WHY CHRIST WAS BORN FOUR YEARS "BEFORE CHRIST"

When Christ was born, time was reckoned in the Roman Empire from the founding of the city of Rome. When Christianity became the universal religion over what had been the Roman world, a monk named Dionysius Exiguus, at the request of the Emperor Justinian, made a calendar, A.D. 526, reckoning time from the Birth of Christ, to supersede the Roman Calendar.

Long after the christian Calendar had replaced the roman calendar it was found that Dionysius had made a mistake in placing the Birth of Christ in the year 753 A U C (from the founding of Rome). It should have been 749 or a year or two earlier. Therefore, we say that Christ was born 4 B.C. Merely because the maker of the Christian Calendar made a mistake of four or five years in co-ordinating it with the Roman Calendar, which it replaced. (p. 229)

2012, Mar 2 Impotence in the Face of Impunity? The Phenomenon of the ‘Red Tops’ By William Bowles at Boiling Frogs Post

- Posted by Ram Arjuna on March 2, 2012 at 4:24pm

A fellow writer tells me that she feels overwhelmed by events and I feel the same way. An awful sense of déjà vu that we have as much chance of stopping the march to total war as they had in the 1930s. Except that this time it will not be us citizens of Empire who are on the receiving end of Western industrial-scale murder and pillage. The world's first colonial world war, with the haves pitted against the have-nots. As I have remarked before, without a non-capitalist alternative to not only reign in some of the 'excesses' of capitalism but also curtail its relentless expansion, the world is essentially defenseless.

That for as long as we remain disconnected from events beyond the shopping mall or the small screen, the Empire will act with impunity, knowing full well that the only opposition will be from those on the receiving end, those unfortunate enough to get some Western 'humanitarian aid'.

It is no accident that at the heart of the propaganda war, but buried away in the small print, the real objective of the 'right 2 protect', the 21st century's replacement for being on a 'civilizing mission', is the spread of the 'free market'. This is not merely an economic imperative but also ideologically driven, perhaps best illustrated by the grande dame of neoliberalism, Maggie Thatcher's "there's no such thing as society".

Hopefully, capitalist Russia and China as well as the rest of the BRIC members have at long last realized that it's not really about the West's hatred of socialism, handy though this is in the propaganda war, but about their economic and political independence, free from the machinations of global capitalism. This is what Syria is all about.

Now politicians such as yours truly are not meant to get personal when we write, we're meant to remain 'objective' and 'impartial' in an attempt to get a handle on things, to try and explain things the way they actually are as opposed to the way they are normally presented to us by a complicit corporate/state media.

That there are at least two sides to every situation, should be fairly obvious but being 'impartial' assumes that the writer/observer actually includes all the sides, or at least a reasonable facsimile of the facts so that the reader/viewer has enough information to go on in order to arrive at a conclusion (this also assumes the reader has an understanding of the context within which events take place). A long-winded way of saying there is no such thing as objective journalism.

It's as simple as what stories are chosen to be singled out as 'news', never mind what happens to the 'news' once Editorial has gotten its hands on it.

A case in point: Both the BBC and Channel 4 News have gone on a blow-up Syria binge for the past few weeks. All pretenses at some kind of 'objectivity' has been tossed out of the window as surplus to requirement and especially now that 'all-hallowed' Western journalists have become casualties in what is yet another MSM crusade to 'save the people of Syria from themselves'.

News is only 'news' when the MSM says it is and only for as long as it considers it to be 'news'. Thus Libya is no longer 'news', this in spite of the fact that one news story talks of Libya's potential breakup as a nation state. Is this not only news but major news considering what a crucial role the MSM played in promoting the country's destruction?

For months the MSM quite eagerly pursued the idea of destroying Gaddafi aka Libya, indeed fomented a national 'consensus' around the idea of 'taking out' Gaddafi. Acting as cheer leader for the multi-national corps and their political servants (which includes the corporate/state media), they have achieved their end:

Libya "close to disintegration" – PM

Speaking on the first anniversary of the anti-Gaddafi revolution in Misurata Monday, interim Libyan Prime Minister Mustafa Abdeljalil warned of complete national disintegration if the rival tribes and clans that had laid hands on Gaddafi's arsenals continued to refuse to submit to the authority of the central government. — Voice of Russia, News 27/2/12

Without doubt this was one objective of NATO's (unseen by us what paid for it) aerial visitation: to reduce Libya to little more than a source of oil and the other to turn it into a launch pad into the rest of Africa for NATO/AFRICOM's 'humanitarian' missions. There is no clearer example of the real nature of capitalism than the calculated destruction of Libya: that the Empire doesn't give damn about the people whose lives and livelihood it is destroying.

An entire country and its infrastructure wiped out and carried out virtually invisible to the world. We were all sidetracked by the endless video bytes of 'heroic rebels fighting the evil (and mad) Gaddafi'. In reality a total sideshow to the real war conducted from above and in secret on a defenseless country.

Genuine independence from Western control will simply not be tolerated and if possible, the irritant will be removed, eliminated, either by threats, subversion or ultimately invasion under some pretext or other. It's been like this for literally centuries, until the Russian Revolution came along and messed it all up but now it's out of the way, the Empire can get on with business the way it used to be done: with brute force and gunships.

That the reason these facts (amongst others) are missing from the MSM's coverage of major events is surely obvious: Western supremacy in all things is a given, thus there is no need to explain the MSM's conflict of interest or why certain facts are omitted from its 'news' coverage. In any case, what corporate newspaper or news program is going to announce to the world that it has a vested interest in maintaining the status quo and must for example, dismiss the cry 'it's all about oil' as nutty conspiracy nonsense.

Not that it is all about oil, but without the oil the Empire is going nowhere. Oil literally as well as figuratively lubricates the Empire's wheels and has done so since before WWI, when oil replaced coal as the motive power for the Empire's weapons of war and conquest.[1]

So am I being 'impartial' and 'objective' when I write about these events from a different perspective? Of course not. Firstly, this is not the weather forecast and secondly, my 'bias' or partiality is quite clearly stated and that's the difference between the mainstream media and much independent journalism. As a human being I have declared what side I am on based simply on the view that there is a better way to do things, a better way to live than this endless madness.

Bound up with the nature of the media of course is the idea of professionalism and professional standards, all of which lie in tatters after l'affaire Murdoch blew the lid on the illegal, immoral and unprofessional relationship between News Corp's various publications, the police and the government, with bribes, kickbacks and cover-ups being the norm. Which by the way is going from bad to worse to downright dangerous to the political class as the true nature and scale of the corruption is now seeing the light of day. How the mainstream media handles this is crucial.

Corruption across Whitehall! Three words I never expected to put in one sentence, but the evidence of Deputy Assistant Commissioner Sue Akers from Scotland Yard at the Leveson Inquiry is complete dynamite. DAC Akers is leading the investigation into allegations that employees of Rupert Murdoch's News International ran a covert, systemic operation in which they paid huge sums to public officials in the police, the military, the Department of Health and many other areas of Whitehall. The payments were dressed up and in at least one case involved sums as high as £80,000. — Channel 4 News Email, 27 February 2012

From the government side it was all 'nudge-nudge, wink-wink, don't worry we'll take care of it' and from News Corp's side it was cash, lots of filthy moola greasing the hands of various police officers and government officials. Surely business as usual as far as I can see. Thus Jon Snow's amazement on the 'revelations' made public (but not for the first time I might add) yesterday during the Leveson Inquiry is itself amazing.

The mainstream media, when forced to gaze at itself gets a sudden attack of severe myopia as well as a goodly dollop of self-righteousness. 'What me?' After all, we had what was it, nine years of 'new' Labour where the incestuous relationship between Murdoch's News Corp and the government was not only self-evident but boasted about by the MSM and Blair and his motley crew of war criminals. But there was, and is no media equivalent of a blitzkrieg concerning the unhealthy, indeed undemocratic relationship between the media barons and the ruling political class.

But the most surprising evidence of the day centered on evidence that whilst Ian Blair was commissioner of the Met, the former editor of the News of the World, Rebekah Brooks had been allowed to borrow a police horse. — Channel 4 News, Email, 28 February 2012

Murdoch's newspapers (amongst others) effectively determined how large chunks of those who bothered to vote, would vote. Why this is so takes more than this short essay to explain but essentially it comes back to the issue I referred to in my previous piece on 'science fiction' namely that the ruling political class has hijacked working class consciousness and effectively turned it against working people.

Thus we have the phenomenon of the 'Red Tops', all written and run by well paid, university trained media professionals who have learned how to communicate their master's message to its target audience, the working class. The same media professionals perform an identical function when talking to themselves, the only difference is the language used.

As independent journalists this is what we are up against: a sophisticated amalgam of the very best skills and talents a modern university system can produce, all geared to propping up and justifying a system that is at the very least plainly unjust and at the worse culpable of mass murder and theft on a global scale. That without the mass media attaching our name to the actions of its masters, such activities would simply not be possible.

Vatican declares Knights Templar innocent for 700th anniversary

<http://www.theinsider.org/news/article.asp?id=2623>

*** The Roman Catholic Church graciously acknowledged that the Knights Templar were innocent yesterday (Vatican Information Service, 4th Oct). The news was reported in the press today, exactly seven days before the 700th anniversary of the persecution of the Order. The persecution of the Templars began on Friday, 13 October 1307, when the medieval organization was unjustly attacked and driven underground. A letter to the Pope from living descendents of the Templars appeared in the press in 2004. "We shall witness the 700th anniversary of the persecution of our order on 13th October 2007," the letter said. "It would be just and fitting for the Vatican to acknowledge our grievance in advance of this day of mourning." On 25 October 2007, exactly 13 days from the morning of the anniversary, an official document will be released by the Vatican absolving the Knights Templar and confirming their innocence. ***

Vatican paper set to clear Knights Templar

The mysteries of the Order of the Knights Templar could soon be laid bare after the Vatican announced the release of a crucial document which has not been seen for almost 700 years.

Knights Templar are rumoured to guard the Holy Grail

A new book, Processus contra Templarios, will be published by the Vatican's Secret Archive on Oct 25, and promises to restore the reputation of the Templars, whose leaders were burned as heretics when the order was dissolved in 1314.

The Knights Templar were a powerful and secretive group of warrior monks during the Middle Ages. Their secrecy has given birth to endless legends, including one that they guard the Holy Grail.

Recently, they have been featured in films including The Da Vinci Code and Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade.

The Order was founded by Hugues de Payns, a French knight, after the First Crusade of 1099 to protect pilgrims on the road to Jerusalem. Its headquarters was the captured Al-Aqsa mosque on the Temple Mount, which lent the Templars their name.

But when Jerusalem fell to Muslim rule in 1244, rumours surfaced that the knights were heretics who worshipped idols in a secret initiation ceremony.

In 1307, King Philip IV "the Fair" of France, in desperate need of funds, ordered the arrest and torture of all Templars. After confessing various sins their leader, Jacques de Molay, was burnt at the stake.

Pope Clement V then dissolved the order and issued arrest warrants for all remaining members. Ever since, the Templars have been thought of as heretics.

The new book is based on a scrap of parchment discovered in the Vatican's secret archives in 2001 by Professor Barbara Frale. The long-lost document is a record of the trial of the Templars before Pope Clement, and ends with a papal absolution from all heresies.

Prof Frale said: "I could not believe it when I found it. The paper was put in the wrong archive in the 17th century."

The document, known as the Chinon parchment, reveals that the Templars had an initiation ceremony which involved "spitting on the cross", "denying Jesus" and kissing the lower back, navel and mouth of the man proposing them.

The Templars explained to Pope Clement that the initiation mimicked the humiliation that knights could suffer if they fell into the hands of the Saracens, while the kissing ceremony was a sign of their total obedience.

The Pope concluded that the entrance ritual was not truly blasphemous, as alleged by King Philip when he had the knights arrested. However, he was forced to dissolve the Order to keep peace with France and prevent a schism in the church.

"This is proof that the Templars were not heretics," said Prof Frale. "The Pope was obliged to ask pardon from the knights.

"For 700 years we have believed that the Templars died as cursed men, and this absolves them."

VATICAN CITY, OCT 4, 2007 (VIS) - On October 25 in the Vatican's Old Synod Hall, the presentation will take place of the "Processus contra Templarios," a book published by the Vatican Secret Archives on the subject of the Knights Templar, the medieval military-religious order founded in Jerusalem in 1118 and suppressed by Pope Clement V (1305-1314).

<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/europe/7029513.stm>

The Vatican is to publish a book which is expected to shed light on the demise of the Knights Templar, a Christian military order from the Middle Ages.

The book is based on a document known as the Chinon parchment, found in the Vatican Secret Archives six years ago after years of [allegedly] being incorrectly filed.

The document is a record of the heresy hearings of the Templars before Pope Clement V in the 14th Century.

The official who found the paper says it exonerates the knights entirely.

The leader of the order, Jacques de Moley, was one of those who confessed [under duress and after extreme torture] to heresy, but later recanted.

He was burned at the stake in Paris in 1314, the same year that the Pope dissolved the order.

However, according to Prof Frale, study of the document shows that the knights were not heretics as had been believed for 700 years.

In fact she says "the Pope was obliged to ask for pardons from the knights... the document we have found absolves them".

Details of the parchment will be published as part of Processus contra Templarios, a book that will be released by the Vatican's Secret Archive on 25 October.

The knights want a Papal apology nearly 700 years after they were disbanded and hounded into exile

THE VATICAN is giving "serious consideration" to apologising for the persecution that led to the suppression of the Knights Templar.

The suppression, which began on Friday, October 13, 1307, gave Friday the Thirteenth its superstitious legacy.

A Templar Order in Britain that claims to be descended from the original Knights Templar has asked that the Pope should make the apology.

The Templars, based in Hertford, are hoping for an apology by 2007, the 700th anniversary of the start of the persecution, which culminated with the torture and burning at the stake of the Grand Master Jacques de Molay for heresy and the dissolution of the Order by apostolic decree in 1312.

The letter, signed by the Secretary of the Council of Chaplains on behalf of the Grand Master of the Poor Fellow Soldiers of Jesus Christ and the Temple of Solomon Grand Preceptory, with a PO box address in Hertford, formally requests an apology "for the torture and murder of our leadership", instigated by Pope Clement V.

"We shall witness the 700th anniversary of the persecution of our order on 13th October 2007," the letter says. "It would be just and fitting for the Vatican to acknowledge our grievance in advance of this day of mourning."

The Independent, "Knights Templar seek papal apology for 700 years of persecution", 29 November 2004.
http://news.independent.co.uk/uk/this\_britain/article22425.ece

Seven hundred years after they were denounced as heretics and condemned to torture and death, the Knights Templar are calling for a public apology from the Roman Catholic Church.

The secretive organization which was formed at the time of the Crusades has written to Pope John Paul II requesting that the Vatican officially atone for the persecution of the order.

The formal request for reconciliation to the Vatican has come from an English-based sept and is signed by the "Council of Chaplains, for and on behalf of the acting Grand Master". The letter asks for "an apology from the Vatican for the persecution of our brothers of the Knights Templar and the torture and murder of our leadership, under Pope Clement V during the 14th century AD".

The Hertfordshire-based group, one of thousands of Templar lodges around the world, is hopeful of a satisfactory outcome. "There have been some unofficial responses over the telephone and we have received certain indications from officials within the church that leaves us hopeful that an apology might be forthcoming," said a member of the order.

surrender of my will to the Divine Will of Mother/Father God, so I may align into my original Divine eight-cell blueprint,
letting go of any patterns of imperfection

I now spin the emotional and mental body star tetrahedrons within the Golden Flower of Life sphere in a clockwise and counterclockwise direction respectively, repeating aloud this activation sequence and Fibonacci ratio to the fifth dimension, 21 to 13, 33 times God speed to infinity.

I now experience my Self within the fifth dimensional Christed Timelines of Light, anchoring and activated the 3rd major Cosmic Christ Holographic Disc and two minor discs along the spinal column.

I gently move my body from side to side and backwards and forwards, facilitating the process of the cerebrospinal fluid and the recalibration of my nervous system, meridians and chakras.

And now, I assist the Company of Heaven and Master Hilarion to wrap Mother Earth and all Her Life in this sacred Orange Ray of Light, clearing distorted beliefs and lack of Spiritual understandings within the mainstream Scientific and intellectual communities.

I now assist all Life in experiencing these Patterns of Perfection through the Unity Grid of Divine Love.

I now find my Self back in my sacred space, grounding into the Crystal Heart of Mother Earth, and the Cosmic Heart of Mother/Father God.

I am now surrounded in this beautiful Orange Flame of Light, and the Golden Flame of Empowerment and One Unity Consciousness, Overlighting this sacred year of 2012.

I Am a sacred Being of Divine Love, a co-creator to the Company of Heaven, able to create new structures based on mental Illumination, concrete knowledge and innovative experimentation, and wield this through the Divine Will of Mother/Father God.

I Am All That I Am.
