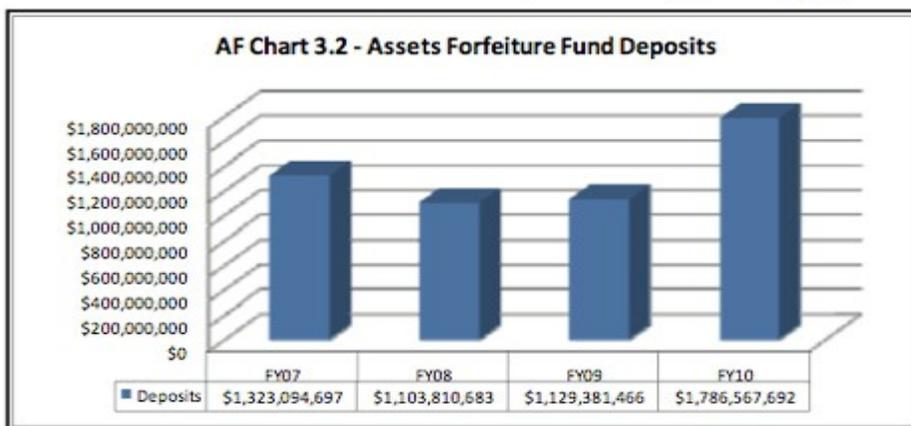

It'd be interesting, for instance, to ask the residents of Tenaha, Texas what they think about the HSBC settlement.

That's the town where local police routinely pulled over \(mostly black\) motorists and, whenever they found cash, offered motorists a choice: They could either allow police to seize the money, or face drug and money laundering charges.

Or we could ask Anthony Smelley, the Indiana resident who won $50,000 in a car accident settlement and was carrying about $17K of that in cash in his car when he got pulled over. Cops searched his car and had drug dogs sniff around: The dogs alerted twice. No drugs were found, but police took the money anyway. Even after Smelley produced documentation proving where he got the money from, Putnam County officials tried to keep the money on the grounds that he could have used the cash to buy drugs in the future.

Seriously, that happened. It happens all the time, and even Lanny Breuer's own Justice Department gets into the act. In 2010 alone, U.S. Attorneys' offices deposited nearly $1.8 billion into government accounts as a result of forfeiture cases, most of them drug cases. You can see the Justice Department's own statistics right here:

Asset Forfeiture Chart 3.1 reflects the number of judgments the United States Attorneys' offices obtained in criminal and civil asset forfeiture cases during the past four years. The chart does not include federal administrative asset forfeiture matters, state court filings, or money judgments.

Asset Forfeiture Chart 3.2, above, shows deposits to the Department of Justice Assets Forfeiture Fund resulting from criminal and civil cases litigated by United States Attorneys' offices since Fiscal Year 2007. Deposits into the Department of Treasury Forfeiture Fund resulting from criminal and civil cases litigated by United States Attorneys' offices are also included in the figures for Fiscal Year 2007 through Fiscal Year 2010.

In Fiscal Year 2010, the United States Attorneys' work on judicial asset forfeitures resulted in the deposit of $1,786,567,692 into the Department of Justice and Treasury forfeiture funds, representing a 58 percent increase over the previous year. Over $237.1 million was returned to victims, and over $189.8 million was equitably shared with state, local, and international law enforcement. See Table 16.

If you get pulled over in America with cash and the government even thinks it's drug money, that cash is going to be buying your local sheriff or police chief a new Ford Expedition tomorrow afternoon.

And that's just the icing on the cake. The real prize you get for interacting with a law enforcement officer, if you happen to be connected in any way with drugs, is a preposterous, outsized criminal penalty. Right here in New York, one out of every seven cases that ends up in court is a marijuana case.

Just the other day, while Breuer was announcing his slap on the wrist for the world's most prolific drug-launders, I was in arraignment court in Brooklyn watching how they deal with actual people. A public defender explained the absurdity of drug arrests in this city. New York actually has fairly liberal laws about pot – police aren't supposed to bust you if you possess the drug in private. So how do police work around that to make 50,377 pot-related arrests in a single year, just in this city? That was 2010; the 2009 number was 46,492.)

"What they do is, they stop you on the street and tell you to empty your pockets," the public defender explained. "Then the instant a pipe or a seed is out of the pocket – boom, it's 'public use.' And you get arrested."

People spend nights in jail, or worse. In New York, even if they let you off with a misdemeanor and time served, you have to pay $200 and have your DNA extracted – a process that you have to pay for (it costs 50 bucks). But even beyond that, you won't have [to] search very far for stories of draconian, idiotic sentences for nonviolent drug crimes.

Just ask Cameron Douglas, the son of Michael Douglas, who got five years in jail for simple possession. His jailers kept him in solitary for 23 hours a day for 11 months and denied him visits with family and friends. Although your typical non-violent drug inmate isn't the white child of a celebrity, he's usually a minority user who gets far stiffer sentences than rich white kids would for committing the same crimes – we all remember the crack-versus-coke controversy in which federal and state sentencing guidelines left (predominantly minority) crack users serving sentences up to 100 times harsher than those meted out to the predominantly white users of powdered coke.

The institutional bias in the crack sentencing guidelines was a racist outrage, but this HSBC settlement blows even that away. By eschewing criminal prosecutions of major drug launderers on the grounds (the patently absurd grounds, incidentally) that their prosecution might imperil the world financial system, the government has now formalized the double standard.

They're now saying that if you're not an important cog in the global financial system, you can't get away with anything, not even simple possession. You will be jailed and whatever cash they find on you they'll seize on the spot, and convert into new cruisers or toys for your local SWAT team, which will be deployed to kick in the doors of houses where more such inessential economic cogs as you live. If you don't have a systemically important job, in other words, the government's position is that your assets may be used to finance your own political disenfranchisement.

On the other hand, if you are an important person, and you work for a big international bank, you won't be prosecuted even if you launder nine billion dollars. Even if you actively collude with the people at the very top of the international narcotics trade, your punishment will be far smaller than that of the person at the very bottom of the world drug pyramid. You will be treated with more deference and sympathy than a junkie passing out on a subway car in Manhattan (using two seats of a subway car is a common prosecutable offense in this city). An international drug trafficker is a criminal and usually a murderer; the drug addict walking the street is one of his victims. But thanks to Breuer, we're now in the business, officially, of jailing the victims and enabling the criminals.

This is the disgrace to end all disgraces. It doesn't even make any sense. There is no reason why the Justice Department couldn't have snatched up everybody at HSBC involved with the trafficking, prosecuted them criminally, and worked with banking regulators to make sure that the bank survived the transition to new management. As it is, HSBC has had to replace virtually all of its senior management. The guilty parties were apparently not so important to the stability of the world economy that they all had to be left at their desks.

So there is absolutely no reason they couldn't all face criminal penalties. That they are not being prosecuted is cowardice and pure corruption, nothing else. And by approving this settlement, Breuer removed the government's moral authority to prosecute anyone for any other drug offence. Not that most people didn't already know that the drug war is a joke, but this makes it official.

2. Ophiuchus Family Tree ~ I. Celestial Branch

The Celestial Branch – Constellation Ophiuchus

Asclepius & Rho Ophiuchus

“This is the constellation which is in Scorpion, having in both hands a serpent. It is said, indeed, to be Asclepius whom Zeus, as a favor to Apollo, raised up among the stars. He employed his medical skill to revive even those already dead, among whom the last was Hippolytus, the son of Theseus, and the gods took this unfavorably lest their honors be curtailed if Asclepius were able to accomplish such deeds; therefore it is said that Zeus in his wrath hurled a thunderbolt at his dwelling; then for Apollo’s sake he raised Asclepius to the stars.

It has a sufficient brilliance although it is in the largest star, that is, Scorpion, and it shines forth in clear outline.” Edelstein and Edelstein, Asclepius, Collection and Interpretation of the Testimonies, Vol. I, pp. 58-59 citing Ps. Eratosthenes, Catasterismi, I, 6.

These divinities, which we do not see among the stars, inasmuch as they do not have their own characteristic signs, share their powers with others. Just as Ophiuchus is Asclepius himself... so the Ram is recognized as the star of Minerva. Emma J. Edelstein and Ludwig Edelstein, Asclepius, Vol. I, p. 59 citing Servius, Commentarii in Aeneidem, XI, 259.

Constellation Ophiuchus gets my vote for Best Kept Secret in the Known Universe. Besides its preeminently powerful location on the zodiac belt, the history, myth, and lost oral traditions underlying this surprise star sign make it one of the most important rediscoveries in modern metaphysical history.

The constellation's name "Ophiuchus" (also called "Serpentarius") is a term meaning serpent holder or serpent bearer.1

Taken together with its giant serpent, the serpent holder constellation technically consists of three constellations, a snake holder and a snake in two parts (Serpens Caput and Serpens Cauda). The snake holder is literally standing on the zodiac belt north of and between constellations Scorpius and Sagittarius holding on to what has historically been pictured as a single python-sized snake.

The constellation we are told takes its storyline from the myth of Asclepius, a master physician par excellence who lived and practiced the healing arts in ancient Greece in or around 1400 BCE2 and who was killed by Zeus with a thunderbolt for an offence that varies according to the version of myth one consults.

Of particular relevance to the constellation's meaning in the context of the present day is a prophecy from the Roman mythic period recorded in Ovid's *Metamorphoses*3 referring to a second renewal of Asclepius's destiny that by my calculation has not occurred yet.

"Ocyrrhoë, the daughter of the Centaur Chiron, attempting to predict future events, tells her father the fate of the child Æsculapius, on which the Gods transform her into a mare. * * * She was not contented to learn her father's arts only; but she sang the secrets of the Fates. Therefore, when she had conceived in her mind the prophetic transports, and grew warm with the God, whom she held confined within her breast, she beheld the infant, and she said, "Grow on, child, the giver of health to the whole world; the bodies of mortals shall often owe their own existence to thee. To thee will it be allowed to restore life when taken away; and daring to do that once against the will of the Gods, thou wilt be hindered by the bolts of thy grandsire from being able any more to grant that boon. And from a God thou shalt become a lifeless carcase; and a God again, who lately wast a carcase; and twice shalt thou renew thy destiny." Ovid, Metamorphoses II, FABLE X, Ocyrrhoë. (Roman epic C1st B.C.E. to C1st A.D.)

As the popular version of the myth of Asclepius ends, Zeus places the slain mortal Asclepius in the sky (first death). Asclepius's ensuing career as a Greek god (first renewal of his destiny) ends with his being dispatched by the Christians in the pagan overthrow period along with the rest of the gods and goddesses of the time (second death).

His destiny role as "savior of the whole world" is usurped by the Holy Roman Empire in the name of the new dying god and savior, Jesus Christ. But the body of stars to which Zeus remanded Asclepius has remained unconquered and undisturbed all this time, partially because astrologers and astronomy scientists were targeted for conformity compliance or extinction by the Church Fathers.

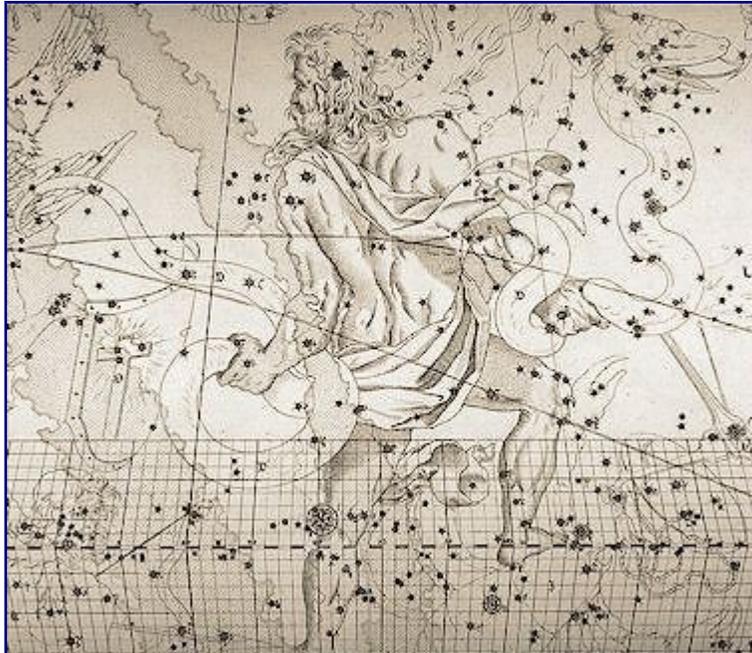

But the stars and the sign remained undisturbed [there was no way to get rid of them], preserving the memory and essence of the Serpent Holder and its mythos. Practitioners of the heavenly and metaphysical arts were reportedly persecuted and prosecuted to the fullest extent, in all likelihood to keep a lid on this esoteric truth that turncoat priests of the pagan gods to save their hides could not possibly have overlooked or failed to know.

To kill off an entire layer of the divine fabric, though, takes a lot more doing than the destruction of temples and peoples.

This history of spiritual anthropology and circumstance strongly suggests a return of the perfected essences of the Serpent Holder from the vault of the starry sky could conceivably renew Asclepius's destiny a second time, completing the Roman mythstorians' own prophecy.

Celestial Intelligence, Intelligent Universe & The Divine

The unabridged story of the serpent holder and its related constellation, with all of the details told and no stone left unturned, cannot be told because it is a work still in progress, with the so-called second coming featured as an unresolved legacy issue.4

Of perhaps greater moment than the second coming of Christ is what an impending second renewal of Asclepius's destiny implies: That the stars behind the 13th constellation not only mark the Divine Asclepius as dynamic living light of Zodiacal Intelligence but are actually composed of the vital essences of a once human man or soul group whose earth walk only seemed to end when Zeus placed Asclepius among the stars.

For me it is not too much of a stretch to imagine that a body-mind-spirit-soul so commended, to be supra-interred, would be preserved incorruptible, freed of earthly constraints including gender bias, beyond Time and Space, to follow its dharma in continuance of a blessed and ordained soul family tradition in furtherance of that family's cosmic agenda.

Fixed thus in the firmament of the heavens along with the myriad other created life forms referred to in the Book of Genesis, I reasoned if for example statues can weep and bleed5 serving as vehicles for the expression and facilitation of miracles leading the faithless to faith and the saintly to the mantle of sainthood, then by what form of arrogance do I formulate a judgment that in the vastness of the Universe the stars and countless other celestial objects don't live and breathe according to their particular constitutions and act and influence the spaces around them in their roles as transcendent (by Earth's standards) super beings? "It would be a terrible waste of space," quoth Ellie/Jodie Foster in the movie Contact.

“MAZZAROTH is a Hebrew word which means in general “The Constellations of the Zodiac.” The book of Job, which is thought to be the oldest book in the Bible, goes back to approximately 2,150 B.C., which is 650 years before Moses came upon the scene around 1,500 B.C. to write the Pentateuch.” From The Alpha and the Omega, Jim A. Cornwell, 1995, www.mazzaroth.com/Introduction/MazzarothDefined.htm

“The Mazzaroth is believed to have been given from God to Adam to show His plan of redemption for man. It was supposedly corrupted by the Babylonians approximately around the building of the tower of Babel in Genesis.  It is believed by some historians and scholars that the purpose behind this astrological reference was a prophetic guide to the coming of the Jewish Messiah. The knowledge of this was known to many in the ancient world, being orally perpetuated to succeeding generations from Seth (see the Book of Genesis, the 5th chapter) and eventually to Job and his contemporaries.” Mazzaroth From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mazzaroth> 02/03/2009

“Mazal” is literally associated with the twelve signs of the Zodiac, which are called the “Mazalot,” but we use the word in a way which means more than just the Zodiac. Rabbi Moshe Chaim Luzatto explains that there is a multi-leveled conceptual system through which HaShem interacts with the physical creation. In other words, “energy” which originates with HaShem travels through this system and eventually reaches us. At some point along the way, this energy is said to pass through the Mazalot, the stars and the planets, which then transfer it to the rest of creation. This explains how people trained in astrology may know what will happen to an individual in the future. They are “reading,” through the configuration of the Mazalot, the energy that is yet to be delivered. However, we are actually forbidden to engage in the prediction of the future via astrology even though it may work. The source of this prohibition is, “You shall be tamim (pure, perfect, simple) with HaShem your G-d.” Mazal (“sign,” pl. mazalot):

1. a spiritual conduit of Divine beneficence (from the Hebrew root “to flow” [nozel]).
2. specifically, the thirteen tufts of the “beard” of Arich Arpin.
3. a physical embodiment of such a spiritual conduit, such as a star, planet, constellation, etc.
4. specifically, the twelve constellations of the zodiac.
5. According to our sages, the Jewish People are not under the influence of the mazalot[145].

HaShem chose not to give the Torah in Nisan or Iyar, for the mazal of Nisan is a lamb and the mazal of Iyar is a bull and neither is capable of singing praise. Rather, He gave the Torah in Sivan, for the mazal of Sivan is twins, who have hands with which to clap and legs with which to dance.[146]

In Kabbala and Chasidut, it is explained that the thirteenth mazal transforms the entire set of mazalot into attributes of mercy. This is because numerically, twelve is a closed, rigid, perfect system; reflected in the physical world by the twelve lunar months and the twelve signs of the zodiac; in the Jewish people, by the twelve tribes; in the spiritual realm, by the twelve permutations of the letters of the Divine Name Havaya, and so on. In each of these sets, however, there is a (sometimes hidden) thirteenth element that adds the flexibility and adaptive quality that makes the set alive, pliable and viable. This is perhaps most clearly evident with regard to the twelve lunar months. In the Jewish calendar, a thirteenth month is added in seven out of every nineteen years in order to align the lunar year with the solar year. Here, the thirteenth lunar month makes the twelve original ones into an empathic system that can coexist with its solar “mate.” Similarly, the thirteenth tribe, Levi, officiates at the Temple, reconciling the twelve tribes of the Jewish people with their “mate,” HaShem. The Mazzaroth (Zodiac), Hillel ben David (Greg Killian) <http://www.betemunah.org/mazaroth.html>

The impact of the above on the worlds beneath the starry canopy, if we let it back into our lives, has the ability to put a quantum spin on form and content of the science of astronomy while simultaneously pumping a restorative infusion of celestial life essences back into the body of astrology to evolve it into a space age paradigm.

Research reveals that the Asclepiads like the Egyptians from whom they learned were experts in many fields of science, being especially proficient astronomer-astrologers. In and around the time of Galileo astronomer-astrologers learned the hard way that their discoveries were considered heretical, capital crimes by the Christian church.

It was under duress and in dire circumstances that the simple language used to explain the signs in the sky turned into a dialect of symbolism so as not to conflict with the descriptions of God’s creations as found in dogmatic documents such as the Bible. Hence, the record in these matters is bound to be unsatisfying, however, in the natural unfoldment of future events the destiny of this matter will be revealed as surely as the previously hidden zodiac constellation Ophiuchus mysteriously experienced a spontaneous revival in the waning hours of the 20th Century.

OPHIUCHUS TIMELINE

- 2650 BCE – Imhotep builds Step Pyramid at Saqqara, Egypt
- 1600 B.C.E. — Minoan Crete “Serpent Goddess” at Knossos
- 7th or 8th Century BCE – Epic Poets document myth of Asclepius being smote by Zeus with Thunderbolt-sent to stars as Ophiuchus
- 3rd Century BCE – Height of popularity of Cult of Asclepius
- 1st Century BCE – Ptolemaic period bas relief zodiac on ceiling of Egyptian Temple of Hathor at Dendera
- 10-10-1604 Kepler’s Star sighted by Galileo (see tabulation)
- 1928 – IAU begins drawing boundaries around constellations (see tabulation)
- 1930 – IAU formally adopts boundaries (tabulated)
- January 20, 1995 UK headline news puts Constellation Ophiuchus on the Zodiac Belt
