Recommendation: to use the airwaves as a way to work with the population -

- Patti Cota Robles taught years ago to use events of this nature and use the intense focus of energy to do healing and clearing;
- blaze the violet flame, blaze the flame of transfiguring divine love; blaze the blue flame of truth; blaze the golden flame of illumination and divine healing; blaze the emerald flame of limitless healing and transmutation;
- use all energies and techniques you can to work with all of humanity watching and participating to become a chalice of light and then and pour the energy of the divine into that chalice

Going to give Hard News a bit of a rest today - will only be some.

R: Camp Loveway had David Icke on:

- talking of why we're where we are, and the magnificence of what is unfolding
- how we came down from co-creator gods
- William Henry he talked of the sons and daughters of god, and the sons and daughters of men & genetic engineering and going from 12 strands to 2;
 - those of the 13 families have 6 - 12, but are missing the love one
 - Our task is to send them love

- He talked of how he's getting letters of people losing it because of what is happening in Syria, Bahrain, Israel - all stems from the experiment of Enlil, Enki, Mother's children
- Mother is back with 4 on the floor and we will get it right this time
- spoke of the Haplo groups

 R's assessment of the 2 calls: the awakening that is happening on Earth is so huge, and the media is a circus where they are going through traumatized amnesia: it is in our best interest to work with these ones who are still asleep

- as Cheryl said: focus and send the violet fire - it changes
- There will be 1-3 thousand people of Occupy showing up: maybe the players will stop, too
- a rumour that Anonymous will shut the stadium down
- There are 22 states with the right to work for less laws

RL & C: biggest story is having jobs - BO needs to drop $10 Million into jobs

- wants to take half to deal with infrastructure; put the other half into the debt
- He also said we have to work together: bring democracy back into workplace
- The intent of the dark ones is to get more money out of us: don't buy any more books, music, etc
- Millions of $ go into commercials for the Super Bowl; if the power was not there and no commercials, no game
- We have to arrest these ones

David Icke: the criminals behind all that is going on: arrest the war criminals right now!

T: a one-sided war game in Syria - yet the free Syria army has built underground tunnels, and are using social media to get the news out

- We got so close to being taken over!
- The Khazars is the cover-up - the real Jew is Jesus and he was black.
 The rest is a cover-up: the original Jewish people were black as coal

T: Ben Fulford: she reads the material and is making comments

- he has enough $ to be in Fortune 500 - needed this to be editor of Forbes
- Bernie Sanders also said that David W is coming right behind him
- We have to penetrate our ignorance, don't dwell on what we hear, use our magic
- Ben does not want to admit to existence of NESARA, and come clean and give the money back

R asked Bernie but he did not want to comment on the figures indicated in the reading.

- Who is running this??? this is the question - full disclosure is what is happening;
- T & R were told 30 years ago there would be martial law if there were no other recourse for the galactics to come in - the White Knights will be the ones declaring m law
- The Military is 60% in favour of NESARA; Ashtar Command is part of this military, as is ACIO
- The law being declared will be OUR law - it is an extraordinary order to allow the galactics to come in and to put Patrick Fitzgerald in as the new Attorney General
- Our work now is do de-confuse the gibberish
- Melissa Harris Perry's show did not start today - she is still getting ready: will be dropping something!
- Paragraph 11: Ben is NOT talking about -

R: cannot have full disclosure until there are arrests, and mass arrests are going on at the highest level - things are not as they seem!

- The British Commonwealth paragraph - this will NOT happen

- The Vatican - another Nazi organization, backed by Khazars
 - the Spanish was a slaughter and stole the land: it was a land grab!

Caller: question about 9/11 - when the towers went down and the beam - an interesting type of beam - were they made somewhere else?

T: the pyramids were built on Aldebaren and lowered by anti gravity from the ships but not 9/11

Caller: so that information is not true? NO

T: many things built in China and shipped here

We will no longer have 1,000 mile salads anymore so the oil

R: no more factory farms

T: yes, the UN is already under re-organization: • US Ambassador Susan Rice will remain

- UN will become the House of Micah
- on TV - Alternet Focus: the true people inside Israel are waking up rapidly, and the children who went into the army and the Moussad are changing - and being put in jail

T: comments on size of decision-making units: 6 - 9, a family unit [in Ben's writing]

R: The Justice League that is showing up at UN is a world congress of the brotherhoods and sisterhoods - to guide the changes; they are intergalactic

- We will get to know all these separate issues
- They watched the Six International Law of the Feminine - the new Council of Elders will be female, and from the stars [aboriginal]

Para: "This 8 person grouping . . ." There's a better plan with the galactics coming in

The Pentagon: 40% of it are still the Khazars; and Russia has the same; China has Mongel Khazars - not going to happen

Para: The cabalists in charge . . ." - this is true

T: Angela Merkel tried to persuade the Chinese to go along with the Iranian .. - NO

The Zions of - all they want is to stay in power with profit.

T: the 60% of the Pentagon are - in the moment - arresting the 40% of the military first, before they go out and arrest others.

Going Deeper - a book; all these ideas about an exclusive group going somewhere - this is not judgement: we have to focus on looking after this planet and our bodies

R: we have to descend into these bodies

T: it's an inner process where you change the DNA

T: [Ben] "In the US . . . and lots of funds will be returned. . ." he is still not saying

The billionaires out on the street; every thing they have will be gone, returned to those it came from

- The wife of Mittens will also have to follow the same rules - not sure about the children
- " . . . mortgage-free homes" - yes,

Para: "a lot of nitty gritty to take care of" - this is not down the road, but in the moment

R: the city of homes in Syria looks like Kabul these days; goes there at night

- All kinds of stuff going on in Libya: Ghaddafi just stole everyone's lands; thousands and thousands of people: a lady had 12 children and a thousand acres - her husband was killed, and she had 12 kids to look after.
- There were thousands of Libyans who were told they could to Jordanian hospitals and get help in the hospitals - but the hospitals there cannot handle it, so the Libyans are just sitting there.

T: the galactics are going to provide help extra ordinary help very soon continues reading: there will be world peace

Astrology: Richard

- Venus in 26 Pisces
- Last week, moon was in Aries; very energetic and carried through weekend
 - On Monday, it was in Taurus - moon conjunct ? Governed the week
 - On Wed, moon went into Gemini - Wed pm interesting things happened:
Cynthia led a meditation that night: revolved around Venus-opposition Mars and love
The meditation was around what you still hate about yourself - VERY POWERFUL
- Friday, Saturday - chatter, chatter, chatter -
- Yesterday afternoon, Neptune went into Pisces

T: we're moving, no longer in same place

R: the astrology of the solar system is one thing, but now we are shifting above the plane of the galaxy we will start to talk about the energy of the fixed stars - astrologers have a reference book on this subject, but they will get more info as our density decreases and we go to our light body, it will be more interesting as we consider other light aspects.

- We have instruments now that allow us to see the frequencies better than we have in the past - knowledge about what frequencies can do for us will be helpful:

- new field will be galacto-astrology!!!

Music: Krishna

T: what's coming up this week: will something break???

Richard: Divine love will be stirred up this week and, with help of Divine Will, will get the best of things because

- We are not half-way through what we planned to do this month
- we still have 16 days to complete this lunar cycle - we are 2 days before the full moon

T: The new moon - Feb 21 - Mardi Gras; before that, President's Day and Ash Wednesday just after

- This will be the first new moon in Pisces with Neptune conjunct - that's going to be fun!

R: for last 14 years, Neptune has been delivering Aquarian wisdom - mental and electrical, the final phase of the technology revolution -

- mankind is up against its technological limits as far as miniaturization goes
- Now Neptune in Pisces and it's about polarity: a 2-headed fish trying to swim in opposite directions; or 2 fish - so the next phase of Neputunian wisdom is about healing duality and recognized that we want to live at Zero Point between the polarities. So we draw the polarized to the light and create them as unity
- And EVERYONE has this as a mission -

T: good ways to roll with the punches and not get punched:

R: as a light being, we accommodate variations in light and flow;

 - the other a 3 storey tower - an octagon building - a SW facing door, window - top floor is for energy work - will be on the hill - he was told where to put it; the plans are coming from higher up the chain!
- he's living on a ley line
- There are 5 empty lots around him; wants to have them all and create a foundation, private, non-profit
- he wants 2-3 acre homesite; people can bring state of the art buildings to plop down in the forest - it could be a family house, a retreat place; wants a community garden,

[Part 2: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8ojvf3ORIWQ>

From the book: The Life of an American Jew in Racist Marxist Israel (Published in 1985) By Jack Bernstein ...]

- This is to show you we are the end of the game; they began this 100 years ago
- The first Zionist Congress was held in Basle, Switzerland in 1897; one of the goals was to set up a Jewish state in the land of Palestine
- At that time, there were only a few Jews living in Palestine who were nearly all native Sefardic Jews - as was Hitler - who were blood-related to the Arabs!

- The Palestinian Shephardic Jews and the Palestinian Arabs were living in peace as they had for thousands of years.
- After the congress in 1897, they started migrating to Palestine and buy land, as they had decided that's what they would do
- by 1920, Jews owned only 2% of Palestine; by 1948, the invading Jews had increased their ownership, but still less than 6%. To accommodate the incoming Europeans, they needed more land, but the Palestinian Arabs refused to sell it
- These communist-oriented, European Ashkenazi Jews [sometimes calling themselves Khazars, sometimes Bolsheviks] resorted to one thing at which they are adept: terrorism.
- First major act of terrorism - during night of April 9, 1948, two gangs attacked and massacred over 200 men, women and children; Menachem Begin was leader of the attack and later prime minister; later said the massacre was justified, and without it, there would not have been an Israeli state without this victory at Daher Jasheim [& they are still doing the same thing]
- This caused many Palestinians to leave - and they continued the massacres
- during the few months when these and other massacres were going on, 300,000 Palestinian Christians and Muslims were forced to leave their homes or be killed
- The same communist-oriented Jews were to become the leaders of the new state
- May 14, 1948 - Israeli terrorism continued to push Palestinian Arabs leave their homes
- since 1948, 350 Christian Churches and Muslim Mosques have been destroyed by Zionist Jews
- destruction of religion by Zionist Jews is well underway in USA; in Israel, is almost complete
- In 1949, Israel became the 49th State of the Union

William Henry - to discuss The Secret of Zion, his new book

January 3, 2012

William Henry - Hour 1 - The Secret of Sion

William Henry is an internationally renowned investigative mythologist. He is the author of sixteen books and numerous DVD programs and is a contributor to The History Channel's popular series, Ancient Aliens. In this interview, we begin talking about 2012. William clarifies the difference between the Aztec Sunstone and the Mayan Calendar. Then, we discuss themes from his new book, THE SECRET OF SION. This book represents the culmination of William's search in Gnostic literature and sacred art that maps the path, called the "Way of Light", which leads to the gate of heaven. He'll talk about a race of stargate time traveling ascended human beings dwelling at the center of our galaxy. William tells us about stargate technology and how our body opens the stargate. He says we are the technology. We also talk about Jesus as an avatar of a race of perfect light humans, the most ancient race of aliens. William mentions a stargate technology "kit" that includes a star crown, mysterious anointing oil and a robe called the beaming garment. We end the hour on the importance of achieving a state of true holiness, the current time of awakening and the goal of our quest to get out of here!

January 3, 2012

William Henry - Hour 2 - The Dwellers at the Center of the Galaxy

In the second hour for members, we discuss if the dwellers of Sion will return in 2012. Will we have a disclosure of sorts? Williams mentions the return of Quetzecoatl, the feathered serpent and explains how he may have been Seraphim, the highest order of angels and not a harmful entity. He also brings up the serpent in the Garden of Eden as also being Seraphim and how serpent symbolism has been demonized. We'll discuss how lines blur in mythology as well as interpretations of what is light, dark, good and bad. Then, we get into the motivations of the remnant survivors dwelling in the center of our galaxy, which William says are on a rescue mission. We talk about a possible cosmic reset event as a saving grace from our creator before we head down the path of a cyber existence. William also tells us which texts he pulled from to create the basis for The Secret of Sion. Later, we talk about Sion/Zion not from the conspiratorial viewpoint of rebuilding Solomon's Temple but instead as the transformation of becoming pure beings.

An invention called 'the Jewish people'

Post Your Comment

Posted on February 29, 2008

By Tom Segev

Israel's Declaration of Independence states that the Jewish people arose in the Land of Israel and was exiled from its homeland. Every Israeli schoolchild is taught that this happened during the period of Roman rule, in 70 CE. The nation remained loyal to its land, to which it began to return after two millennia of exile. Wrong, says the historian Shlomo Zand, in one of the most fascinating and challenging books published here in a long time. There never was a Jewish people, only a Jewish religion, and the exile also never happened - hence there was no return. Zand rejects most of the stories of national-identity formation in the Bible, including the exodus from Egypt and, most satisfactorily, the horrors of the conquest under Joshua. It's all fiction and myth that served as an excuse for the establishment of the State of Israel, he asserts.

According to Zand, the Romans did not generally exile whole nations, and most of the Jews were permitted to remain in the country. The number of those exiled was at most tens of thousands. When the country was conquered by the Arabs, many of the Jews converted to Islam and were assimilated among the conquerors. It follows that the progenitors of the Palestinian Arabs were Jews. Zand did not invent this thesis; 30 years before the Declaration of Independence, it was espoused by David Ben-Gurion, Yitzhak Ben-Zvi and others.

If the majority of the Jews were not exiled, how is it that so many of them reached almost every country on earth? Zand says they emigrated of their own volition or, if they were among those exiled to Babylon, remained there because they chose to. Contrary to conventional belief, the Jewish religion tried to induce members of other faiths to become Jews, which explains how there came to be millions of Jews in the world. As the Book of Esther, for example, notes, "And many of the people of the land became Jews; for the fear of the Jews fell upon them." Zand quotes from many existing studies, some of which were written in Israel but shunted out of the central discourse. He also describes at length the Jewish kingdom of Himyar in the southern Arabian Peninsula and the Jewish Berbers [These ones were Atlanean – Tara] in North Africa. The community of Jews in Spain sprang from Arabs who became Jews and arrived with the forces that captured Spain from the Christians, and from European-born individuals who had also become Jews.

The first Jews of Ashkenaz (Germany) did not come from the Land of Israel and did not reach Eastern Europe from Germany, but became Jews in the Khazar Kingdom in the Caucasus. Zand explains the origins of Yiddish culture: it was not a Jewish import from Germany, but the result of the connection between the offspring of the Kuzari and Germans who traveled to the East, some of them as merchants.

We find, then, that the members of a variety of peoples and races, blond and black, brown and yellow, became Jews in large numbers. According to Zand, the Zionist need to devise for them a shared ethnicity and historical continuity produced a long series of inventions and fictions, along with an invocation of racist theses. Some were concocted in the minds of those who conceived the Zionist movement, while others were offered as the findings of genetic studies conducted in Israel.

Prof. Zand teaches at Tel Aviv University. His book, "When and How Was the Jewish People Invented?" (published by Resling in Hebrew), is intended to promote the idea that Israel should be a "state of all its citizens" - Jews, Arabs and others - in contrast to its declared identity as a "Jewish and democratic" state. Personal stories, a prolonged theoretical discussion and abundant sarcastic quips do not help the book, but its historical chapters are well-written and cite numerous facts and insights that many Israelis will be astonished to read for the first time.

"Webmaster" very interesting point about the Turkish being very closely matched with the white Ashkenazi European Jews. This adds to the wonderful genetic research conducted by Dr. Ariella Oppenheim (of Hebrew University in "Israel") and her team. One famous quote from Dr. Ariella Oppenheim's work that can be found at a ncbi . gov link called "The Y Chromosome Pool of Jews as Part of the Genetic Landscape of the Middle East". The quote says: "In comparison with data available from other relevant populations in the region, Jews were found to be more closely related to groups in the north of the Fertile Crescent (Kurds, Turks, and Armenians) than to their Arab neighbors."

So note Jews (Khazars) were found to be closely related to Kurds, Turkish Turks of Anatolia, and Armenians! Armenians lived and live up near the Caucasus Mountains region where the Khazar Empire was located.

I just watched the following National Geographic documentary called: The Human Family Tree which you can watch on NetFlix as follows:

<http://www.netflix.com/Movie/National-Geographic-The-Human-Family-Tree/70122464>

Briefly, it attempted to trace the DNA of a sample of people from all different races in NY City. It is over 90 minutes and exciting to watch. It compared African Americans, Porto Ricans, Turkish, Indian, Greek, ...etc. The narrator reached the family tree of every body except the Turkish couple after he matched everybody. Then he finally said these Turkish couple had 50% match with Achkenazic Jews. Go Figure; do you think that is a surprise!

When the dust settles and when the this subject is no longer political for Zionist Jews, we shall find how these researchers & scientists of such studies have been biased (or influenced) in their judgments and conclusions. Note how most of these studies carefully compared Jews to most races except to Turkic people!

Medieval Kingdom of Khazaria, 652-1016

Over a thousand years ago, the far east of Europe was ruled by Jewish kings who presided over numerous tribes, including their own tribe: the Turkic Khazars. After their conversion, the Khazar people used Jewish personal names, spoke and wrote in Hebrew, were circumcised, had synagogues and rabbis, studied the Torah and Talmud, and observed Hanukkah, Pesach, and the Sabbath. The Khazars were an advanced civilization with one of the most tolerant societies of the medieval period. It hosted merchants from all over Asia and Europe. On these pages it is hoped that you may learn more about this fascinating culture.

David Shamah , THE JERUSALEM POST

"We are of the same race and blood, and cooperation will bring great prosperity to the land," wrote Emir Faisal to Felix Frankfurter in 1917. Faisal was known for his affinity to the Zionists who had begun streaming to the Holy Land; in 1919, he signed a cooperation agreement with Chaim Weizmann, to whom he wrote that he was "mindful of the racial kinship and ancient bonds existing between the Arabs and the Jewish people."

But Faisal's proclamations of kinship with the Jews were more than lip service to a commonly held belief, says Tsvi Misinai, who knows perhaps more about the origins of the modern Palestinians than anyone.

"Faisal's paternal line was Hashemite," he says, "meaning he was directly descended from Muhammad. But the mother of his maternal grandfather, King On, was descended from a family of forced Jewish converts to Islam that immigrated to the east bank of the Jordan, later returning to one of the villages west of the Jordan. Unlike today, when Faisal was growing up, his grandfather's mother's Jewish origin was known, and they made no great effort to hide it. And what was known to Faisal is known to many Palestinians today as well."

This is a story of what may be one of the best-kept secrets in history - one that could, in time, heal the terrible rift that has torn the Land of Israel asunder. After years of research, Misinai says that he can declare with certainty that nearly 90 percent of all Palestinians are descended from the Jews. "And what's more, about half of them know it," he says.

Not only that, many Palestinians retain Jewish customs, including mourning rituals, lighting Shabbat or memorial candles and even wearing tefillin. While the common wisdom among many Israelis is that the group that calls itself "Palestinian" is a motley collection of Arabs from various parts of the Middle East who immigrated to the Land of Israel following the employment opportunities provided by Jews, Misinai says that the vast majority of today's Palestinians are descended from the remnants of Jewish families who managed to avoid being deported over the past 2,000 years, or returned to their lands after they were exiled, as the Jews in the Holy Land suffered blow after blow - from the Roman destruction of the Temple to the Crusades to famine, poverty and war throughout the Middle Ages.

One thing many were unable to avoid, however, was converting to Islam - a forced conversion that never really "took," done more out of fear than conviction. Misinai has made it his mission to spread the word among Palestinians, giving them the opportunity to retrieve their lost heritage. And not just introduce them to their roots; according to Misinai, the reintegration of what he calls the "descendants of Israel" with the Jewish people is the best - perhaps the only - way to solve the seemingly endless Middle East crisis.

Despite what some may be thinking, Misinai is not a nut. In fact, he is a hi-tech entrepreneur, perhaps the first in Israel's history. While the kids from ICQ and Google were still in diapers, in the early 1980s

Misinai was building Sapiens into a world-class application developer, focusing on the insurance industry. All those rule-based, object-oriented applications we use every day; it was Misinai who invented the concept, and the product, winning the Rothschild Award for industrial development in the field of software in 1992.

Several years afterward, he retired from the hi-tech business to return to his first love - researching the history of the Land of Israel. "I became interested in this area because of my father, who was a great collector of artifacts about the Land of Israel," he says, a hobby he has continued. But besides objects, Misinai collected stories - legends and folklore from the mouths of mukhtars, village elders throughout the land, attesting to the truth of his assertions.

"There are large clans throughout the country, in the Hebron Hills, in Samaria and among the Negev Beduin, who know of their heritage and even have family trees that document their roots. Not only that; many of them have specifically Jewish customs, and their neighbors would call them 'the Jews,' even though they were technically as Muslim as anyone else."

Close to nine out of 10 Palestinians in the Land of Israel - Israel proper, Judea, Samaria and Gaza - have Jewish roots. In fact, he says, the percentage in Gaza is somewhat higher than 90 percent.

Misinai is far from the first researcher to have stumbled upon this historical find. The first president of Israel, Yitzhak Ben-Zvi, and the first prime minister, David Ben-Gurion, wrote several books and articles on the subject. In fact, Ben-Gurion believed so strongly in the idea that in 1956 he set up a task force headed by Moshe Dayan and Haim Levkov (the Palmah's "point man" among the Arabs of Israel, he worked with Yigal Allon to set up the Trackers' Unit, traditionally the domain of Negev Beduin), that was supposed to develop ways to "Judaize" the Beduin, teaching them something about modern Jewish life and tradition to integrate them with the Israeli people, ethnically if not religiously.

The Beduin were willing enough, but the teachers who were supposed to live and work with them dropped out of the program because of the rough living conditions. In the end, Dayan convinced Ben-Gurion that the idea would upset "the Islamic world," and the program was dropped.

That's an important point, Misinai says. "I don't necessarily believe most, or even some, of the Palestinians would want to convert to Judaism, at least right now. Reintegrating them with the Jewish people does not necessarily require them to convert, and I imagine many of the rabbis would be reluctant to go ahead with such a program."

Plus, he says, many Israelis of all stripes would be suspicious that the Palestinians were embracing their "Jewish identities" as a way of getting Israeli ID cards - to get National Insurance money, if not to carry out terror attacks.

IN HIS book, Brother Shall Not Lift Sword Against Brother, which discusses what he calls "the Engagement," Misinai foresees a gradual process of education and integration that could take 40 to 50 years, with immigration and natural growth among the Jews keeping the demographic balance in check. "It sounds like a long time, but we often forget that it's been 40 years since the Six Day War and the only 'progress' that we've made has been the Oslo process, which has turned out to be a tragedy for Israel and the Palestinians," Misinai says.

Besides, he says, many of the Palestinians might not have to convert anyway.

"Many of the families in question know they are of Jewish origin, and they marry among themselves. Halachically there may be some questions, but I have consulted with rabbis who say they are resolvable. It would certainly be in line with historic Judaism, which in the past - during the Temple periods, for example - had more lax standards for accepting returnees. For example, Jews who were idol worshipers during the First and Second Temple periods were not forced to convert back in order to be considered part of the people of Israel."

Besides, he says, with most of the available spouses living in the land coming from Jewish backgrounds themselves, the opportunity to intermarry with someone of non-Jewish ancestry was low - far lower than the chances for such a marriage to take place in modern-day America or Russia, he says. "Several Palestinians have gone through formal conversion, but I know of a number who have taken on Jewish practices - and who say they don't need to convert because they know they're already Jews."

And the evidence for the Jewish ancestry of the Palestinians is persuasive - very persuasive, when all the information is taken into account. First, there are the names - not just place names, but family names. "Many villages here have names that are not Arabic, and very rarely appear in other Arab lands. Among such names are Kafr Yasif, Kafr Kana, Kafr Yatta, Kafr Manda, Kafr Samia, and many others," says Misinai. Indeed, Ben-Zvi in his 1932 book The Peoples of Our Land wrote that west of the Jordan River, 277 villages and sites - nearly two-thirds! - had names that were similar to or the same as the Jewish settlements on the same sites during Second Temple times.

That in itself, said Ben-Zvi in his book, is proof that the inhabitants of those villages were Jews who had remained after the destruction. "If in fact the Jewish settlements became inhabited by entirely different people, they would not have preserved the Hebrew names (which in fact, did occur in most of those settlements where the population did change, such as in the eastern part of the Jordan). Such is not the case in western land of Israel where the old Hebrew names are preserved, which proves the continuity of settlement in this place," he wrote.

It's not just place names; many Palestinians have Hebrew-derived family names as well, reflecting their origins, says Misinai. Already in the 1860s, "Colonel Condor of the Institute for Israel Research found biblical names among Palestinian fellahin [peasants]. Many of these names have no root in the Arabic lexicon. Large, distinguished families from various parts of the country carry Hebrew names or Jewish family names."

Among the surnames of some of the larger clans are the Abu Khatsiras, who control much of the fishing in Gaza; Elbaz, a family of Jews who immigrated from Morocco; Abulafia, the family with the famous Jaffa bakery which is descended from the 13th-century Spanish kabbalist Rabbi Abraham Abulafia; the Almogs of Jenin; the Dawouda (Davids) of Hebron; and even, believe it or not, 4,000 forced converts to Islam named Cohen living in Jordan.

Not only that: The Palestinian dialect of Arabic contains many terms and words not found in "standard" Arabic - the result of the integration of Hebrew and Aramaic into the Arabic they were forced to learn after the various Arab and Turkish conquests.

Israel Belkind, one of the organizers of the Bilu movement, who researched the roots of the Palestinians during the 1890s, wrote that "it was already proven by Major Condor, in his research on the land of Israel, that the 'Arabs' of the Land of Israel had spoken Aramaic in the days of the Crusades, the language spoken by the Jews until the Arab conquest - meaning that these Aramaic-speaking 'Arabs' were actually Jews themselves."

In fact, Misinai says, Aramaic was still the lingua franca among some villagers not too long ago. "In 1974, the settlers who established the modern Ofra were astounded to find that the residents of the village on the ancient biblical site of Ofra - called Tybiba - were Christians who spoke Aramaic."

While many gentiles converted to Christianity in the religion's early days, they would most likely be

Greek speakers; any group that spoke Aramaic is far more likely to have Jewish roots.

Many Jewish customs have survived among the Palestinians as well, Misinai says. "In Islam, parents are required to have their sons circumcised by the age of 13. While in many Islamic countries the custom is to wait several years, among Palestinians many perform the ritual a week after their son is born - meaning on the eighth day," he says.

Other customs include sitting seven days for deceased loved ones instead of just three (a custom, Misinai says, that has fallen by the wayside since the first intifada), lighting memorial candles for the dead (a custom found nowhere in the Muslim world), lighting Shabbat candles and practicing levirate marriage - the practice of having a brother marry his deceased sibling's wife under certain circumstances. That's a widespread practice among the Beduin, says Misinai, and in fact "much of the legal code of the Beduin is remarkably similar to many laws in the Torah and the Mishna." In addition, several Palestinian families own ancient hanukkiot, which they used in mid-winter - around Hanukka.

YEHUDA BOORLA described in his book Be'ain Kochav (about his service as an officer in the Turkish army during World War I) interesting information about an Arab attendant from the Land of Israel who accompanied him. One section of the book describes a "moment of discovery" on the part of the attendant. Upon hearing the author speak about the Islamic custom of cutting off the breasts of Jewish women, the Arab attendant realized that his mother, who suffered from the same deformity, was in reality Jewish.

Until today, elderly Palestinians in Jordan who moved there from west of the river tell of this tradition, says Misinai. "They say that this was done in cases where Muslim men married Jewish women, so that the Jewish women would not be able to breast-feed and their children would not take in the milk of their Jewish mothers. Thus the children would not be thought to be Jewish."

One of the most curious of the Jewish customs that were once widespread among the Palestinians was the putting on of tefillin - usually done by someone who was ill, especially by those suffering from headaches. The rare tefillin were wrapped in cloth (to preserve them, says Misinai). When a sick person needed "treatment," they would place the tefillin box (which houses the scroll) on the middle of the ill person's forehead and wrap the connected fabric straps around his head. With the use of a key, an assistant would tighten the strap, thereby creating pressure around the head. The heightened pressure increased the headache pain - so when the tefillin was removed, it seemed as if the victim's original pain had decreased, if not disappeared completely. "Other than among a few people, the true meaning of the tefillin was lost," says Misinai.

Food, too, is high on the agenda of these lost Jews. Many Beduin refrain from eating camel and other nonkosher animals, and around Pessah time, many Palestinians find themselves with a yen for matza. "In the region around Bethlehem, there is a high demand for matza during Pessah. When trucks delivering matza pass through, the customers crowd the trucks, taking the boxes right off the trucks even before unloading and bringing them into the store."

The same story repeats itself in Nazareth and Shfaram, where residents make special trips to Upper Nazareth to buy matza. "Possibly they do this because they like matza, but given the other testimonies about these people, it's more logical to say that, at least in origin, the demand for matza during the start of the spring has more to do with religious custom than a recurring heightened seasonal desire for dry crackers," says Misinai.

And while all the anecdotal evidence cited could be the result of historical confusion or some other factor, the one thing that cannot be falsified is the genetic record - which overwhelmingly proves the closeness of traditional Jews and Palestinians, says Misinai. "In 2001, Human Immunology magazine published a genetic study conducted by Prof. Antonio Arnez-Vilna, a Spanish researcher from the University of Complutense in Madrid, who discovered that the immune systems of the Jews and the Palestinians are extremely close to one another in a way that almost absolutely demonstrates a similar genetic identity. Following the publication of the article, the magazine instructed readers to destroy it due to the fact that the author had inserted political opinions into the article," Misinai says, adding that no allegations of falsified data were ever made.

OTHER STUDIES, including a 2002 test by Tel Aviv University researchers, determined that only two groups in the world - Ashkenazi Jews and Palestinians - were genetically susceptible to an inherited deafness syndrome. All the studies he cites in his book, says Misinai, show that "the Palestinians are genetically much closer to Ashkenazi Jews than they are to the Arabs."

The findings, by the way, also should dispel once and for all the canard that Ashkenazi Jews are descended from the Central Asian Khazars, and not from the population of the Land of Israel.

If "secret Judaism" is as widespread among Palestinians as Misinai says, why are so many so opposed to Jewish settlement here? Because the issue has been "hijacked" by groups - the leadership of the Arab world, and Palestinians who have forgotten their Jewish roots. For this reason, most of the youth are not told about their origins until later on - when they have learned the art of obfuscation, balancing multiple identities to ensure their survival.

It should be noted not all Palestinians hate Israel, Misinai points out; in 1982, for example, the leaders of Bidya in Samaria offered to enlist in the IDF in the First Lebanon War to fight the PLO. "The Jewish origin of many of Bidya's clans is a well-known fact, even today," says Misinai.

But still, there's no denying that many Palestinians would like to see the Jews just disappear. And there are several reasons for that, says Misinai, the "loss of memory" among many Palestinians who now see the Jews as a "competitive other," and fear of radicals and terrorists among those who would otherwise feel affinity for Jews - as they undertake terrorist acts to throw off suspicion that they are "collaborators."

In his book, Misinai painstakingly describes the origins of the Palestinians, who he says are made up chiefly of two groups: Jews who lived in the mountain regions of Judea and Samaria, who were able to maintain their Jewish identities for hundreds of years before being forced to make a choice between exile and conversion to Islam; and members of the ancient nations of Edom and Moab, who were converted to Judaism en masse at least twice.

The two groups, whom Misinai calls respectively the "descendants of Israel" and the "brethren of Israel," are the chief components of what we today call the Palestinians, with the addition of a smattering of Arabs (barely a few percent), Samaritans (who maintain their own distinct religious identity), descendants of the soldiers who served in the occupying Roman army after the destruction of the Second Temple and even some survivors of the ancient Canaanite and Philistine nations - "idol worshipers who can be found in Gaza and in the village of Jisr a-Zarka, near Haifa," says Misinai.

The collective memory of the mountain people was better than that of the "brethren of Israel," who eventually settled in the lowlands and coast from where most of the Jewish refugees originated; most of these people forgot their Jewish roots, and they comprise the bulk of refugees who fled Israel in 1948. And, Misinai says, they're the ones who are most active in terror activities. It's this group that participated most actively in the intifada, with their objective to return to the lands they abandoned in 1948 (which they themselves occupied only about 100 years before, as they settled near areas were Jews had built towns and cities to get work). In essence, though, the brethren have now returned to their ancestral homeland east of the Jordan.

Which leaves the "descendants" the major component of the Palestinian population on the west side of the Jordan. And it's these people, Misinai believes, that Israel can - and must - work with to resolve the Palestinian issue. Not by creating a Palestinian state in Judea and Samaria, but by offering the "mountain people" the opportunity to reconnect with their roots - with the Jewish people and with the modern State of Israel.

"It sounds impractical, but Zionism always was impractical. And yet it succeeded," says Misinai. But the Palestinian problem has thrown Zionism out of kilter. Nobody, despite reluctance to go through another partition, is interested in being an "occupier." But Israel's reintegration - Engagement, as Misinai puts it - of the Palestinians with the Jewish people would allow Zionism to renew its roots, and complete the task of building the modern Israeli nation.

"There are lots of reasons why this would work," says Misinai. "The fact that most Palestinians consider themselves Muslim is not an issue, because most of the Palestinians are not particularly religious Muslims. Until recent decades, there were few mosques relative to population outside Jerusalem. It was King Hussein, and later the Israeli Ministry of Religious Affairs, that prompted much of the mosque building in recent years. Bidya, for example, only had one mosque for 25,000 residents until recently."

In his writings, Ben-Zvi cited an interesting phenomenon that he observed. "When the Palestinian peasant swears in the name of the prophet Muhammad, the oath is not taken seriously. But if he goes to the grave of a holy person of the village or of the surrounding area and swears there, we may completely rely on his oath."

THE PALESTINIANS' veneration of the Jewish prophets, their preservation of the grave sites of the Jewish patriarchs, and their embrace even of Jewish rituals (Ben-Zvi cites witnesses who recounted Palestinians and Beduin coming to dance at the grave of Rabbi Shimon Bar Yohai in Meron on Lag Ba'omer) indicates that the "Musta'abari [secret Jews] spirit" is still alive and that if offered the possibility of being not so religious Muslims or not so religious Jews, the majority would opt for the latter.

This is where the state has a major role to play, Misinai says. "Most Palestinians are loyal above all to their families, then to their clans, then to those in position of power and only at the end to their religion and people. A strong State of Israel, confident in its direction and its just cause, can successfully execute the Engagement plan."

One reason Palestinians have kept their Jewish roots secret for so long - despite the desire of many to come out of the Islamic closet - is because of their fear of the bully elements in the Palestinian and Arab leadership, the same groups that perpetuate the misery of Israeli Jews and descendants of Israel. "Many of the descendants' families are forced to prove their loyalty to the 'cause' on pain of death," says Misinai. "For example, many families name one of their children Jihad to 'prove' their credentials as loyal fighters against the Jews."

If the state were to offer them an alternative, however, Misinai says many would find the courage to break out of their old patterns and embrace their true heritage. It's not at all about conversion, he says, more about developing a cultural affinity and a single national group. But, he says, it's likely that a large number would want to convert anyway. Even if many Palestinians prefer not to join the Jewish people, the fact that many would be willing would set the tone.

For similar reasons Israeli Jews, since the days of Ben-Zvi and Ben-Gurion, have shunted aside the clear evidence of the Jewish background of the Palestinians. "After the Holocaust, the issue was set aside, as the Yishuv had more pressing matters, besides the obvious issues of language and lifestyle that separated Jews and Palestinians, not to mention the suffering inflicted by the various uprisings and pogroms conducted against the Yishuv. And the arrival of Jews from Eastern countries who had just been booted out of their homes by Muslims, whom they didn't trust, only exacerbated the divisions."

But now, 60 years later, with the seemingly intractable issue of two nations laying the same ancestral claim to the same piece of land, it is time to revisit the past to build the future.

In the end, Misinai says, the reintegration of the Palestinians with the Jewish people is the best - and only - solution. "We've been down the path of partition, defensive war and what the world calls occupation. Nothing has worked. The world is getting very tired of our bickering, and is pushing to implement a solution - any solution. So far, the only solutions are the ones that have failed, but here is some new, fresh thinking, that many Jews and Palestinians would accept. And if we accept it, so will the nations of the world."

Misinai's Engagement would unite the "two kingdoms of Israel" described by the prophet Ezekiel.

"The Jews who went into exile held onto their culture, beliefs and religion, while those that remained behind held as long as they could to the Land of Israel. Both loves - love of Torah and love of land - come from the same wellsprings. It's time to repair the historic damage done by our enemies, the Romans, and reunite our people."

A conference call between Scotland Yard and the FBI has been intercepted and published by a member of the computer hacking group Anonymous.

By Duncan Gardham, Security Correspondent

2:47PM GMT 03 Feb 2012

The conversation covered updates to on-going court cases, the recent arrest of a 15-year-old for hacking his school website, and even touched on cheese and the merits of Sheffield.

One officer appears to refer to the city as a “khazi” - slang for toilet – and tells an American colleague: “You’ve missed nothing, it’s not exactly a jewel in England’s crown.”

They seem to think the Bullring shopping centre in Birmingham is actually in Sheffield and also refer to a colleague as an “old school detective but mad as a box of frogs”.

The Anonymous hacker managed to listen in to the call after accessing an FBI email which gave details of the intended call. The email was also posted online.

Writing on the Twitter account, AnonymousIRC, one hacker said: “The FBI might be curious how we’re able to continuously read their internal comms for some time now.”

The FBI confirmed hackers had intercepted a confidential phone call, and said it was hunting those responsible.

An FBI spokesman said: “The information was intended for law enforcement officers only and was illegally obtained. A criminal investigation is under way to identify and hold accountable those responsible.”

The FBI email referred to an investigation on both sides of the Atlantic into a number of hacking groups.

It read: “A conference call is planned for next Tuesday (January 17, 2012) to discuss the on-going investigations related to Anonymous, Lulzsec, Antisecc, and other associated splinter groups.”

The recording, which was posted on Youtube, refers to the on-going court case against Ryan Cleary, arrested last June for his alleged role in the group LulzSec, and reveals legally sensitive information.

It also refers to a 15-year-old listed as a member of CSLSec - meaning “can’t stop laughing security” - a copy-cat group of hackers with just three members.

In the conversation, British police officers named only as Matt and Stuart explain that the teenager was arrested before Christmas for an alleged incident involving his school and that he apparently claimed to have taken part in a hacking incident called “Operation Mayhem.”

“Basically he’s doing all this for attention, he’s a bit of an idiot,” one officer says. They add claim that he has written a confession through his school that runs to two sides of A4 and one officer says he writes about “how he got involved, what he’s done, almost clearing the slate now he’s come to the notice of the police.”

“A smack from mum and dad is behind it all,” the officer adds, saying he is “just another juvenile, another wannabe character.”

One Anonymous member tweeted to the boy, criticising him for helping the police, saying: “Man you’re fg dumb. It’s a conversation discussing anonymous/lulzsec and your wanna-be ass. your UK agent calls you an idiot.”

The 15 year-old, who is not being named by the Daily Telegraph for legal reasons, has sent out a number of tweets responding to the posting saying: “lol [laughs out loud] I’m UK not USA, no FBI can touch me. Idiot...why wud FBI talk about me? I’m not even US & haven’t been arrested. I’m still here ain’t I? lol...I haven’t heard it yet...& I haven’t got a UK agent lol.”

The boy says claims he started hacking aged 12 and spends up to seven hours a day reading eBooks, tutorials, forum posts and watching Youtube videos.

He said he designed websites for family, friends and people online, making a “couple $100 a month” and used his pocket money of around £10 each week and funds from hacking to invest in “advertising and other things such as stocks etc, which some I still hold and are growing today (all under my mother’s name of course who had no clue at the time.)”

In mid-May last year he says he got caught after he had hacked into his school’s website and they traced his IP number, got the phone number from Virgin Media and called his house.

“My nine-year-old brother picked up and of course, gave my name away,” he writes, adding: “I got a police referral order for six months, where they would regularly check my PC BUT I had a laptop, netbook and other people’s/family’s computers at my disposal.”

Since then he claims to have hacked the BBC and PBS, the American TV station, along with GoodYear tyres.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said: “We are aware of the video, which relates to an FBI conference call involving a PCeU [Police Central e-crime Unit] representative.

“The matter is being investigated by the FBI. At this stage no operational risks to the MPS have been identified; however, we continue to carry out a full assessment.”

Almost everything they teach us about the ancient history is wrong: origin of men, civilizations, and pyramids. Homo sapiens sapiens is not a result of the evolution, and biologists will never find a “missing link”, because the intelligent man is product of genetic engineering. Sumerians are not the beginning of the civilized men, but rather beginning of another cycle of humanity. And finally, original pyramids, most superior and oldest, were made by advanced builders who knew energy, astronomy and construction better than we do.

In order to understand the ancient monuments, we need to view them through three realms: physical, energy and spiritual. Our scientific instruments are simply not enough to explain the purpose of oldest pyramids, for example. Mainstream scientists, archaeologists, historians and anthropologists are often main obstacle for scientific progress.

Gap between physical and spiritual science is to be bridged if we want to get fully understanding of the past.

Twelve hundred ton stone block in Baalbeck (Lebanon) needs explanation. Who was able to shape, move and install four times bigger blocks than our, 21st century, capabilities? Yonaguni megalithic monuments (Japan) do belong to the previous cycle of humanity. They are undeniable proof, on the bottom of the Pacific floor, 80 meters below the ocean level, that advanced culture lived in the area more than 12.000 years ago before huge quantities of ice melted and caused Pacific level to rise for 80 meters. Machu Picchu (Peru) tells the story of four distinctive civilizations and different construction styles, first civilization being the most advanced. At the same time, all the history books make up story of Inkas being the builders of “royal retreat” in the recent times. New dating of Peruvian, Mexican, Chinese and Egyptian pyramids will take us back much before recognized history and known rulers.

Oldest Chinese and Egyptian pyramids are much superior to those made later as unsuccessful replicas. Older are built from granite and sandstone blocks, more recent ones are much smaller, built from bricks and mud. Traces of more advanced beings are everywhere around us. In the meantime, mainstream scientists try to fit those monuments into their time coordinates, falsifying the truth.

Two hundred Cahokia pyramids show astronomical knowledge of the builders who moved several million tons of construction materials and who knew the difference between cosmic and magnetic north. Mayan world is an example of the knowledge of the Universe. Our Solar system circles Milky Way and that 26-thousand years cycle (“long count calendar”) affect all living life on our Planet. Anasazies, ancestors of Pueblo Indians, didn’t need alphabet or physical communication means to recognize danger in different dimensions coming from the depth of the Universe.

As long as they stay within the box, mainstream archaeologists will never be able to explain tooling and logistic needed to build stone heads on Easter Islands, shape granite blocks of Akapana pyramid complex in Bolivia or create chambers of Giza pyramids.

Stone spheres of western Mexico, southern Costa Rica, Easter Island or twenty locations in remote Bosnia-Herzegovina, are obvious proof of understanding and manipulating of shapes and energy in the distant past.

On top of all that, discovery of the Bosnian Valley of the Pyramids is telling us that we don't know our Planet. We might go to the Moon (temporarily, until threaten), but we still need to explore our Mother Earth. More secrets wait to be uncovered and, with the ancient knowledge, help us reach our balance back.

In April 2005, I first traveled to the town of Visoko, 20 miles northwest from Sarajevo, the capital of Bosnia-Herzegovina. My attention was caught by two regularly shaped hills, which I later named the Bosnian Pyramids of the Sun and Moon. For thousands of years locals have considered those hills to be natural phenomena because they were covered by soil and vegetation. However, when I first saw their triangular faces, obvious corners and orientation toward the cardinal points, I knew that they had to be constructed by a force other than nature. Since I had been investigating pyramids for decades, I knew that the pyramids found in China, Mexico, Guatemala and El Salvador had the same type of soil and vegetation coverage.

In 2005, work has begun on this project and construction companies and geologists were paid (out of my pocket) to do core drilling and geomorphological analysis. We then announced to the world, at the press conference, that the first pyramids in Europe had been discovered.

Shortly thereafter we established the non-profit Archaeological Park: Bosnian Pyramid of the Sun Foundation and since that time the pyramid investigations in Bosnia have become the world's largest interdisciplinary archaeological project. We have spent over 340,000 man-hours in archaeological excavation, sample testing and radiocarbon dating in the period from 2005 to 2011. We determined that the Bosnian Valley of the Pyramids consists of five pyramids discovered to date which I named: The Bosnian Pyramids of the Sun, Moon, Dragon, Mother Earth and Love. The site also includes a tumulus complex and a huge underground labyrinth.

This discovery is historic and changes the knowledge of the early history of Europe for several reasons:

- These are the first pyramids discovered in Europe
- The site includes the largest pyramid structure in the world—The Bosnian Pyramid of the Sun with its height of over 220 meters is much higher than the Great Pyramid of Egypt (147 meters).
- The Bosnian Pyramid of the Sun has, according to the Bosnian Institute for Geodesy, the most precise orientation towards cosmic north with the error of 0 degrees, 0 minutes and 12 seconds.
- The Bosnian Pyramid of the Sun is completely covered by rectangular concrete blocks. The properties of the concrete, including extreme hardness (up to 133 MPa) and low water absorption (around 1%), are, according to the scientific institutions in Bosnia, Italy and France, far superior to modern concrete materials.
- The pyramids are covered by soil which is, according to the State Institute for Agro-pedology, approx. 12,000 years old. Radiocarbon dating from the paved terrace on Bosnian Pyramid of the Moon, performed by Institute of Physics of Silesian Institute of Technology from Gliwice (Poland) confirmed that terrace was built 10,350 years ago (+/- 50 years). These findings confirm that the Bosnian pyramids are also the oldest known pyramids on the planet.

- Beneath the Bosnian Valley of the Pyramids there is an extensive underground tunnel and chamber network which runs for a total of more than ten miles.
- Ceramic sculptures have been discovered in the underground labyrinth with a mass of up to 20,000 pounds which makes them the largest found so far from the ancient world.

The list of the wonders in Bosnian archaeology does not end here. In the vicinity, we discovered the tallest tumulus in the World: 61 meter high. Its nearest competitor, Silbury Hill in England is 60 meters high. The Bosnian tumulus consists of two-layer megalithic terraces, clay layers and artificial concrete layers.

A team of physicists detected an energy beam coming through the top of the Bosnian Pyramid of the Sun. The radius of the beam is 4.5 meters with a frequency of 28 kHz. The beam is continuous and its strength grows as it moves up and away from the pyramid. This phenomenon contradicts the known laws of physics and technology. This is the first proof of non-herzian technology on the Planet. It seems that the pyramid builders created a perpetual motion machine a long time ago and this “energy machine” is still working.

In the underground labyrinth, in 2010, we discovered three chambers and a small blue lake. Energy screening shows that the ionization level is 43 times higher than the average concentration outside which makes the underground chambers into “healing rooms”.

Further electromagnetic detection in 2011 confirmed that levels of negative radiation through the Hartman, Curry and Schneider grids are equal to zero in the tunnels. There was no technical radiation (from power lines and/or other technology) found in the tunnels and no cosmic radioactivity. Ceramic sculptures are positioned over the underground water flows and the negative energy is transformed into positive. All of these experiments point to the underground labyrinth as one of the most secure underground constructions in the world and this makes it an ideal place for the body’s rejuvenation and regeneration.

Two hundred years of Egyptology has not produced a satisfactory answer to the question of what the real purpose was for the oldest and most superior pyramids.

In only six years, our research in Bosnia has applied interdisciplinary scientific methods, to look at this complex through the physical, energetic and spiritual dimensions. We have had pioneering results which affects the entire sphere of knowledge and Pyramid Science. Our history is changing with each new discovery.

Perhaps by changing our beginnings or learning to better understand our beginnings we can also change our present and our future for the better.
