T: Happy Wesak; Cinco de Maya Day; World Liberation Day

R: Camp Loveway: talking of this Wesak Festival and Cinco De Maya

- Obama's Dream Act will be passed !
- The Nameless Ones called: they were in Wesak Valley, with their camels
  - Had a Sherpa man with them, who said Sirian Commander is already on track, walking us through the gateway to 2012
  - Obama's speech knocked it out of the park today!

- go read the book Spirit Molecule and understand what happens in your brain when we go to sleep - these 2 are talking about spirit molecule, gold dust, and so on?

- The movie The Avenger is out - supposed to be a good one
- Ben Stewart was also on: we are given a divine dispensation to change the events on this planet;
  - Mother's children are doing it with their own hands as they choose to accept or not the divine dispensation of the Great Divine Director
- Not out of the question that Michelle could run for pres, next time! In response to Magic Mittens who has absolutely nothing!
- They are also saying to the women in this country: run for office in the Congress: time to set the record straight
- Melissia Harris Perry, Al Sharpton talking of these things: how the people have been traumatized by the 13 families
  - Don't mess with Mother - she's on a role; very soon the bell will ring for dinner

T: yesterday, Wilkerson [on Bill Maher's show] said I can guarantee our soldiers will not be fighting for a while; they are completely broken!

R: As we are witnessing the rollover from old world over to the new dispensation, the beginning of the new calendar - we are already in Sat Yuga -

- Ben Stewart described it, as did Diana and Dodi and Mr Jack the Sherpa man: we are doing this with love and the chi energy of peace
  - This man is coming before us with a minutely detailed plan and how we will walk through 2012 - as we walk across the canyon, remember what Rama was told: "Look at the back of my head, don't look down!"
  - It is instantaneous thought that is changing things: appearances are not what they seem to be!
- Lady Di now looks the part of where she is at the moment; appearances also change
  - The 1% has been told this is it!
- Jack the Sherpa man - 30 years ago he stole a loaf of bread, was put in prison in Katmandu, escaped into Himalayas, went to Wesak Valley, somehow ended up in contact with the galactics; he goes in and out of the bases in the Himalayas
  - Told Rama this is about our victory: LM Victory, the Great Divine Director, the frequency of the I AM presence. - it's the blue lightening in the Children of the Sun meditation - as you are equal of co-creator god, this is the level it is coming in - this is how it is done.
- The super moon leading up to the May 20th - Lady Di said to be in the Office of the Christ

Reading: back ground to the G8 summit in Chicago

- Location: McCormick Place on Lakeshore Drive, Chicago
  - 38th G8 Summit, first once in US since 2004 - 2,000 dignitaries + a large # from other places
  - Obama has invited African nations, men and women - begin of the turning
  - Using public transport will be best thing to use to avoid traffic snarls.
  - Reads the list of attendees - China has never been part of G8.
- Jack the Sherpa talked of Mother Zudiacas
  - Lady Di brought up the karma, dharma that Netanyahu goes through - has to be sedated every night so he can sleep: he has flesh eating disease - love them all! [sugar incites flesh rotting disease in the body, why it was introduced, is being pushed on us.]
  - sugar was brought in - goes back to the time of Methuselah ?
    - the manna which came from heaven was the gold dust that we eat when there was nothing else

R saw a forest ranger today walking through mall - he had a glock on his hip with a 33 bullets

- Forest Rangers now militarized; wearing bullet proof vest
- R asked him why he was dressed for war? Are the forests a war zone?
- Told R he came back from Afghanistan, couldn't find a job, now a ranger so he can pay his rent.
- He said I meditate, I do my mission; let me be! R said OK, I was just a bit shocked to see this!
- He listens to Ed, Mike Malloy, Thom Hartmann, Mike P: get out there and get active; if you want to fulfill your oath, live up to it; he went to Iraq, knows it was not about WMDs, but about the star gates but can't say a thing

T: Lady Di said in reference to notion that Russians would bring military to Chicago: if they try anything, they will be very, very surprised! Hinted at full intervention by the galactics

- She came over here on a star ship some time ago and met Rama behind a mesa where no one could find them - she looked like a punk! Black hair, ring through her nose, dog collar!

T & R haven't heard from them for a long time: when Will & Kate got married

- when the transfer of power happens, the U N becomes the House of Micah; Micah is the Angel of Unity, and he returns with Sanat Kumara; comes with unicorn energy of unity consciousness
- If Michelle becomes Pres after Barack, will take us to 2024 -

T: Hillary was embarrassed; she left China with Mr Chen in hospital, but he will come to the US & N Y U
China is the up and coming

R: The only way that Matt and Robert can talk of what is happening is to talk about the book by ??

- Debbie du Bois has another link for us to share with people like Joe the Plumber, David Frum, & others www.whatonearth2012.com this is about the bridging of worlds never bridged before so we can have a discussion about the Atlantean grids which are on line already
- Ben Stewart brought up Fukushima and the so-called earthquake: said it was man-made, a way to create nuclear disaster and destroy key groups on the planet: systematic ethnic cleansing!
- There is a pool of radioactive water on the roof of one of the reactors - if it falls or tips, Ashtar needs to be here in a flash - when these kinds of things happen, the galactics will be here!

T: a re-learning of the true history of the world is beginning between the triple moons

R: Ohio, being key states

T: did you ask Di if this was planned for them to start the campaign on May 5th?

R: what better to confront Mother's grandson than on such a day? This is about Wall Street paying it back to Main Street and they will end up in The Hague

T: Michelle and Obama are of the Moabite Aboriginal Nation and are sovereign

R: touched by the gentleness of these people: Chris Hayes talking of the insanity of these people in 1968, R shook hand with Robert Kennedy Sr before he was shot

Audio: Michelle introduces Obama, speaking at Ohio University - 14,000 people in stadium

- Michelle raises more money than Joe Biden does! Most effective speaker after Barack
- The little guy said: "We got your back, Barack! We love you!"
- TEXT OF THE SPEECH IS BELOW

Music: For George Harrison - Eric Clapton, Phil Collins, Paul McCartney, Harrison's son Jackson Brown: "Life in the Balance"

Astrology: Richard

- Still have earth trine with Pluto to Mars - this one is dissolving - lose stability of major earth trine
  - This trine is breaking up because Sun has other things to do - going to dance with Jupiter
  - have 2 other oppositions: full moon/Scorpio to sun/Taurus
Mercury opp. Saturn - Saturn will quiet inner chatter of Mercury
  - If look at the X - moon/sun; Saturn/Mercury - super conditions for World Liberation Day, World Meditation Day - this is the build up to this - can do interesting energy work tonight, tomorrow
- Pluto/Uranus - divine will & divine love working together
The green line: an inconjunct between Uranus and Mars: not quite exact - breaking up the pattern
Capricorn moon for Wed , Thursday - Moon conjuncts Pluto at 1:30 Wed afternoon - things could happen
Thursday has a lot of energy openings
Moon goes into Aquarius in Friday morning

The Astronomical Mandala - Sabian Symbols that Dane Rudyard did - 360 symbolic phases

Scene 4: second half of Taurus: Scene is titled "Confirmation" (each scene is 15 °)

- inadequacy of past knowledge in a time of crisis
  - refusing to depend upon the past, the seeker turns warrior, fighting anew the eternal great war"
- the spiritual life within the great soul must fight against the ego will that only knows how to use the powers of this material / the intellectual world - there is no escape
  - cleansing of the ego consciousness
  - the surge of new potentiality after the crisis
  - the awareness of spiritual forces at work - learning to discern what is meaningful to you personally in your own culture, religion
  - the social confirmation of natural excellence

  - the cultivation of natural energies for collective use and recreation
  - 3rd level, last 5 degrees: the individual/mental level: the ritualization of individual desires
- 26 Taurus
28 Taurus - peaceful adaptation to collective needs - 28 Taurus
• man's capacity to rise in consciousness & feelings above biological limitations
29 Taurus - the 2 fold character of man's mature understanding: feeling and thought
30 Taurus: personal display of inherited gifts [as people open up psychically and use of whole brain, we will see displayed all kinds of hidden gifts, both within us and with out us

Scene 5: Discovery [Gemini 1 - 15 °]

Act 2, Scenes 7-12: Stabilization [summer season]

Astro.com planet chart does not do aspects with Chiron, but Chiron is closely sextiled to Pluto, both are at 10 ° for today

The synchronicity - copyright 1973:

T: speechless with the power of the energy of today - as we anchor it through the day: SO BE IT!

Richard: the moon is in 17 Taurus which is scene 16: the name of that scene is "faith" the fervent reaching out of the young of heart for new experiences a woman great with child - a total reliance of the god / goddess within

We have great energies + the 360 angels out of Divine Sky

T: the conference call dropped! And no one said anything

RI: the energies are high; it's kind of like a Mercury retrograde thing!

"12 Oversouls to a Source"

R: this is how we become sons and Daughters of the Most High

"In other words, you are not all incarnated on Earth at the same time."

T: this is separate and apart from the fact that Mother has told us that there are 17 identical souls in a body at the same in different cultures, different colours, & different timelines as they evolved or as they are assigned to helping different timelines to merge into one again - separation of minds and hearts got pretty separated

R: we are watching this in living colour and it's Magic Mittens

T: and one in 110 are born autistic in US and in New Jersey one in 60 boys is born autistic due to the pollution in and around there

R: Gov Chris Christie will not fix this; it will be we the people who do it

"Then you experience the galaxy as a group Monad in which there was a mix of First, Second and Third Ray." T: which means you gained more and more experiences

"Their Soul Family will have themselves, you and another 10 of entirely different members."

T: this is how we are all linked and make larger and larger circles of light

"One can reveal all 11 with a pendulum, or muscle testing."

T: Cynthia says there is general consensus that there are 11 dimensions. Tara knows there are 12 strands of DNA, the 12th being for the heart. The reptiles who invaded the planet were only allowed access here by denying the 12th strand of DNA. they are aware of the 11 levels of dimension and only have 11 strands of DNA

Reading: Cinco De Mayo, the fifth of May in Spanish, is a national holiday in Mexico which commemorates the victory of Mexican forces led by general Ignatius Gonzales over the french expeditionary y forces in the Battle of Pueblo on May 5, 1862.

Caller: you said that Obama signed ICC so US no longer a rogue state & have jurisdiction over the trouble makers in the US, and at the same time Neil Keenan's lawsuit that has now turned into a lien on all 13 Fed res banks
Now Drake is saying our generals from the Pentagon will be contacting Federal Marshalls to contact sheriffs in the various districts where these ones are to start the arrest process. So this means we are it: the galactics will watch and see us do it

T: yes, every other sentence was "I need your help." - Obama's word

R: that they did today [B & M] is a doorway to the next step, as everything is secured - the generals, the marshalls and the cops doing what they are lawfully supposed to do, we might see some friends who look like you step out of the woodwork and say "How about that cup of tea?"

Caller: it is a commercial lien that does not need to go through the courts, can go direct, but not sure if there is a time period in which they have to respond

T: good they don't have to go through courts - bunch of criminals

Caller: the corporate structure was set up, and the ways of doing commerce has been set up since the time of the Caesars - this is how businesses conduct things; as this is a business deal, and you don't respond in that time, then the others can go in and take action - not sure of the time period: 16 days or what? Not clear.

Caller: Chicago - it's G8 from 15th to 19th

T: they heard earlier that another group is meeting in Camp David privately & secretly - originally to be in Chicago - Chicago police are really ugly! It's a tough city . . .

2012, May 5     REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT AND FIRST LADY AT A CAMPAIGN EVENT

Virginia Commonwealth University, Richmond, Virginia

5:05 P.M. EDT

MRS. OBAMA: Hello, Virginia! (Applause.) It sounds like you all are already fired up. It sounds like you all are ready to go. (Applause.) And let me tell you something. Being here with all of you today, I am feeling pretty fired up and ready to go myself. (Applause.) Now, there is a reason why we're all here today, in addition to being fired up and ready to go. And it's not just because we all support an extraordinary man. (Applause.) And I am biased. I think our President is magnificent. (Applause.)

And it's not just because we want to win an election -- which we do. (Applause.) We are here because of the values we believe in. We're here because of the vision for this country that we all share. We're here because we want our children to have good schools, the kind of schools that push them, the kind of schools that inspire them and prepare them for good jobs. (Applause.) That's why we're here. We want our parents and our grandparents to retire with dignity, because we believe that after a lifetime of hard work, they should enjoy their golden years. (Applause.)

We're here because we want to restore that basic middle-class security for our families because we believe that folks in this country shouldn't go bankrupt because they get sick. (Applause.) We believe they shouldn't lose their home because someone loses a job. We believe that responsibility should be rewarded and hard work should pay off.

And the thing that we all know is that these are basic American values. They're the values that so many of us were raised with, including myself. (Applause.) I told this story earlier, but my father was a blue-collar worker at the city water plant. And my family lived in a very little apartment on the South Side of Chicago -- South Side! (Applause.) And neither of my parents had the chance to attend college, but let me tell you what my parents did do, which was just as important: They saved. And they sacrificed. And they poured everything they had into me and my brother because they wanted us to have the kind of education they could only dream of.

And while pretty much of all my college tuition came from student loans and grants -- (applause) -- you can relate to that -- my dad still paid a small portion of that tuition himself. And every semester, my father was determined to pay that bill on time -- because like so many parents, he was so proud to be sending his kids to college. And he couldn't bear the thought of me or my brother missing that registration deadline because his check was late.

Like so many people in this country, my father took great pride in being able to earn a living that allowed him to handle his responsibilities to his family, and to pay all of his bills and to pay them on time.

And truly, more than anything else, that is what's at stake in this election. It's that fundamental promise that no matter who you are or how you started out, if you work hard, you can build a decent life for yourself and yes, an even better life for your kids, right? (Applause.)

And it is that promise that binds us together as Americans. It's what makes us who we are. And whether it's equal pay for women, or health care for our kids; whether it's tax cuts for middle-class families, or student loans for our young people --that is what my President, my husband, your President has been fighting for every single day. (Applause.)

And let me tell you -- as First Lady, I have had the chance to see up close and personal what being President looks like. I have seen how the issues that come across a President's desk are always the hard ones -- the problems with no clear solutions, the judgment calls where the stakes are so high and there is no margin for error. And as President, you can get all kinds of advice from all kinds of people. But at the end of the day, when it comes time to make that decision, all you have to guide you are your life experiences, your values, and your vision for this country. (Applause.) In the end, when you're making those impossible choices, it all boils down to who you are and what you stand for.

And we all know who my husband is, right? (Applause.) And we all know what he stands for, right? (Applause.) See, Barack Obama, he is the son of a single mother who struggled to put herself through school and pay the bills. He's the grandson of a woman who woke up before dawn every day to catch a bus to her job at a bank. And even though Barack's grandmother worked hard to help support her family -- and she was good at her job -- like so many women, she hit that glass ceiling. And men no more qualified than she was were promoted up that ladder ahead of her.

So believe me, Virginia, Barack Obama knows what it means when a family struggles. (Applause.) He knows what it means when someone doesn't have a chance to fulfill their potential. Those are the experiences that have made him the man, but more importantly, the President he is today. (Applause.)

But I have said it before and I will say it again and again and again: He cannot do this alone. And fortunately, he never has. He never has -- because we have always moved this country forward together. (Applause.) Yes we have. And today, more than ever before, Barack needs your help. He needs your help. He needs every single one of you to give just a little part of your life each week to this campaign.

He needs you to register those voters, right? (Applause.) And to all the college students out here, listen up -- (applause) -- if you all are going to be moving over the summer, remember to register at your new address in the fall. You got that? (Applause.)

Barack needs you to join one of our neighborhood teams and start organizing in your own communities. And just one thing I want you all to understand: If you have any doubt about the difference that you can make, I just want you to remember that in the end, this election could all come down to those last few thousand people who register to vote. It could all come down to those last few thousand folks who get out to the polls on November the 6th.

And when you average all of that out over this entire state, think about it -- it might mean registering just one more person in your town. Just one more person. It might mean helping just one more person in your community get out and vote on Election Day. Think about it. One more person.

So with every door you knock on, with every single call you make, every conversation, I want you to remember that this could be the one. This could be the one that makes the difference. (Applause.) And that is the kind of impact that each of you can have in this election. (Applause.) Know that.

Now, I'm not going to kid you. This journey is going to be long. And it is going to be hard. But that is how change always happens in this country. It's how it always happens. And if we keep showing up, if we keep fighting the good fight, then eventually we'll get there. We always have. We always do. Maybe not in our lifetimes, but maybe in our children's lifetimes, maybe in our grandchildren's lifetimes -- because in the end, that is what this is all about. That's all it's about. (Applause.)

In the end, that's what I think about when I tuck my girls in at night. I think about the world I want to leave for them and for all of our sons and our daughters. I think about how I want to do for them what my dad did for me. I want to give them a foundation for their dreams. I want to give them opportunities worthy of their promise. I want to give them that sense of limitless possibility, that belief that here in America, there is always something better out there if you're willing to work hard for it. That's America. (Applause.)

So we can't turn back now. No, we can't! We have to keep moving forward. We've come so far. We have so much more to do -- so much more to do. And if we keep on moving forward then we need to work our hearts out, work them out, for the man that I have the pleasure of introducing here today. (Applause.)

Virginia, I introduce to you my husband and our President, President Barack Obama!

THE PRESIDENT: Hello, Virginia! (Applause.) What do you think about Michelle Obama? (Applause.) I hate following her, she is too good. And she looked good, too, didn't she? (Applause.) I'm just saying, she looked pretty good. (Applause.) How's it going, VCU? (Applause.)

Well, before I begin, there are a few people that I want to thank for joining us here today. First of all, your mayor Dwight Jones is here. (Applause.) Representative Bobby Scott is in the house. (Applause.) Your former Governor Tim Kaine is here. (Applause.) And a guy that I gather is pretty popular in these parts, Coach Shaka Smart is in the house. (Applause.) When I saw Coach backstage, he said, I just want you to know, we're going to be coming to the White House just like that Kentucky team came this week. (Applause.) And he wasn't smiling. (Laughter.)

I also want to thank so many of our Neighborhood Team Leaders for being here today. You guys will be the backbone of this campaign. (Applause.) And I want the rest of you to join a team or become a leader yourself, because we are going to win this thing door by door, block by block, neighborhood by neighborhood. (Applause.)

AUDIENCE MEMBER: We love you, Barack!

THE PRESIDENT: I love you back. (Applause.) I love Virginia. (Applause.) Virginia, four years ago, you and I began a journey together. I didn't run, and you did not work your hearts out, just to win an election. We came together to reclaim the basic bargain that built the largest middle class and the most prosperous nation on Earth.

We came together because we believe that in America, your success shouldn't be determined by the circumstances of your birth. If you're willing to work hard, you should be able to find a good job. If you're willing to meet your responsibilities, you should be able to own a home, maybe start a business, give your kids the chance to do even better -- no matter who you are, no matter where you come from, no matter what you look like, no matter what your last name is. (Applause.)

We believe the free market is one of the greatest forces for progress in human history; that businesses are the engine of growth, and that risk-takers and innovators should be rewarded. But we also believe that at its best, the free market has never been a license to take whatever you want, however you can get it. (Applause.) We've understood that alongside our entrepreneurial spirit, our rugged individualism, America only prospers when we meet our obligations to one another and to future generations. (Applause.)

We came together in 2008 because our country had strayed from these basic American values. A record surplus was squandered on tax cuts for people who didn't need them and weren't even asking for them. (Applause.) Two wars were being waged on a credit card. Wall Street speculators reaped huge profits by making bets with other people's money. Manufacturing left our shores. A shrinking number of Americans did fantastically well, while most people struggled with falling incomes and rising costs, and the slowest job growth in half a century.

And in 2008, that house of cards collapsed in the most destructive crisis since the Great Depression. In the last six months of that year, even as we campaigned, nearly three million of our neighbors lost their jobs. Over 800,000 more were lost in the month I took the oath of office. And it was tough. It was tough here in Virginia. It was tough all across the country.

But the American people are tougher. (Applause.) All across America, people like you dug in. Folks like you fought back. Some of you retrained. Some of you went back to school. Small business owners cut back on expenses, but did everything they could to keep their employees. And sure, there were setbacks. There have been disappointments. But we didn't quit. We don't quit. Together, we are fighting our way back. (Applause.) Together, we're fighting our way back.

When some wanted to let Detroit go bankrupt, we made a bet on American workers, on the ingenuity of American companies. And today, our auto industry is back on top of the world. (Applause.) Manufacturers started investing in America again, adding jobs for the first time since the 1990s. Businesses got back to basics, exports surged. And over 4 million jobs were created in the last two years -- more than 1 million of those in the last six months alone. (Applause.) Now, does this make us satisfied?

AUDIENCE: No!

THE PRESIDENT: Of course not. Too many of our friends and family are still looking for work. The housing market is still weak, deficits are still too high. States are still laying off teachers and first responders. This crisis took years to develop, and the economy is still facing a bunch of headwinds. So it's going to take sustained, persistent effort -- yours and mine -- for America to fully recover, for us to be where we need to be. That's the truth. We all know it. (Applause.)

But Virginia, I'm here to tell you we are making progress. And now we face a choice. For the last few years, the Republicans who run this Congress have insisted that we go right back to the policies that created this mess in the first place.

AUDIENCE: Booo --

THE PRESIDENT: But it gets worse, because to borrow a line from our friend Bill Clinton, now their agenda is on steroids. This time, they want even bigger tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans. This time, they want even deeper cuts to things like education and Medicare and research and technology. This time, they want to give banks and insurance companies even more power to do as they please.

AUDIENCE: Booo--

And now, after a long and spirited primary, Republicans in Congress have found a champion. They have found a nominee for President who has promised to rubber-stamp this agenda if he gets a chance.

AUDIENCE: Booo--

THE PRESIDENT: But Virginia, I tell you what, we can't give him the chance.

AUDIENCE: No!

THE PRESIDENT: Not now. Not with so much at stake. This isn't just another election. This is a make-or-break moment for America's middle class. We've been through much to turn back now. We've come too far to abandon the change we fought for these past few years. Virginia, we've got to move forward, to the future that we imagined in 2008. (Applause.) We've got to move forward to that future where everyone gets a fair shot, and everyone does their fair share, and everyone plays by the same rules.

That's the choice in this election. And that's why I'm running for a second term as President of the United States of America. (Applause.)

AUDIENCE: Four more years! Four more years!

THE PRESIDENT: Now, Governor Romney is a patriotic American. He's raised a wonderful family, and he has much to be proud of. He's run a large financial firm, and he's run a state. But I think he's drawn the wrong lessons from these experiences. He sincerely believes that if CEOs and wealthy investors like him make money, the rest of us will automatically prosper as well.

When a woman in Iowa shared the story of her financial struggles, he responded with economic theory. He told her "our productivity equals our income."

Well, let me tell you something, Virginia. The problem with our economy is not that the American people aren't productive enough -- you've never been working harder in your lives. (Applause.) You're working harder than ever. The challenge we face right now -- the challenge we've faced for over a decade -- is that harder work hasn't led to higher incomes. It's that bigger profits haven't led to better jobs.

And Governor Romney doesn't seem to get that. He doesn't seem to understand that maximizing profits by whatever means necessary -- whether through layoffs or outsourcing or tax avoidance or union-busting -- might not always be good for the average American or for our economy.

Why else would he want to spend trillions more on tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans? Why else would he propose cutting his own taxes while raising them on 18 million working families?

AUDIENCE: Booo--

THE PRESIDENT: Why else would he want to slash the investments that have always helped the economy grow, while at the same time stopping regulations of the reckless behavior on Wall Street that helped make the economy crash?

Somehow, he and his friends in Congress think that the same bad ideas will lead to a different result. Or they're just hoping that you won't remember what happened the last time we tried it their way. (Applause.)

Virginia, I'm here to say that we were there, we remember, and we're not going back. We're moving this country forward. (Applause.) We remember.

Look, we want businesses to succeed. We want entrepreneurs and investors rewarded when they take risks, when they create jobs and grow our economy. But the true measure of our prosperity is more than just a running tally of every balance sheet and quarterly profit report. I don't care how many ways you try to explain it: Corporations aren't people. People are people. (Applause.)

We measure prosperity not just by our total GDP; not just by how many billionaires we produce, but by how well the typical family is doing, whether they can go as far as their dreams and hard work will take them.

We understand that in this country, people succeed when they have the chance to get a decent education and learn new skills. (Applause.) And, by the way, so do the businesses that hire those people or the companies that those people start.

We know that our economy grows when we support research into medical breakthroughs and new technologies that lead to the next Internet app or life-saving drug.

We know that our country is stronger when we can count on affordable health care and Medicare and Social Security. (Applause.) When we protect our kids from toxic dumping and mercury pollution. When there are rules to make sure we aren't taken advantage of by credit card companies or mortgage lenders or financial institutions. (Applause.) These rules aren't just good for seniors, or kids, or consumers -- they're good for business. They're good for the marketplace. They're good for America. (Applause.)

Look, we don't expect government to solve all our problems, and it shouldn't try. I learned from my mom that no education policy can take the place of a parent's love and attention. And sometimes, getting in your face and telling you what you need to do. (Applause.) As a young man, I worked with a group of Catholic churches who taught me that no poverty program can make as much difference as the kindness and commitment of a caring soul. Not every regulation is smart. Not every tax dollar is spent wisely. Not every person can be helped who refuses to help themselves.

That's what we believe. People have to make an effort. People have to try hard. But that's not an excuse to tell the vast majority of responsible, hardworking Americans, "You're on your own." (Applause.) That unless you're lucky enough to have parents who can lend you the money, you may not be able to go to college. That even if you pay your premiums every month, you're out of luck if an insurance company decides to drop your coverage when you need it most.

That's not how we built America. That's not who we are. We built this country together. We built railroads and highways; the Hoover Dam, the Golden Gate Bridge -- together. We sent my grandfather's generation to college on the GI Bill -- together. We instituted a minimum wage and worker safety laws -- together. Together, we touched the surface of the moon, unlocked the mystery of the atom, connected the world through our own science and our own imaginations. We did these things not because they benefited any particular group or individual, but because they made us all richer. Because they gave us all opportunity. Because they moved us forward together -- as one nation, as one people. (Applause.)

That's the lesson of our past. That's the right vision for our future. And that's why I'm running for President of the United States of America. (Applause.)

AUDIENCE: Four more years! Four more years!

THE PRESIDENT: I'm running to make sure that by the end of this decade, more of our citizens hold college degrees than any other nation on Earth. (Applause.) I want to help our schools hire and reward the best teachers, especially in math and science. I want to give two million more Americans the chance to go to community colleges and learn the skills that local businesses are looking for right now. Because in the 21st century, a higher education can't be a luxury -- it's an economic imperative that every American should be able to afford. And that's the choice in this election. That's why I'm running for President. (Applause.)

I'm running to make sure the next generation of high-tech manufacturing takes root in places like Richmond and Columbus, and Cleveland and Pittsburgh. I want to stop rewarding businesses that ship jobs and profits overseas. I want us to reward companies that create jobs right here in the United States of America. That's the choice in this election. (Applause.)

I'm running so that we keep moving towards a future where we control our own energy. Our dependence on foreign oil is at its lowest point in 16 years. (Applause.) By the middle of the next decade, our cars will average nearly 55 miles per gallon. That will save you money. Thousands of Americans have jobs because the production of renewal energy in this country -- solar, wind, biofuels -- that's nearly doubled in just three years. (Applause.)

So now is not the time to cut these investments to pay for another $4 billion giveaway to the oil companies. Now is the time to end the subsidies for an industry that has rarely been more profitable. Let's double down on a clean energy future that's never been more promising -- for our economy, and our security, and for the safety of our planet. That's why I'm running, Virginia. That's the choice in this election. (Applause.)

For the first time in nine years, there are no Americans fighting in Iraq. (Applause.) Osama bin Laden is no longer a threat to this country. Al Qaeda is on the path to defeat. (Applause.) And by 2014, the war in Afghanistan will be over. (Applause.)

America is safer and more respected because of the courage and selflessness of the United States Armed Forces. A lot of them from Virginia. A lot of folks right here in Virginia, putting on that uniform, serving on our behalf. (Applause.) And as long as I'm Commander-in-Chief, this country will care for our veterans and serve our veterans as well as they've served us -- because nobody who serves, nobody who fights for this country should have to fight for a job or a roof over their heads when they come back home. (Applause.)

My opponent has different ideas. My opponent has a different view. He said it was -- and I quote -- "tragic" to end the war in Iraq.

AUDIENCE: Boo --

THE PRESIDENT: He said he won't set a timeline for ending the war in Afghanistan.

AUDIENCE: Boo --

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I have, and I intend to keep to that timeline. (Applause.) After a decade of war that's cost us thousands of lives and over a trillion dollars, the nation we need to build is right here, right here at home. So we're going to use half of what we're no longer spending on war to pay down the deficit, and we will use the other half to repair our roads and our bridges and our airports and our wireless networks. (Applause.) That's the choice in this election. That's why I'm running for President. (Applause.)

I am running to pay down our debt in a way that's balanced and responsible. We inherited a trillion-dollar deficit. The other side doesn't like to be reminded of this. But that's okay. I signed $2 trillion of spending cuts into law. And now I want to finish the job by streamlining government, and cutting more waste, and reforming our tax code so that it's simpler, and that it's fairer, and that it asks the wealthiest Americans to pay a little bit more. (Applause.)

Now, my opponent has a different view. He won't tell us how he'd pay for his new, $5 trillion tax cut -- $5 trillion -- a tax cut that gives an average of $250,000 to every millionaire in the country.

AUDIENCE: Boo --

THE PRESIDENT: But even if he won't disclose the details of how he's going to pay for it, we know the bill for that tax cut will either be passed on to our children, or it will be paid for by a whole lot of you, a whole lot of ordinary Americans.

And Virginia, I refuse to let that happen again. (Applause.) I refuse to let that happen again. I refuse to pay for another millionaire's tax cut by eliminating medical research projects on things like cancer and Alzheimer's. I refuse to pay for another tax cut by kicking children off of the Head Start program; or asking students to pay more for college; or eliminating health insurance for millions of poor, and elderly, and disabled Americans on Medicaid. We're not going to do that. (Applause.)

As long as I'm President of the United States, I will never allow Medicare to be turned into a voucher that would end the program as we know it. (Applause.) We're not going to go back to the days when our citizens spent their golden years at the mercy of private insurance companies. We will reform Medicare -- not by shifting the cost of care to seniors, but by reducing the spending that isn't making people healthier. (Applause.) That's the right way to do it. And that's what's at stake, Virginia. On issue after issue, we just can't afford to spend the next four years going backwards.

America doesn't need to refight the battles we just had over Wall Street reform and health care reform. And, by the way, on health care reform, here's what I know: Allowing 2.5 million young people to stay on their parents' health insurance -- that was the right thing to do. (Applause.) Cutting prescription drug costs for seniors -- that was the right thing to do. We're not going back to the days when insurance companies had unchecked power to cancel your policy, or deny you coverage, or charge women differently than men. We're not going back to that. (Applause.)

We certainly don't need another political fight about ending a woman's right to choose, or getting rid of Planned Parenthood, or taking away access to affordable birth control. (Applause.) I want women to control their own health choices -- (applause) -- just like I want my daughters to have the same opportunities as your son. We're not turning back the clock. (Applause.)

We're not returning to the days when you could be kicked out of the United States military just because of who you are and who you love. (Applause.) We're not going back to that. That would be wrong for our national security. It would be a betrayal of our values. It's not going to happen on my watch. (Applause.)

This should be the last election where multimillion-dollar donations speak louder than the voices of ordinary citizens. (Applause.) We need more checks on special interests and lobbyists, not fewer checks on them.

We're not going to eliminate the EPA. We're not going to roll back the bargaining rights of generations of workers. (Applause.) And it's time to stop denying citizenship to responsible young people just because they're the children of undocumented workers. (Applause.) This country is at its best when we harness the God-given talents of every individual, when we hear every voice, when we come together as one American family, striving for that same dream.

That's what we're fighting for. A bold America. A competitive America. A forward-looking America, where everybody has the chance to make of their life what they will. That's what made us the envy of the world. That's what makes us great. That's why I'm running again for President of the United States. (Applause.)

And, Virginia, that's why I need your help. (Applause.) This election will be even closer than the last. Too many of our friends and neighbors are still hurting because of this crisis. I've heard from too many people wondering why they haven't been able to get one of the jobs that have been created, why their home is still underwater, why their family hasn't yet been touched by the recovery.

The other side won't be offering these Americans any real answers to those questions. They won't be offering a better vision. They won't be offering new ideas. But what they will do is spend more money than we've ever seen before, all on negative ads on TV and radio, in the mail, on the Internet -- probably Tweeting a few negative ads out there somewhere -- ads that exploit people's frustration for my opponent's political gain. And over and over again, they will tell you that America is down and out, and they'll tell you who to blame.

And they'll ask if you're better off than you were before the worst crisis of our lifetime. We've seen the play before. We know what to expect. But you know what, the real question -- the question that will actually make a difference in your life and in the lives of your children -- is not just about how we're doing today. It's about how we'll be doing tomorrow. (Applause.)

Will we be better off if more Americans get a better education? (Applause.) Will we be better off if we depend less on foreign oil and more on our own ingenuity? (Applause.) Will we be better off if we start doing some nation-building at home? Will we be better off if we bring down our deficits in a balanced, responsible way without gutting the very things that we need to grow? (Applause.) When we look back four years from now, or ten years from now, or twenty years from now, won't we be better off if we have the courage to keep moving forward? (Applause.)

That's the question in this election. And that outcome is entirely up to you. We're going to have to contend with even more negative ads, with even more cynicism, more nastiness -- sometimes, just plain foolishness. (Applause.) It will be worse than we saw in the last campaign. We know, because we've seen some of the foolishness over the last three and a half years.

But if there's one thing we learned in 2008, it's that nothing is more powerful than millions of voices calling for change. (Applause.) When enough of you knock on doors and enough of you pick up the phone, when enough of you are talking to your friends and your coworkers, when you decide that it's time for change to happen, guess what? Change happens. Change comes to America. (Applause.)

Virginia, that's the spirit we need again. If people ask you what's this campaign about, you tell them it's still about hope. You tell them it's still about change. (Applause.) You tell them it's still about ordinary people who believe in the face of great odds that we can make a difference in the life of this country. (Applause.) You tell them.

Because I still believe, Virginia. I still believe that we're not as divided as our politics suggest. I still believe we still have more in common than the pundits tell us; that we're not Democrats or Republicans first, but we are Americans first and foremost. (Applause.)

I still believe in you, and I'm asking you to keep believing in me. (Applause.) I told you in 2008 that I wasn't a perfect man, and I will never be a perfect President. But I promised you then that I would always tell you what I thought. I would always tell you where I stood. And I would wake up every single day fighting for you as hard as I know how. (Applause.)

And I have kept that promise. I have kept that promise. And I will keep it so long as I have the honor to be your President. (Applause.) So if you're willing to stick with me, and fight with me, and press on with me; if you're willing to work even harder in this election than in the last election, I guarantee you, we will move this country forward. We will finish what we started. We're still fired up. We're still ready to go. And we're going to remind the world once more why it is that the United States of America is the greatest nation on Earth. (Applause.)

Thank you, God bless you, and God bless the United States of America.

2012, May 1 Planet Alert May 2012

It's May already! Where does the time go? I just love the month of May because the flowers and trees are in full bloom, and it is beautiful here in Seattle. Hope it is as beautiful where you live. May and June will be power packed months with lots of very intense energy.

This is the line-up for May and June:

The Wesak festival culminates on May 5, 2012 at 8:35 PM-are you ready for graduation?

The poles on the Sun are reversing and this event is expected to finish in May of 2012.

Mother's Day is May 13. Venus turns retrograde on May 15 and stays that way until June 27.

There is a major solar eclipse on May 20, 2012 that reaches its peak between 4:30 and 5:00 PM PDT.

There is a lunar eclipse on June 4, 2012 at 4:12 AM PDT.

Venus eclipses the Sun on June 5-6

The Summer Solstice is on June 20, 2012 at 4:09 PM PDT

On June 24, 2012 there is a perfect mother T-cross in the heavens on 3 degrees Pisces, Gemini and Virgo. Saturn (our teacher) turns direct on June 25.

That is quite a line-up of events. The Wesak festival is celebrated during the full moon of Taurus and the date is May 5, 2012 which adds up to 5-5-5. The Druids used the pentagram, or the five pointed star to represent the Goddess. Many people gather in the valley of Tibet, on the etheric level, to celebrate this major celebration of Wesak. The ones who have raised their frequency to a higher level will graduate at this time to a different level of awareness.

The poles of the Sun started turning last summer and will finish turning this month. The poles of the Sun flip every eleven years so it is not that unusual, but this time the Sun will end up with four poles instead of two. The Japanese HINODE team says that in May 2012 the suns north pole will reach a reading of zero and instead of a regular pole shift, it will form into 4 poles. This shift is happening a year before expected. Check out

I don't know exactly what that means except that the poles will form a cross on our sun. Is this what it means in the 24th chapter of Matthew where it says "then will appear the sign of the son of man in heaven"? Isn't the sign of the son of man a cross? If so, this could be the sign the Bible talks about in our heavens. We are in the time of the end and the new beginning.

The solar eclipse on May 20, 2012 will be a major event. The whole solar system will be reset, and then start a whole new 25,920 year cycle. This eclipse will intercept the serpent and dragon lines on Earth at two locations. One is Mt Shasta and the other is Mt Fuji. There will be very powerful energy at those two locations. Be emotionally prepared for major changes after this eclipse. Out of chaos comes the new creation.

I received an email from Gillian MacBeth-Louthan which is about this eclipse. To read the whole article check out her website. The address is www.thequantumawakening.com here is an excerpt from her article:

On May 20, 2012, a rare solar eclipse alignment will happen between the Earth, the Sun and Alcyone in the Pleiades Constellation. According to myth, the hunter Orion was in love with the SEVEN SISTERS and pursued them until the gods took them to safety, transforming them first into doves, and then into stars. Maia, the eldest of the seven sisters, gave birth to Hermes (Thoth).

The Pleiades are a well-known sight in the Northern Hemisphere in winter and in the Southern Hemisphere in summer, and have been known since ancient times to cultures all around the world. The Hopi consider themselves direct descendants of the Pleiades

The Maya also consider the Pleiades very important and base their calendars on this star system and the planet Venus.

Eclipses mean changes and new beginnings. The only way to claim your beauty, your wealth, your health, and your love is to see it in others. For the world mirrors your own reflection. If you do not feel worthy and prosperous, you see that in your own reflection. Do not focus on depreciation: instead focus on appreciation. Allow what you have ownership of to gain value through you. You receive value when you see the value of others. You gain your beauty when you see the beauty of others. You gain wealth when you rejoice in the good fortune of others. Their good fortune means that your good fortune is right around the corner. Every minute of every day you too shall be blessed if you quietly bless others.

Then we have a lunar eclipse on June 4, 2012. A lunar eclipse is always feminine in nature. Following this eclipse will be Venus eclipsing the Sun. Venus will stand before the Sun with her light focused on Earth. She reflects the Goddess energy. She is bright and beautiful and full of light, especially because she will be reflecting the new energy from the Sun to Earth. The Photon Belt is also here and this magnetic energy is coming to Earth in waves and stirring up our emotions and our lives.

On June 24th a perfect mother T-cross will appear in the heavens. Neptune, the planet that represents the Mother Goddess, will be on 3 degrees Pisces. The moon, feminine, will be on 3 degrees Virgo, the sign of the Earth Goddess. Jupiter will be on 3 degrees Sagittarius in a male sign. One of the symbols of the Templars is the T-cross. They worship, or honor John the Baptist and the feast day of John is June 24th.

May 13, 1917 was the day Mary appeared to the children of Fatima. Then she appeared on the 13th of each month until October 13, 1917. That was 95 years ago. Will the cycle of control end between May and October? The third prophecy is still to happen and there are still rumors that the Pope will resign. Will that happen soon? The Vatican Bank, run by the Jesuits and the Black Pope, control everything. That is the head of the controlling force on Earth.

The Mother Goddess expresses great love to humanity, and it is time for us to start manifesting love. There is no more waiting. We are the ones we have been waiting for, and it's now time to express our love and to create a whole new world. So Be It!

Happy Mother's Day!

Love and blessings to all! I love you!

EXCERPT FROM Kryon Book Twelve
The Twelve Layers of DNA - Pages 54-67
Explanation of the Pleiadians, and Lemuria being Hawaii

<http://kryon.com/inspiritmag/scrapbooks/sb-2012-choir5.html>

The Pleiadian Connection: Truly Weird!

In metaphysics, there are often very startling and unbelievable premises. This is especially true if you are new to it. Those who have been in it a long time don't flinch. But some of the attributes of how humanity got started are hard to believe, since there really is no science to back it up. On page 258 of this book I present a channelling entitled, "The History of DNA and the Human Race." If you make it that far, then all the information within that chapter fourteen will be already revealed. But I wanted you to hear it from Kryon directly, as well as in this personal article, so you'll have a better idea of what Kryon has told us.

What I discuss next has little or no scientific basis, but more than a billion people on the planet are just fine with the allegory of Adam and Eve. This, of course, has even less science behind it but it's just fine since it is the core mythology that we find in the Bible (written by Humans, remember?). It's interesting that we will fight wars over this mythology and "take it to the bank," as they say. But let someone like me, for instance, talk about something else that might have happened and those in the various religious boxes find it totally unbelievable. They will pound the table and yell and say, "What's wrong with you? The Bible clearly tells us what happened!" So I ponder the statement without a fight. (My belief system is not evangelical and invites a place for all spiritual thinking.) But my inside just wants so bad to say, "OK, you can keep your talking snake story. I'm sorry, I don't know what came over me."

Evolutionary information changes all the time. Once we thought that the Grand Canyon took millions of years to create. Now, we are not certain. It could have been only a few hundred! Geology itself is changing greatly, and with it many of the anthropological beliefs are being challenged as well. So let's just say it - here is something that nobody ever thinks about:

There is Only One Kind of Human on The Planet

"What?" some will say. "There are many kinds!" Not really. There are many colors and sizes, but only one kind. Gone to the zoo lately and looked at the other mammals? What about those who even look like us? There are seemingly dozens of kinds of monkeys - sizes, hair color, shape, with and without tails, etc. If you look at almost all the other animals on the planet, there are many "types," but Humans have only one type - the one you are looking at in the mirror.

Nobody thinks about this, since it's so common that it's out of sight and out of mind. But it truly is counter-intuitive to the whole method of Earth evolution. Think about it. How is it that we only have one Human type when evolution naturally creates many types? The animals around us show it, yet we don't fit this evolutionary mold at all. How could this be?

Kryon has given the answer many times, and started in about 1990 or so telling us about the "seeding of Human DNA" with spiritual attributes from afar. It's the story of the Pleiadian connection and the beginning of Lemuria. Kryon's statement is this: "Don't go back in history any further than 100,000 years to find Humans who are like you." Anthropologists tell us that Humans were in development long before that, so what's Kryon talking about? It's about an extremely controversial premise that has our Human DNA being changed by those from another star system about 100,000 years ago. (Please don't put down the book yet. Wait at least until the end of this section.)

Kryon has told us that beings from another world, who look much like we do, came to this planet over a period of many years and literally interfered (appropriately) with normal Human evolution. They gave us the layers of DNA that we now see as spiritual. They enabled our entire race to be part of the spiritual plan of the Universe, and allowed us to become "pieces of God". If you tell this to other people who are not metaphysical, they will run the other way. The Adam and Eve story is somehow far more acceptable! The apple, the snake, God's garden, the devil, Human innocence is all a much more believable story than something to do with ETs. (It seems that a devil story always wins over an ET story.)

This Pleiadian story does not belong to Kryon. In fact, it has been with us for a very long time in other cultures, and even perhaps from the beginning. But in metaphysics, it has been told and retold by authors and channellers since I was born. Along with it, of course, comes those who wish to take this beautiful story straight into drama - wars between worlds, controversial "takeover Earth" scenarios and a group of lizard folks ("Lizzies") that hide beneath our skin. I know this because I had the honored distinction of actually being called a "Lizzie" in a public forum. My, that was such a proud day in my life (sigh). This, by the way, is so common with almost everything esoteric that I hesitate to even comment on it. It's what Human nature does, and many just love to be scared and spin around in the drama of it all.

Conspiratorial energies are far, far easier to manifest than ones where we might actually have to look within ourselves and find truth. They are the ultimate distraction from maturing. My "Lizzie branding" experience was actually quite mild in comparison to the three-month campaign by a woman in Tucson who labeled me the "Evil of the Century" about 15 years ago. So it was mild and kind of cute.

Let's look at Some Synchronicity

I sat in a circle with the Hawaiian elder "Grandfather" Hale Makua in 1990 on the island of Kauai in the Hawaiian Islands. The Hawaiians, much like the American Indians, pass down their history verbally through the young men of the tribe. They tell them the same stories over and over from the time they are able to comprehend, and they depend on this method to make certain their history is known correctly and will continue to be passed on accurately. There are basically two reasons for not putting this in some kind of written archive: (1) Not all the tribes were literate when this method began, and (2) To keep it away from those who are not authorized to hear this sacred information (those they don't trust, like us).

Makua was a modern man, having served as a Marine in Vietnam. But he was also destined to be a spiritual leader for his Hawaiian people, and many turned to him for wisdom. Upholding the tradition, he taught the young Hawaiian men about their Polynesian history. The focus, by the way, is always on the ancestors. My presence in an outer circle of non-Hawaiians was a gift from Makua, and a statement that he really wanted others of like consciousness to begin to know what he knew.

The pure Hawaiians are facing a challenge that many of the indigenous are also seeing; the modern world is beginning to cull out many of the tribe. The pureness of the race is being cut by intermarriage, and modern culture is carrying away those young tribal men to jobs that pay more, instead of them staying in the tribal areas.

Almost worldwide we are seeing many of the indigenous grandfathers begin to trust more and more of us who are not indigenous with some of the sacred secrets of their history. This isn't an easy decision for them, but it may very well save the record of their people, what they believe, and how they lived.

The balmy afternoon had turned to a warm early evening as a number of us in the invited outer circle continued to listen to Makua. There was a great weight placed on the ancestors of the Hawaiian people. It was Makua's way and the core of his teaching, for he wanted all to understand that the ancestors had the pure knowledge and they also had the wisdom. It was up to the young men to capture it and pass it on.

Then Makua said something that jolted me: "The bodies of our Lemurian ancestors are buried nearby." It's the first time I had ever heard the word "Lemuria" used by a Hawaiian teacher! Lemuria was supposed to be the first large civilization of man, according to Kryon and other spiritual historians. It lasted for many thousands of years, mainly due to their isolation.

Lemuria was located around, and on, the largest mountain on Earth - the largest not in altitude, but as measured from the bottom to the top. That's Hawaii. It's one mountain, currently situated on the bottom of the Pacific Ocean, which has various peaks protruding from the water and are known as the Hawaiian Islands. Kryon told us this, but I didn't know this was also Polynesian lore.

I got very interested in what else Makua might share that could meld indigenous history with our own metaphysics. So when it was appropriate, I asked Makua a burning question: "Master, what is the Polynesian 'Adam and Eve' story? In other words, how did humanity begin?" Makua's answer knocked me over, and thinking about it still gives me chills to this day. He stood up and slowly looked at the sky. When he found what he knew would be there, he raised his arm and his hand pointed to the seven sisters constellation. "The canoes came from there!" he said. Makua was pointing at the Pleiades.

Could it be that ancient Hawaiian history, as taught from the earliest of times, had the same unbelievable ET story as the one Kryon told me? It shook me to the core, for here was my personal proof that what Kryon had said about the Pleiadians was true. They were the masters of our spiritual DNA shift, and this means we will probably meet them someday.

My good friend, Woody Vaspra, and his partner, Catie, are very involved in the task of creating an indigenous wisdom council for the planet. He is president and elder liaison in the World Council of Elders, and he and Catie co-founded this organization. It's slow going, but in the process, Woody, a pure Hawaiian, has made the journey of years it takes to become recognized as an elder. In Hawaii, they call him Kupuna (elder), which is a title he humbly does not use himself when he is there.

Due to his indigenous work, Woody has been recognized as an elder in many other native circles. The most notable is in his efforts with the Oglala of the Lakota Nation. It was through his process of adoption and participation in the Sundance that they offered Woody the position as Leader of the International Sundance. You must be an elder for this.

In my discussions with him, I now realize the profundity of the Seven Sisters Hawaiian story, for Woody informed me that the Hawaiians even have a name for the Pleiadians: Makali'i. There is even a sacred day for ceremony in the months of October and November when the Seven Sisters is directly over Hawaii. All this information I have received even after the death of Makua. I thought I had lost my elder Hawaiian connection, but Woody has rekindled it!

In November of 1998, Kryon channeled that from about 100,000 years ago to about 50,000 years ago, the many kinds of Humans began to slowly diminish. One kind had been given the DNA change by the Pleiadians, and this one kind had slowly replaced all the other kinds. It might be due to intelligence or increased comprehension. It might have been that the "one kind" was better at survival.

I don't know this, and it has never been revealed to me. But this information about there being only one kind of Human remained as just something that was channeled - until December of 1999 when I actually saw the same exact scenario on the cover of Scientific American! (Validation music goes here!)

I was in an airport when I saw the cover. I almost fell over! There on the cover of Scientific American was a drawing of several kinds of Human Beings. The title of the article inside was between them: "Our species had at least 15 cousins. Only we remain. Why?" (Scientific American, January 2000). I have presented this before, and you can actually find a copy of the cover of this magazine in Kryon Book Eight on page 369.

Here it was - what nobody ever thinks about, now openly being questioned. The article inside told the same story Kryon gave us. It seems that we had a good start, like all the other animals, at having a great variety of our kind. There were ones with tails and without tails, etc. But about 100,000 years ago, something happened (according to the magazine) and all the others began to die off, leaving only the kind we have today - you and I.

This is a "confluence of synchronicity". In other words, many things had come together in a mainstream 3D way that now showed me that the Kryon story was more accurate than ever. I don't really expect mainstream science to ever agree with the Pleiadian story until the day we actually are visited and a very tall Human figure gets out of a ship and tells the same story. Even then, many won't believe it.

The synchronicity continues, for what is next was written for this book almost lost due to something that happened to me - kind of a punctuation mark on the whole Pleiadian subject. I was stunned when I made a discovery, one that is probably well known to many, but had to be presented to me in a certain way as proof, in a sacred place, in the middle of the Australian continent.

Revelation of Indigenous Truths

I love to visit the special places of Earth when I can. In the early days of Kryon, I went to Australia three times, but I never really saw much more than a few sites in almost every one of their fine cities. Even in New Zealand, I didn't really appreciate what was there - one of the most beautiful scenic wonders of the planet. It was only later in my journeys that I decided to stay and see some of the incredible places of Earth, many times alone, other times with some of the Kryon team. I'm not speaking of the cities I present in, but rather extensive side trips to unusual places that I might be close to while presenting in the larger metropolitan areas.

When planning a trip back to Australia for the fifth time in March 2010, I wanted to finally see the wonder of Ayers Rock. This is a huge, sacred sandstone monolithic, a bright orange rock sticking out of the earth right in the middle of the Australian continent (part of the northern territory in central Australia). Around this mountainous shape are the same red rocks and red dirt that you find in Sedona, Arizona, and the 1100-foot high monolith is one piece of elegantly grooved sandstone, making it a geological oddity. Due to the incredible orange color of it, it is also a photographer's dream, and well documented and presented in photos all over the world. It's also an energetic center, kind of the navel of Australia, in a place that has just about zero resources of its own. Everything has to be brought in from the coastal areas - everything.

Other attributes were that this is one of the hottest places in the Australian outback (often up to 118F), filled with giant bugs (to me they were giant), and more flies than I had ever seen in one place. Ants were everywhere, some of them very large, and so you have to watch where you step since they often quickly try to take up residence in your pant leg. Termite mounds abounded and we were told that there were more wild, single-humped camels in that area than anywhere in the world (didn't see one).

However, despite all these obvious outback attributes, it is a very popular place with good accommodations and strong air conditioning. Paths are clearly marked, roads are good, free transportation is provided, and there is a lot of good help for the tourists. A full resort was there, swimming pools and all, and I just had to go. So I got my tickets ready as soon as they told me I could have a fly net for my hat (a stylish outback hat, of course). The photos are on my Web site if you wish to find them.

Better known these days as the town of Uluru, the government had given the whole area back to the indigenous people in the late '80s, and a kind of "give and take" was present between the Aborigines and those running the tourist industry. The sacredness of the rock was being honored in some places to the fullest, yet being violated in others. Uluru has its own airport with one runway, surrounded by that beautiful red dirt. Flights were now possible direct from Sydney, something only just available since 2009.

Many places around the rock are so sacred to the elders that they are closed to tourists, and photos are not possible in certain areas. Helicopter rides are only allowed for full rock viewing during early morning hours (for light reasons), and then are restricted in the afternoon (kind of a compromise to the sacredness of the rock versus those who wish to photograph it).

There are even rules about female helicopter pilots not being allowed to fly over certain areas (again, following the wishes of the elders of the indigenous tribes who are in charge of the area and who are sensitive about the roles of men and women within their culture).

However, in all this, much to the chagrin of the elders, tourists are still allowed to climb this sacred rock! The elders are in charge, and continually close the path during the day for their own reasons (probably to discourage planning a climb), but the climbers persist. Perhaps in time that will change, and those who enjoy climbing can scale something else close to it instead (there are other similar rocks within a few miles of it).

So, it is March 2010 and we are an eclectic group of "Kryonites" who are there to brave the flies and ants and hot sun. I was travelling with a few Australian Kryon fans (one of them an experienced park ranger) and Jorge Bianchi (my South American coordinator). After taking off from Sydney, we landed about three hours later to spectacular weather! It was not hot, and had actually been raining! (Seldom does this happen there.) So, against all odds, it was pleasant and green (thank you, God)! However, the flies were still there. (They have their own convention every day, it seems.)

I remember walking into the hotel registration area with our troupe. A giant centipede was crawling undisturbed in the middle of the lounge, on his way into the kitchen area (probably to get a cup of coffee). Nobody seemed to care, and it was the first indication that bugs are king and we are just visiting their domain. Dozens of moths and grasshoppers were lounging around, sitting on the guest chairs and tables overlooking the pool (sigh).

If you displace them and use the chair yourself, eventually they will be on your lap. I guess there are many of these kinds of places on Earth, but I try to stay away from them. The second star in a hotel rating is supposed to represent a bug-free environment somebody told me that. I don't know what the first star is - probably that they actually have a building.

Our first and most profound excursion was a trip to the indigenous area, their museums and shops, and also a tour given by a senior elder of the Anangu tribe, responsible for the cultural center. The elder's name was Sammy. Sammy understood and spoke English (kind of), but he used a young Aborigine interpreter and wished to give the tour around a certain portion of the rock in his native tongue. He was filled with family stories of his long lineage in the area, some even from the 1800s. Many of the tales would take your breath away - some joyful, some sad. Funny thing about the flies. Did I mention there were flies? They were relentless. If you didn't have a net, they knew it and no matter how many times you swatted them, they would come back with their relatives for more fun. It was "irritate a channeled" week and they were on to me! But Elder Sammy didn't have any around him! I watched, and they simply left him alone. Go figure! I also saw them ignore our Aussie ranger, too! Maybe they just know that if you are a tourist from overseas, it's a lot more fun for a fly. Screaming, swearing, giant hand motions and running around to escape them must actually attract them. With all of them swarming around, I did manage to eat one, but unfortunately it was at an outside nighttime formal dinner affair - white tablecloths, gourmet food, people dressed up (sigh). As I was drinking my water (with the gourmet fly in it), I immediately spit it out onto the tablecloth with great "get that live, wiggling giant fly/bug out of my mouth" gusto. Sometimes even celebrity chandlers do inappropriate things (double sigh). It keeps me in my place. I immediately stood up, tripped over my chair, and fell in the dirt (very red dirt with very white pants on). Many in my group felt this was the highlight of the evening (triple sigh).

The next day, I was wandering around the cultural center by myself with my fly net in place, reading the history and enjoying the mythology around the creation of the rock, when Monica, our young Aussie park ranger, signaled for me to come to an art gallery. She had discovered something - something that blew me away.

The gallery was of indigenous art, and all about one subject. I entered and looked around. It didn't strike me at first until I started reading what the paintings were about, all of them! It was an entire gallery dedicated to the explanation of the creation story of the Aborigine and how they got there.

There in front of me was painting after painting showing the story of the Seven Sisters, and the part they played in the creation of their humanism. The paintings spoke of the metaphor of how they had come to be with the tribe, then how they had been chased, and had "fled into the skies." I almost fell over. I sat for a moment and took it all in, for every painting in the gallery showed the seven mythological symbols and the same creation story that Makua had related to me in the North Pacific.

I spoke to the shop clerk, a young tribal member, who told me the whole tribal story as he knew it. Indeed, it was the Pleiadians. He also told me that he had read a book that reported this same story was present for the Greeks, the Africans, and even some in northern Europe. With the specter of 2012 looming large, we now even find out that the Maya had the same story!

The seven main temples of Tikal represent the Seven Sisters energy. Here I was in the middle of Australia, in a cultural center honoring the tribes of Aborigines who had been there for tens of thousands of years (their records), telling me about Pleiadian creation for all of humanity.

There are some names of the original elders of this tribe that are so sacred that they cannot be mentioned out loud, and are not even known to the tribal members. Could these be the original Pleiadian teachers? This is my conjecture, and perhaps even me romanticizing what happened at Uluru. But there is acknowledgement within many Aborigines that Uluru is the beginning of their continental Aboriginal civilization, before they moved out and explored the rest of the continent.

What are the odds of this, that so many indigenous from all over the earth would have the same story? They had never met, had no way to communicate, yet they had similar mythology around the seven sisters star system and how creation had begun. It had all begun with sentient Human Beings, who were fully developed and conscious, not developing cave men or savages. All creation stories are that way, even the one in the Garden of Eden. It begins with Humans who are not aware and who then become aware.

A few days later, Kryon gave a very profound channeling for the New Zealand crowd in Auckland. He spoke of the seven sisters of creation and how Lemuria was created in Hawaii to become the oldest, most long-lived, and most harmonious single civilization on the planet. He spoke of outrageous time lines that have no proof in science, but that would eventually be uncovered.

He told us that when the waters started to rise (when the ice started melting) that many of the Lemurians of Hawaii became seafaring and followed the currents directly to (you guessed it) New Zealand. He pointed out that although Australia and the Aborigines were far closer, the currents didn't support an easy access to New Zealand, so the Hawaiian Lemurians were the ones who became the indigenous of that South Pacific nation, and became the Maori of New Zealand.

He went on to describe the fact that the indigenous of New Zealand were Polynesian, not Aboriginal, and that although Australia had more than 700 tribal languages developed over time, those Maori tribes in New Zealand did not disseminate nearly to that degree, and to this day this nation is known for the wisdom and harmonious nature of their indigenous people. We also know that their language is very close to the Hawaiian language!

It starts to make sense to those who are esoteric. Still, to those academics who see this, it remains coincidental, and part of "what ancient civilizations tended to do with the stars and constellations over time." I fully understand the logic in this and celebrate the scientists who want to remain detached from such a wild premise. Still, to me there is something here even for science to discover in the future. Most scientists will tell you that too many coincidences eventually beg looking into.

To put an exclamation point on all this, I had a seminar attendee come up to me at the end of the channeling. She seemed to be part Maori, but it was hard to know. There are many families who have integrated with the Maori lineage, and it's very common in New Zealand. She took me aside and gave me some information that showed that, indeed, the Maori had a very similar creation story, although veiled in the names of a joined parent, mother/father sky, and their six children.

Their name for the Pleiadians is very similar to the Hawaiian name Makali'i. Theirs is Matariki, and they have created a New Year harvest festival around them that exists to this day. Here we see very similar scenarios as the Hawaiians and the Aborigines and the Maya - a Seven Sisters creation story. I wasn't surprised, but I got the chills of validation as though Kryon was telling me, "Here it is again for you to hear personally, right where it happened."

So within the teaching of the various layers (energies) of DNA, you will see the "Lemurian" layers. Then you will know the background as to why they are there, for these will be the ones that were placed there, especially for our spiritual lineage, by those brothers and sisters from another star system, viewable to us in both hemispheres of our sky.

It was done on purpose, appropriately, and with full approval by all. We are the ones who planned this earth from the beginning, and who may have actually been part of another "earth" like ours a long time ago in a star system called The Seven Sisters. LEE CARROLL

2012, Ap 20 Ascension and Revealing Soul Family

We are each part of a soul group of approximately 12 souls, and part of a soul family of approximately 144.

There is a very defined 'soul structure'.

144,000 souls to an I AM

144 I AM's to an Oversoul

12 Oversouls to a Source

The 12 Over souling governing bodies are from 144 very distinct others. The 12 faces of souls are 12 physical incarnations. For ascending purposes, all will be brought together. For ascension work – Planetary Templar and World Service roles and responsibilities.

When you were ready to incarnate on Earth, after greatly stepping down your vibrations, you were in a Monad/I AM Presence grouping of only 144 souls, consisting of twelve facets/Sparks that divided into twelve. You have interacted with those 144 Sparks down through the ages, dancing to the beat of duality, and playing different roles for each other as you sought to return to harmony and balance.

This is not to say that you do not interact with other groupings, but you seek out your intimate soul family, not only to support you, but to interact with in a multitude of ways. In the past, you have not often come into contact with those in your immediate family of sparks or your unit of twelve. Relationship within this group are usually too intense, and you support each other in other ways, often from the higher realms of existence. In other words, you are not all incarnated on Earth at the same time.

We will give you a simplistic overview of each of these twelve great Monadic Beings, and hopefully, through your greater understanding, you will be able to determine which group or tribe, as we have chosen to call them for this teaching, you are functioning within during this important lifetime.

In the highest realms of this universe, you experienced Creation as a Monadic Group which was composed of either First, Second, or Third Ray energies before you descended into this galaxy (Rays Four through Seven are sub-rays of the Third Ray). Then you experienced the galaxy as a group Monad in which there was a mix of First, Second and Third Ray.

Here, you joined together in individual groups or soul families that were composed of a certain number of each of these first three Rays (not in equal proportion, however), which also brought to the group a great variety of universal experience. Many have called these groupings “Task Companions” and that is what you were. You mixed and melded your energies and attributes so that when the proper time came, you would recognize your “Tribe” through your intuition and vibratory resonance there would be a certain soul signature that would draw you together.

You were then gathered into the auric circle of Light of your Galactic Monad, and from there through your solar system I AM Presence, you fragmented into lesser and lesser sparks of consciousness as you devolved into the fifth-, fourth-, and third-dimensional experience.

You were destined to come together again in the physical or in your astral travels, and you would join together to create a vortex of energy that is greater than the sum of its parts. This melding would reinforce, support, and assist each of you on your chosen path, whatever that may be. It is the beginning of returning to Unity Consciousness. This phenomena is happening all over the world at this time.

What we wish for you to understand is that you have spent much more time in unity consciousness than you have in the greatly diminished, individualized consciousness which you now identify as yourself. The past lives that you have had in this solar system and on planet Earth are just a minuscule portion of what is in your memory banks and who you really are. It was only when you and the Earth sank into the density of the third/fourth dimension that you lost the memory of your connection to each other and Source.

Yes, you have gained much knowledge as you journeyed forth on your own grand adventure, and now it is time for you to come together as members of your tribe or soul family to share the wisdom you have all garnered down through the aeons.

In the Soul Family structure are many Divine Agreements of what we are to be or do for Ascension and for each others personal ascension. One may also find their Ascending Partner and / or Beloved in the Soul Family, or in the immediate Soul Family of one who is in yours. As you have a specific group of 12, so has all the other 11 members in your family. Their Soul Family, will have themselves, you, and another 10 of entirely different members.

One can reveal all 11 with a pendulum, or muscle-testing.

As you reveal the other 11, you may already know them. You may have been friends or associates, for many years, you may even be married to one of them. Or they maybe relative strangers sitting in your email address/contacts list, waiting to be noticed. Somehow, somewhere – soul WILL bring us together.

The ascension work may be as an individual, or a small group, or the whole group. Sometimes much of the work done as a sole individual is only done because others in the group haven't awakened enough to be brought to their agreements and so forth.

Many are missing these sorts of opportunities to be in Divine Service to Terra and All That Is, simply through a lack of tools. Tools to authenticate, interpret, clarify. It will be through the use of tools that will define your 11 Soul Family members. Who they are today. What you maybe doing together as a couple, or in small groups. This is the purpose of revealing your Soul Family, to further your knowledge of your Sacred Agreements and many World Service ascension responsibilities.

You may have to inform another of some of these responsibilities – as this is what they have asked you do before incarnating. And this is what we have agreed to do and be for each other. But we have forgotten.

You may find it just as difficult as I did. Many will not know about ascension, and may even find ascension difficult / impossible to read. Some will think they know ascension, but do not. Some are not ascending, even though they may think they are. A few will attest their guidance is enough – but their guidance is somehow not healing them, nor guiding them to fully understand the healing / crystalline conversion dynamic and authentic ascension. And some may even start their ascension, and find it too difficult – so lay it aside. Not really understanding the ramifications of their potential ‘key’ position in Earths Ascension.

Some will just not be interested, assume it is not for them.

Ascension is the only reason for the existence of Soul. To descend into a species, have the experience, and evolve / ascend the specie. Ascension is pure Evolution. The final, supreme evolutionary journey from the 3rd dimension. All those who are ensouled – Ascension IS for them. However humanity is now bound by so many etheric devices and implants which prevent them from reading and understanding, or even seeing the correct path. This causes them to turn away from the very thing they have been seeking every incarnation.

And the worst is yet to come... For as we move fully into our ascension, we have what is called an ‘Ascending Jurisdiction’. And this jurisdiction is to awaken those to ascension. This is our Soul Jurisdiction, this is what YOUR Soul would expect of another, and it is what ANOTHER Soul would expect of you.

But unfortunately we are not talking ‘soul’ now – we are talking mental / ego mind, that the physical self is bound by.

This is why in this ‘ascending jurisdiction’ one is mentored, guided by Terra, Nature and Source to wake another. Mainly because of the unconscious harmfulness perpetrated by those who do not know the difference between a harmful / polarity thought and a harmless / Unity thought.

Be guided by your pendulum or muscle-test who are in your Soul Family, and you will have a greater realization, and purpose, of why you were to meet.

El Cinco de Mayo ("Fifth of May" in Spanish) is a national holiday in Mexico. It commemorates the victory of Mexican forces led by General Ignacio Zaragoza over the French expeditionary forces in the Battle of Puebla on May 5, 1862.

Under the pretext of forcing payment for Mexico's outstanding and crippling debt, Britain, Spain and France sent troops to Mexico. The democratically elected government of President Benito Juárez made agreements with the British and the Spanish, who promptly recalled their armies, but the French stayed. Emperor Napoleon III wanted to secure French dominance in the former Spanish colony, including installing one of his relatives, Archduke Maximilian of Austria, as ruler of Mexico. Although Abraham Lincoln roundly condemned Napoleon's imperialist ambitions in a neighboring country, he was unable to assist Mexico as the United States was embroiled in the American Civil War at the time.

Confident of a quick victory, 6,500 French soldiers marched on Mexico City to seize the capital before the Mexicans could muster a viable defense. Along their march, the French already encountered stiff resistance before Zaragoza struck out to intercept the invaders.

The battle between the French and Mexican armies occurred on May 5 when Zaragoza's ill-equipped militia of 4,500 men encountered the better armed French force. However, Zaragoza's small and nimble cavalry units were able to prevent French dragoons from taking the field and overwhelming the Mexican infantry. With the dragoons removed from the main attack, the Mexicans routed the remaining French soldiers with a combination of their tenacity, inhospitable terrain, and a stampede of cattle set off by local peasants. The invasion was stopped and crushed.

Zaragoza won the battle but lost the war. The French Emperor, upon learning of the failed invasion, immediately dispatched another force, this time numbering 30,000 soldiers. By 1864, they succeeded in defeating the Mexican army and occupying Mexico City. Archduke Maximilian became Emperor of Mexico.

Maximilian's rule was short-lived. Mexican rebels opposed to his rule resisted, seeking the aid of the United States. Once the American Civil War was over, the U.S. military began supplying Mexicans with weapons and ammunition, and by 1867, the rebels finally defeated the French and deposed their puppet Emperor. The Mexican people then re-elected Juárez as president.

Contrary to popular belief in the United States, Cinco de Mayo does not mark Mexican independence day. That distinction is reserved for el Dieciséis de septiembre ("September 16"), which is celebrated at all offices belonging to the executive branch of government, from the president down to the municipal governments, on the night of September 15 through to the early morning hours of September 16 with a re-enactment of the Grito de Dolores, the formal call for an end to Spanish rule in 1810.

Also on 5 May, 1901, Ignacio Bravo telegraphed the news of the end of the Caste War of Yucatan with the Mexican victory against the self-proclaimed state of Chan Santa Cruz.

The rise in Cinco de Mayo's popularity in the United States can be attributed to the Chicano student movement of the late 1960s. Inspired by student-activists nationwide, members of the MEChA organization in California sought to find a day of celebration that highlighted their largely Mexican ancestry. El Dieciséis de Septiembre seemed like an obvious choice; however, this day proved too early in the school year for college students to effectively organize rallies and celebrations. Also it was possible that the government of the United States could suspect that the students tried to induce seditious or secessionist activities within the Mexican-American community.

Thus Cinco de Mayo became the de facto alternative for these student assemblies because its greatest hero, General Zaragoza, was, in fact, born in Texas. Over the years, this holiday grew outside university circles and its activist roots, and was absorbed by mainstream culture in the Southwest United States. For many Mexican-American communities, Cinco de Mayo is an important way to proudly honor Mexican heritage, overshadowing Mexico's Independence Day in significance. Non-Mexican Americans also participate in the celebrations, much in the same manner that the non-Irish observe St. Patrick's Day, with holiday-themed parties marked by the consumption of Mexican food, tequila and Mexican beer.

Although honored today as a national holiday in Mexico, Cinco de Mayo is more of a regional celebration, particularly in the state of Puebla where the famous battle took place.

The largest Cinco De Mayo celebration in the United States takes place in Denver's Civic Center area with an annual attendance of 450,000-500,000

May 5, 1808 also marks the date on which Spain's Bourbon dynasty, specifically King Charles IV, was dethroned by the Napoleonic army. Napoleon Bonaparte's brother was then crowned King Joseph I. As the King of Spain was imprisoned and Joseph I was an usurper, that May 5th sparked independence movements throughout Spain's colonies in Latin America.
