R: Our furry, fishy, finny friends who have everything to do with this story: the clarion call to all of us

- he knows Ashtar is calling him to active duty; as one is called, all are called
- 2nd year anni of BP spill - still no one called to account for this

Camp Loveway: Taren's wife; their daughter; a local astrologer - talking about what is in store for all on planet - the goddess is showing up, the astrology of today is about what's coming up

- Also strange anomalies - massive solar flares increase the frequencies of living love, living light
- this plus photon energy, tak-ion energies - people's hair standing on end all over planet!
- they were tying in news stories and astrology - they brought up Murdoch, News Corp - maybe within next week, could be gone; Same as Fox news; also brought up exposures of such deep corruption

R: story out there about Bush & Bush being brought up on war crimes charges; along with Cheney he is a walking war criminal.

- Whistleblower: The NSA is Lying—U.S. Government Has Copies of Most of Your Emails

- National Security Agency whistleblower William Binney reveals he believes domestic surveillance has become more expansive under President Obama than President George W. Bush. He estimates the NSA has assembled 20 trillion "transactions" — phone calls, emails and other forms of data — from Americans. This likely includes copies of almost all of the emails sent and received from most people living in the United States. Binney talks about Section 215 of the USA PATRIOT Act and challenges NSA Director Keith Alexander's assertion that the NSA is not intercepting information about U.S. citizens. This interview is part of a 4-part

special. Click here to see segment 1, 2, and 4. [includes rush transcript]

In his first television interview since he resigned from the National Security Agency over its domestic surveillance program, William Binney discusses the NSA's massive power to spy on Americans and why the FBI raided his home after he became a whistleblower. Binney was a key source for investigative journalist James Bamford's recent exposé in Wired Magazine about how the NSA is quietly building the largest spy center in the country in Bluffdale, Utah. The Utah spy center will contain near-bottomless databases to store all forms of communication collected by the agency, including private emails, cell phone calls, Google searches and other personal data.

Binney served in the NSA for over 30 years, including a time as technical director of the NSA's World Geopolitical and Military Analysis Reporting Group. Since retiring from the NSA in 2001, he has warned that the NSA's data-mining program has become so vast that it could "create an Orwellian state." Today marks the first time Binney has spoken on national television about NSA surveillance. *This interview is part of a 4-part special. - Detained in the U.S.: Filmmaker Laura Poitras Held, Questioned Some 40 Times at U.S. Airports

The Academy Award-nominated filmmaker Laura Poitras discusses how she has been repeatedly detained and questioned by federal agents whenever she enters the United States. Poitras said the interrogations began after she began working on her documentary, "My Country, My Country," about post-invasion Iraq. Her most recent film, "The Oath," was about Yemen and Guantánamo and follows the lives of two past associates of Osama bin Laden. She estimates she has been detained approximately 40 times and has had her laptop, cell phone and personal belongings repeatedly searched. Tonight she is leading a surveillance teach-in at the Whitney Museum in New York City with our other guests, computer security researcher and government target Jacob Appelbaum and National Security Agency whistleblower William Binney. Poitras is currently at work on a film about post-9/11 America. This interview is part of a 4-part special. Click here to see segment 1, 3, and 4. [includes rush transcript]

Guest: Laura Poitras, an award-winning documentary filmmaker and producer. She is working on the third part of a trilogy of films about America post-9/11. The first film was My Country, My Country, and the second was The Oath.

- "We Don't Live in a Free Country": Jacob Appelbaum on Being Target of Widespread Gov't Surveillance

We speak with Jacob Appelbaum, a computer researcher who has faced a stream of interrogations and electronic surveillance since he volunteered with the whistleblowing website, WikiLeaks. He describes being detained more than a dozen times at the airport and interrogated by federal agents who asked about his political views and confiscated his cell phone and laptop. When asked why he cannot talk about what happened after he was questioned, Appelbaum says, "Because we don't live in a free country. And if I did, I guess I could tell you about it." A federal judge ordered Twitter to hand over information about Appelbaum's account. Meanwhile, he continues to work on the Tor Project, an anonymity network that ensures every person has the right to browse the internet without restriction and the right to speak freely. *This interview is part of a 4-part special. Guest: Jacob Appelbaum, a computer security researcher who has volunteered with WikiLeaks. He is a developer and advocate for the Tor Project, a network enabling its users to communicate anonymously on the internet.

Jacob: www.TorProject.org

- Gitsi - don't use skype, it's proprietary; Skype will give it to the Feds
- when you use Tor, no one gets your home address - it makes the meta data useless!
- Has never had his phones returned to him - nor his computer

Binney: Wydall and Udall are senators working on this - they'd lose their security clearance & be thrown off committees if they said anything [he worked for almost 40 years for NSA because he is deeply concerned about spying on the American people]

Laura: whole post 9/11 time - how can they explain it to their grandchildren

Binney: they took an oath to defend the US - and are not

Jacob: congress needs people who understand the technology like Bill to interview General ??

T: notes from last night [Laurence?]

- any odd things that are happening have been ordered by Hitler
- Nuns have been reprimanded for helping the poor, and not spending enough time on fighting against equal rights re: marriage and against abortion

R: asked Robert Scheer about Ahmadinejad helping the GOP - not a story!

- Thom is sitting in the belly of the beast - who knows what has happened?
- Maybe what Thom is trying to do is expose behind the scenes at a higher level and the Ayatollah

T: Thomas Jefferson not a saint, either; involved in slave trade in the north: deporting the people of the land

- in all of NA, there are only two primary cultures
  - the culture of the Mexicans, including the Haplo group and Mayans

- the culture of the Aboriginal Moabite Nation
- the Arabs were here 6-8, 000 thousand of years ago
- The Taos Pueblos go back 10,000 years - first multi-level apartment buildings on planet

T: the Olmecs are from inner earth as the Druids were; very big; very blue-black skin - from Inner Earth like the Druids were

Need to talk of Tribe of Dan

Reading: an article about a Bishop Daniel Jenke of Preoria and Barack Obama and his "radical pro-abortion" and "extreme secularist agenda"

- BO is student of highest path of Diamond Sutra, the 8 fold path; so was Malcolm X
- Laurence: speaking of clear violations [in response to Jenke's words] those words leave the Catholic church open to violation of the IRS code banning tax-exempt religious organizations from participating in or intervening in any political campaign . . .
The church has been behind a lot, & Knights of Malta
- The Dominionist Church of America - where church and state are one - is behind the whole thing
- many Catholic churches in Seattle, WA demonstrated against what the Bishop said:
  - Rev Tim Clark of Our Lady of the Lake Catholic Church in Seattle said he would not go along with the church's position reversing the law against LBCT marriages, in spite of Bishop's words
  - congregation gave him 15 minute standing ovation: people far more advanced than bishops, etc
    - [D'Yanna as Lady of the Lake helped St. Germain and Arthur ascend - Arthur did not die although was impaled by Mordred, considered one of first illuminati - worked with the church to get the crusades going ]
- Catholic League [a fraudulent organization, not part of Catholic Church] spoke out against Jon Stewart
- In 1999 a nun was silenced for helping to administer to aids victims; Nun who is head of organizations of American nuns said that Catholic church is totalitarian [aligned with the Nazis, on other words ] the nuns are standing up against dogma!
- there is still a story that church will be cleaned up - the US will stay here and we will be all one nation all across the planet
- From Ed's show last night: Mittens talking about "a small company"; turned out to be Bain Capital which is worth a lot - so who started the company?
  - Bill Bain supplied Mitt with some "seed" money so he could start the company as an experiment
    - if the new company failed, he would craft a cover story and give him his old job back, with all the back pay, raises, etc + a cover letter that he would be allowed to come back
  - Not quite the kinds of risks that regular people have!
- Laurence: read from Richard Cohen - The Real Romney -
[Randi Rhodes says this is the real Lucifer - ]
  - He has the sense of self that being in the business world gives one - this is what allows a slum landlord to be a great donor to charity, for example, nor is lying a sin; it's a business plan!!!!

T: about China buying land up everywhere - this is leading to small farmers being pushed off the land and left homeless - and the land prices are rising [examples from Africa]

R: Mary Lynn Leblanc - went to Gaza and Ramallah - it is worse than the poorest cities in the US

- thanks to US and Israel that this is happening
- she went with the people on the flotilla project to Gaza some time ago
- they tried a fly - flottila - told to get back on the plane, go home

T: Aung Suu Kyi - proposed changes to the constitution [Burma]

- Used to be a full military junta; now only 1/4 of gov't is military

T: what about dropping all borders?

R: as NESARA is announced and the galactics land, there will be a discussion as we sit at the roundtable to figure things out: the uniqueness to this planet and this sector of the NGW - we have water, which is unique in this spiral arm of the MWG - what to do about borders - water is a big item

T: India sent up a rocket - 3,000 miles range

- Germany - domestic abuse inside Islamic families in Germany - 7,000 calls a year to domestic abuse line
  - women are beaten up, the "angry male"
  - women have no rights in India - an area called Goa ?

R: the Koji people talk about the star nations coming and we have a council, and sit around the fire and pass the smoke, the drums - and something happens and humanity comes together as one

T: Angelca Merkel's colleague and close ally made strong remarks "Islam does not belong to Germany" - he made waves with this statement - Christian Wolff several years ago stepped down in disgrace due to nepotism etc -

Reading: About Israel - Ahmadinejad has not said he would take Israel out - no plans to attack

R: Mike Papantonio, Greg Palast, Sam Seder, Krystal Ball, Ed Schultz - there WILL be accountability to BP - this goes to David Cameron and the cadre over there tied into trans-national corporations

current.com/...war-room/.../this-earth-day-it's-all-about-... - United States

1 day ago - This Earth Day, I want to pause and celebrate the progress we've made towards our vision of a prosperous ... Al Gore will join us for a special Earth Day edition of 'The War Room. .... The War Room with Jennifer Granholm ...

JG: [after listening to Bachmann and Romney] Climate deniers all, and factually challenged - and very dangerous - seem to be winning the messaging war

Guest: Al Gore - thinks tide is turning about climate denial - so many once in a thousand year

- events all around the world - people are beginning to see it
- Rep John Kasich has been an opponent of global warning; last week he said he changed his mind!

JG: none of the candidates seem to "get it"

AG: Obama has taken some steps - regs to capture methane that is leaking; gas efficient cars

- grass roots movement to stop
- solar energy costs went down 50% and solar installations increased by 50%

Guest: Robert Kennedy, Jr joins Jennifer Granholm in 'The War Room' to talk losing the messaging war on climate change, and the big influence and billions of dollars from companies like Exxon and Chevron and donors like the Koch brothers who keep progressive legislation that would protect the environment from moving forward. "The corporate cronies have a string of think tanks in Washington, D.C., they've filled them with these phony scientists, we call them biostitutes, who lie to the American public."

- Koch Bros pledged $30 M and $50 M to get rid of B Obama; Karl Rove also
- Oil industry is richest industry in history of mankind
- some of the candidates are thoughtful, smart men - like Jon Huntsman who had to change his point of view - won't win if they say global warming exists
- Need a functioning democracy to defeat these industries

JG: the politicians are being purchased by those with a narrow focus

AG: we are going to win this; we should be of good cheer

- our democracy has been hacked - corporations have bought the positions of the candidates
- the other side's position is based on a lie: this IS man-made and we have to do something!

RK: what can people do to get on board with an energy project: get involved in the political process

- rescue the democracy - the facts are in and we need a rational response
- a broader issue: things to deal with global warming are what we need to do any way to restore
  - (a) the troubling things in the country - keep money at home instead of buying oil and invest in American communities
  - (b) the biggest threat to America - coal mines! He speaks of effects on health & the cost

JG: between 2009 and 2011, coverage of environmental issues dropped by 80% [in media]

RK: his answer to those on right who continue to bring up stuff like Solendra

- someone from CA who wrote a book has inventoried the number and amount of subsidies
- $1.3 Trillion dollars as subsidies
  - 1/2 T to nuke industry
  - 1/2 T to ? Cut out these subsidies and use to support alternatives
- Chinese will increase wind, solar deployment by 2000% !
- Solendra failed because the Chinese subsidized their solar industry more than the US did

AG: even without subsidies, costs are going down

- can do without the subsidies
- Re: news media - Discovery is putting on TV all kinds of interesting stuff and people are aware that the Right wing bullies are bullying

"We need a world-wide standard and a world-wide plan of action" to address climate change, says Jeffrey Sachs, director of The Earth Institute at Columbia University, in conversation with former Vice President Al Gore and Jennifer Granholm. The barrier to standards has been money and influence in countries like the U.S., which the world expects to act first. "There are four anti-climate change lobbyists on Capitol Hill for every member of the House and Senate," Gore says. But there is a silver lining: "I think we are going to solve this but we have got to have more action by the Congress," Gore says.

- climate change is de-stabilizing the whole planet
- best message for the policy makers?
- J Sachs: the people have heard the problem, but have not heard any solutions
  - can still drive, just have to use Chevy volt
- if a realistic strategy and schedule were laid out - the American people are ahead of the politicians on this topic: if people see what is required & that it is possible, they will come along 6th-century depiction of the zodiac, mosaic in Beit Alpha, Israel.

Mazzaroth (Mazarot מַזְרֹת, LXX μαζουρωθ) is a hapax legomenon of the Hebrew Bible, found in Job 38:31-32. The similar word mazalot (מַזְלוֹת) in 2 Kings 23:3-5 may be related.

The word's precise meaning is uncertain<sup>[1]</sup> but its context is that of astronomical constellations, and it is often interpreted as a term for the zodiac, or the zodiacal constellations as a group.<sup>[2]</sup>

In Yiddish, the term mazalot came to be used in the sense of "astrology" in general, surviving in the expression "mazel tov," meaning "good luck."<sup>[3]</sup>

2012, April 19 Al Gore: Reflections on Earth Day

In 1994, I was asked by Rachel Carson's publisher to write the introduction for the 30th anniversary edition of Silent Spring. It was, of course, privilege and honor. Here is part of what I wrote:

Writing about Silent Spring is a humbling experience for an elected official, because Rachel Carson's landmark book offers undeniable proof that the power of an idea can be far greater than the power of politicians. In 1962, when Silent Spring was first published, "environment" was not even an entry in the vocabulary of public policy. In a few cities especially Los Angeles, smog had become a cause of concern, albeit more because of its appearance than because of its threat to public health. Conservation—the precursor of environmentalism — had been mentioned during the 1960 Democratic and Republican conventions, but only in passing and almost entirely in the context of national parks and natural resources. And except for a few scattered entries in largely inaccessible scientific journals, there was virtually no public dialogue about the growing, invisibly dangers of DDT and other pesticides and chemicals. Silent Spring came as a cry in the wilderness, a deeply felt, thoroughly researched, and brilliantly written argument that changed the course of history. Without this book, the environmental movement might have been long delayed or never have developed at all.

On this Earth Day, which comes nearly fifty years since the first printing of Silent Spring, Carson's work continues to stand as a testament to the power of conscience, insight and our collective ability to make the world a better place. Carson's conclusions inspired a generation to realize that human beings do not live in isolation, but as part of something much bigger. As she so eloquently stated in her masterwork, "in nature nothing exists alone."

Nothing demonstrates the complexity of the natural world—and our ability to disturb it—like the climate crisis. Every day, we pump 90 million tons of global warming pollution into the atmosphere as if it were an open sewer. Already, we are experiencing many of the impacts scientists predicted decades ago—higher temperatures, more extreme weather, the emergence and re-emergence of infectious diseases, and rising sea levels. Scientists have warned us of the disturbing future we are creating for ourselves and our children and grandchildren. At stake is the survival of our civilization as we know it and the type of world we are going to leave as a legacy for those who follow us.

It is at times like these that people must come together, mobilize, and demand the change we need. This is a moral moment, a fork in the road. It is not ultimately about any scientific discussion or political dialogue but about who we are as human beings. It is about our capacity to transcend our own limitations and rise to this occasion. We have done so before. I have seen young people and their parents come together to create great change. In the 1960's, the Civil Rights movement, led by young people but joined by people of all ages and backgrounds, helped to overturn the legal oppression of African Americans and helped create a more just society.

And, it was young people and social activists who helped to end apartheid in South Africa by supporting the divestment movement in the United States and around the world, which ultimately pressured the government to end legalized racism.

So on this Earth Day, I urge you to reflect on Silent Spring and to open your heart to Rachel Carson's message. Allow it to inspire you to act. Feel the preciousness of our connection to our children and the solemnity of our obligation to safeguard their future and to protect the Earth we are bequeathing to them.

New Moon in Taurus

Saturday, April 21, 12:18 am PDT, 3:18 am EDT

The New Moon in earthy Taurus starts a slow-cooking fire, creating opportunities to increase income and discover fresh sources of pleasure. Investing in a solid foundation of training, tools and developing personal resources with patience establishes a base from which future success will grow. Taurus likes a steady pace so don't be in a hurry to get where you want to go. Sticking to a practical plan is a surer way to achieve your goals than trying to beat the clock. Long-range strategic thinking will pay dividends while get rich quick schemes are likely to fail. Skillful Mars in Virgo and potent Pluto in Capricorn form favorable aspects to this Sun-Moon conjunction, producing a Grand Earth Trine that favors pragmatism and productivity. Yet a lovely slice of imagination is blended into this cosmic dish with a supportive sextile from dreamy Neptune to the New Moon. This spiritual planet softens Taurean stubbornness with compassion and faith, bringing a higher purpose to even the most mundane tasks.

Full Moon in Scorpio

Saturday, May 5, 8:36 pm PDT, 11:36 pm EDT

The hungry Scorpio Moon opposing the contented Taurus Sun challenges us to be clearer about our values. It's time to let go of objects, people and situations that don't satisfy our emotional needs. Financial crises are one way in which this tension may be expressed yet relationships may also teeter on the edge between acceptance of the status quo and a desire for deeper connections. Powerful feelings may boil over in frustration if we're ignoring unmet needs, leading to provocations meant to extract more from current allies or, in some cases, to push them away. This Full Moon reveals habits that need to be broken. Going to emotional extremes could produce negative behavior, but might be the critical step we need to take before we finally eliminate undesirable patterns.

Mercury in Taurus

Tuesday, May 8, 10:15 pm PDT, Wednesday, May 9, 1:15 am EDT

The speedy messenger's presence in this fixed sign slows down thinking and concentrates minds. We can focus on the basics now, helping to put ideas on a more realistic foundation. Mercury in Taurus isn't the most creative position for this intellectual planet because it's rooted in facts and eschews fantasy. It may also take additional time to digest new concepts that require thorough chewing before we're ready to swallow. Trust, though, can be built with down-to-earth conversations that are grounded in simplicity and expressed with clarity. Changing others' minds is challenging, particularly if people feel pressured to do so. Encountering resistance to new ideas from individuals or in our own minds is best overcome by subtly working around conflict rather than trying to force issues. A calm voice and easygoing approach connects more effectively than heated conversations.

Venus Retrograde

Tuesday, May 18

The love planet's reversal period in jittery Gemini lasts until June 27, turning back the clock on relationships as we revisit old romantic dreams. Reconnecting with people from the past can be a constructive use of this time because it may be more difficult to make new connections. People might be unreliable and easily distracted as promises are ignored and expectations changed without notice. Old sources of pleasure might resurface in fresh forms, reigniting earlier recreational and artistic interests. It's helpful to avoid pinning ourselves down because this value-based planet twists tastes in a variety of directions. What and whom we like can shift with the wind, reminding us to avoid making major financial or emotional investments. Yet for those who've gone off track in their desires, Venus' retrograde period is ideal for making course corrections.

Sun in Gemini

Sunday, May 20, 8:16 am PDT, 11:16 am EDT

Flexibility, curiosity and communication are favored with the Sun in this mutable Air sign. We grow more aware of our contrasting needs and inconsistent behavior. Rather than trying to rigidly fit ourselves into a single box of reality, this is a time to spread our wings and explore the diverse directions of our personalities. It's a chance to taste little morsels of experience without committing to anything more than a brief try. Variety is the spice of life, especially with the Sun in free-spirited Gemini where meaning shifts with each moment and the range of personal expression grows. Observing ourselves and others without being judgmental frees us from the rigid restraints of absolute right and wrong. Sure, we may be tempted to take short-cuts, which isn't ideal for achieving long-term goals. However, opening our hearts and minds awakens us to new and different ways to experience life.

The Taurus New Moon is like a fertile garden where healthy seeds can take root and grow. Nurturing the soil of ourselves with constructive thoughts and healthy behavior may seem boring to some, yet the results are worth the effort. The ground upon which a positive future is built requires appreciation for oneself, so acknowledging our abilities and accomplishments is essential for feeding our ambitions. Taking time to enjoy life's simple and sensual pleasures provides joy that makes the journey worthwhile.

Have a great month!

2012, Ap 20 Astro Update - Venus and the Eclipses April 20, 2012

A remarkable journey begins with this weekend's new moon in Taurus.

The Great Attraction

Feel yourself being quietly drawn by the deeper pull

of what you truly love

- Rumi

Are you restless or anxious, aware that something big is about to happen but unsure what it is? You're not alone. Uncertainty seems to be the new normal.

I've been studying the astrology of 2012 for a long time now, and I understand one thing. Much will be revealed over the course of the next 10 weeks.

The passages of May and June are a feast for the senses:

Beltane (Samhain in the southern hemisphere) cross-quarter gateway – May 1-5

Beltane/Wesak full moon – May 5

Annular solar eclipse – May 20

Partial lunar eclipse – June 4 (mutable grand cross, conjunct the Great Attractor)

Transit of Venus – June 5/6

Venus' heliacal rise from the underworld – June 12/13

Jupiter, Venus, the Moon and the great star Aldebaran in the pre-dawn sky – mid-June

Cancer Solstice – June 20/21

Uranus square Pluto – June 23/24 (first of seven exact squares through 2015)

The visual transits will be spell-binding, especially the annular solar eclipse and the historic Transit of Venus. On May 20, the sun will set in eclipse over parts of the western United States (and we won't need special glasses to watch!). The Venus transit is like an eclipse with the shadowy figure of our sister planet crossing the face of the Sun. This transit will be visible in many parts of the world. It won't happen again until 2117.

Away We Go

The magic begins this Saturday as the Sun and Moon meet in Taurus. The new moon initiates a 28-day lunar cycle that culminates in the May 20 eclipse.

- The solar and lunar cycles dovetail in early May as the Beltane cross-quarter gateway leads into the Scorpio/Taurus full moon, which is the festival of the Buddha (Wesak) in esoteric traditions. Beltane – the mid-point between the March Equinox and the Solstice in June – is the ancient celebration of rebirth and renewal, planting, fertility and community.

In Hinduism and Buddhism, the holy day of Wesak celebrates the birth, death and enlightenment of the Buddha. This Scorpio/Taurus full moon is considered the most spiritual lunation of the year. And, this year, the full moons of April, May and June are all extra-potent supermoons.

People keep asking where and when they can view the astro alignments. That depends. I've put together some resources to help plan viewing and ceremonial observance of these extraordinary events (links below). Some will travel to be sure they can watch. You can even download a Venus transit app for your phone!

The Eclipses

Eclipses are special alignments of Sun, Earth and Moon that happen in pairs or triads every six months. For eons, people have gazed toward the heavens to observe eclipses from public squares and sacred sites, or quietly at home and in nature. These celestial events are sometimes accompanied by fear and anxiety as well as excitement because eclipses signal changes on the horizon. Our ancestral memory is activated when the sky darkens during the day (or night, in a lunar eclipse) as a shadow creeps slowly over the face of the Sun (or Moon). The Transit of Venus is like an eclipse, although Venus is much smaller than the Moon and appears as a small, dark circle crossing the face of the Sun.

The shadow crossings are long, slow passages, as the planets move into and out of exact alignment. The May 20 annular solar eclipse has a wide path and long durations, with the entire event taking nearly six hours. On June 4, the Earth's shadow will cross the face of the Moon over a period of more than five hours. The next day, the Transit of Venus will take more than six hours. Check the links below for areas of visibility and timing.

Whether you can see the alignments or not, you won't miss the energetic impact of any of these events. The frequencies have been building all year like waves in the distance. Wave after wave will reach the shore throughout May, June and beyond.

This sequence signals:

- Initiation
- Activation
- Transformation
- Opportunity for accelerated change (as in sudden, complete turnaround)
- Illumination and integration of the shadow – the parts of ourselves we've sublimated. Eclipses (Venus included) are about the interplay of shadow and light.
- Revelation of great mysteries, at the personal and societal levels

These are times to be in ceremony, prayer, meditation and celebration, welcoming and creating the new paradigm. The old is giving way, and the new is yet to be born.

Sudden Bursts

Eclipses break up energy patterns and help us get unstuck. They happen in six-month and 19-year cycles and signal major endings and beginnings. Areas that are often affected include jobs, relationships, housing, finances and location. The current cycle began in 1993, so issues that were up then are likely to resurface.

- The eclipses will affect electro-magnetics associated with seismic shifts, especially with Uranus and Pluto coming to exact square in June. Increased seismic and volcanic activity is likely during this period (Popocatepetl volcano in Mexico is set to erupt as I write), as well as another dangerous wildfire season and continued flooding.

Add to all this a mutable grand cross (Sun/Venus-Moon-Mars-Chiron) conjunct the mysterious deep-space anomaly known as the Great Attractor, and changes will be even more unpredictable and intense. A region in space that lies beyond the plane of the Milky Way Galaxy (and hidden by it), the Great Attractor inexplicably draws in matter like entire galaxies at an alarming rate, yet scientists say it's not a black hole. Its secrets are dark and alluring, and associated with ancient mysteries like the Great Pyramid and the Sphinx.

With this power-packed line-up, a series of sudden shifts are likely in our lives and our world. Where the eclipses fall in your natal chart indicate the areas of your life that will see the greatest changes. Although everyone feels the impact, people with significant placements in mutable and cardinal signs are most affected.

The Wobble

- Starting when the new lunar cycle begins this Saturday, we're in the wobble – a period of shifting electro-magnetics that can feel unsettling, exciting and frightening at the same time. This effect is most intense during the two weeks between eclipses, but this year it's likely to extend throughout June and into July because of the tense Uranus-Pluto square after the Solstice.

Ultimately, the current transition promises renewed vitality as the old crumbles away. It's important to be grounded and practice nurturing self-care during periods of extreme volatility. Practices that may help include meditation and yoga, drumming, journaling, purifying the body with heat and steam, eating root vegetables and dark, leafy greens, and (my favorite) disconnecting from electronics and media part of every day.

Throughout this period:

- Be vigilant about your thoughts and intent
- Stay positive and focused
- Open to new opportunities and adventures
- Allow changes to flow naturally
- Spend time in nature
- Be creative
- Connect with your core being, your essence
- Open to deeper and deeper love
- Hold loved ones, the Earth and all beings in prayer

This weekend, linger in the new moon twilight of becoming. Awaken the dream. Follow your heart.

There's a major shift under way, one the US mainstream media has left largely untouched even though it will send the United States into an economic maelstrom and dramatically reduce the country's importance in the world: the demise of the US dollar as the world's reserve currency.

For decades the US dollar has been absolutely dominant in international trade, especially in the oil markets. This role has created immense demand for US dollars, and that international demand constitutes a huge part of the dollar's valuation. Not only did the global-currency role add massive value to the dollar, it also created an almost endless pool of demand for US Treasuries as countries around the world sought to maintain stores of petrodollars. The availability of all this credit, denominated in a dollar supported by nothing less than the entirety of global trade, enabled the American federal government to borrow without limit and spend with abandon.

The dominance of the dollar gave the United States incredible power and influence around the world... but the times they are a-changing. As the world's emerging economies gain ever more prominence, the US is losing hold of its position as the world's superpower. Many on the long list of nations that dislike America are pondering ways to reduce American influence in their affairs. Ditching the dollar is a very good start.

In fact, they are doing more than pondering. Over the past few years China and other emerging powers such as Russia have been quietly making agreements to move away from the US dollar in international trade. Several major oil-producing nations have begun selling oil in currencies other than the dollar, and both the United Nations and the International Monetary Fund (IMF) have issued reports arguing for the need to create a new global reserve currency independent of the dollar.

The supremacy of the dollar is not nearly as solid as most Americans believe it to be. More generally, the United States is not the global superpower it once was. These trends are very much connected, as demonstrated by the world's response to US sanctions against Iran.

US allies, including much of Europe and parts of Asia, fell into line quickly, reducing imports of Iranian oil. But a good number of Iran's clients do not feel the need to toe America's party line, and Iran certainly doesn't feel any need to take orders from the US. Some countries have objected to America's sanctions on Iran vocally, adamantly refusing to be ordered around. Others are being more discreet, choosing instead to simply trade with Iran through avenues that get around the sanctions.

It's ironic. The United States fashioned its Iranian sanctions assuming that oil trades occur in US dollars. That assumption – an echo of the more general assumption that the US dollar will continue to dominate international trade – has given countries unfriendly to the US a great reason to continue their moves away from the dollar: if they don't trade in dollars, America's dollar-centric policies carry no weight! It's a classic backfire: sanctions intended in part to illustrate the US's continued world supremacy are in fact encouraging countries disillusioned with that very notion to continue their moves away from the US currency, a slow but steady trend that will eat away at its economic power until there is little left.

Let's delve into both situations – the demise of the dollar's dominance and the Iranian sanction shortcuts – in more detail.

(The continual erosion of the dollar could well be the tipping point that causes oil prices to skyrocket. But investors who get positioned before that happens could make life-changing gains.)

Signs the Dollar Is Going the Way of the Dodo

The biggest oil-trading partners in the world, China and Saudi Arabia, are still using the petrodollar in their transactions. How long this will persist is a very important question. China imported 1.4 million barrels of oil a day from Saudi Arabia in February, a 39% increase from a year earlier, and the two countries have teamed up to build a massive oil refinery in Saudi Arabia. As the nations continue to pursue increased bilateral trade, at some point they will decide that involving US dollars in every transaction is unnecessary and expensive, and they will ditch the dollar.

When that happens, the tide will have truly turned against the dollar, as it was an agreement between President Nixon and King Faisal of Saudi Arabia in 1973 that originally created the petrodollar system. Nixon asked Faisal to accept only US dollars as payment for oil and to invest any excess profits in US Treasury bonds, notes, and bills. In exchange, Nixon pledged to protect Saudi oilfields from the Soviet Union and other potential aggressors, such as Iran and Iraq.

That agreement created the foundation for an incredibly strong US dollar. All of the world's oil money started to flow through the US Federal Reserve, creating ever-growing demand for both US dollars and US debt. Every oil-importing nation in the world started converting its surplus funds into US dollars to be able to buy oil. Oil-exporting countries started spending their cash on Treasury securities. And slowly but surely the petrodollar system spread beyond oil to encompass almost every facet of global trade.

The value of the US dollar is based on this role as the conduit for global trade. If that role vanishes, much of the value in the dollar will evaporate. Massive inflation, high interest rates, and substantial increases in the cost of food, clothing, and gasoline will make the 2008 recession look like nothing more than a bump in the road. This will be a crater. The government will be unable to finance its debts. The house of cards, built on the assumption that the world would rely on US dollars forever, will come tumbling down.

It is a scary proposition, but don't bury your head in the sand because countries around the world are already starting to ditch the dollar.

Russia and China are leading the charge. More than a year ago, the two nations made good on talks to move away from the dollar and have been using rubles and renminbi to trade with each other since. A few months ago the second-largest economy on earth – China – and the third-largest economy on the planet – Japan – followed suit, striking a deal to promote the use of their own currencies when trading with each other. The deal will allow firms to convert Chinese and Japanese currencies into each other directly, instead of using US dollars as the intermediary as has been the requirement for years. China is now discussing a similar plan with South Korea.

Similarly, a new agreement among the BRICS nations (Brazil, Russia, India, China, and South Africa) promotes the use of their national currencies when trading, instead of using the US dollar. China is also pursuing bilateral trades with Malaysia using the renminbi and ringgit. And Russia and Iran have agreed to use rubles as a means of currency in their trades.

Then there's the entire continent of Africa. In 2009 China became Africa's largest trading partner, eclipsing the United States, and now China is working to expand the use of Chinese currency in Africa instead of US dollars. Standard Bank, Africa's largest financial institution, predicts that $100 billion worth of trade between China and Africa will be settled in renminbi by 2015. That's more than the total bilateral trade between China and Africa in 2010.

The idea of moving away from the dollar is also finding support from major international agencies. The United Nations Conference on Trade and Development has stated that "the current system of currencies and capital rules that binds the world economy is not working properly and was largely responsible for the financial and economic crises." The statement continued, saying "the dollar should be replaced with a global currency." The International Monetary Fund agrees, recently arguing that the dollar should cede its role as global reserve currency to an international currency, which is in effect a basket of national currencies.

There is also a host of countries that have started using their own currencies to complete oil trades, a move that strikes right at the heart of US-dollar dominance. China and the United Arab Emirates have agreed to ditch the dollar and use their own currencies in oil transactions. The Chinese National Bank says this agreement is worth roughly $5.5 billion annually. India is buying oil from Iran with gold and rupees. China and Iran are working on a barter system to exchange Iranian oil for Chinese imported products.

Speaking of Bartering for Oil... How about Those Iranian Sanctions?

The United States and the European Union based their Iran sanctions on the financial system behind Iran's oil trade. The country uses its central bank to run its oil business – the bank settles trades through the Belgium company Swift (Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication) and the trades are always in US dollars. Once they take full effect in July, US and EU sanctions against Iran will make transactions with the Iranian central bank illegal. When that occurs, this official avenue of trade will shut down. In fact, Iran was shut out of Swift a few weeks ago, so that road is already blockaded.

But the arrogance in the sanctions is the assumption that Iran can only use this one, dollar-based avenue. In reality, the Islamic Republic is considerably more agile than that; removing its ability to trade in the official manner is only encouraging the country to find imaginative new methods to sell its oil.

Since the sanctions were announced, Tehran's official oil sales have certainly declined. Iran actually preemptively halted oil shipments to Germany, Spain, Greece, Britain, and France, which together had bought some 18% of Iran's oil. But covert sales have curbed or perhaps even reversed the reduction in shipments. It is impossible to know the details, as buyers and sellers involved in skirting the sanctions are being very discreet, but the transactions are undoubtedly happening.

As mentioned above, Iran is selling oil to India for gold and rupees. China and Iran are working on a barter system to exchange Iranian oil for Chinese imported products. China and South Korea are also quietly buying Iranian oil with their own currencies.

The evidence? Millions of barrels of Iranian oil that were in storage in Iranian tankers a few weeks ago now seem to have disappeared. Officially, no one knows where the oil went. Was it rerouted? Has production been shut in? Is the oil being stored elsewhere?

Oil is fungible, which means one barrel of crude is interchangeable with another. Once it leaves its home country, it can be nearly impossible to know where a barrel of oil originated, if its handlers so desire. And it's not just barrels that are hard to track – even though oil is carried on ships so large they are dubbed "supertankers" it is surprisingly difficult to keep tabs on every tanker full of Iranian oil.

And the Iranians are using every trick in the book to move their oil undetected. In the last week it became apparent that Tehran has ordered the captains of its oil tankers to switch off the black-box transponders used in the shipping industry to monitor vessel movements and oil transactions. As such, most of Iran's 39-strong fleet of tankers is "off radar." According to Reuters, only seven of Iran's Very Large Crude Carriers (VLCCs) are still operating their onboard transponders, while only two of the country's nine smaller Suezmax tankers are trackable.

Under international law ships are required to have a satellite tracking device on board when travelling at sea, but a ship's master has the discretion to turn the device off on safety grounds, if he has permission from the ship's home state. Some tankers turned off their trackers to avoid detection last year during the Libyan civil war in order to trade with the Gaddafi government.

And Iran is about to gain even greater flexibility in disguising the locations of oil sales, as the National Iranian Tanker Company (NITC) is about to take delivery of the first of 12 new supertankers on order from China. The new tankers will add much-needed capacity to NITC's fleet at a time when the number of maritime firms willing to transport Iranian crude has dwindled significantly, forcing Iran's remaining buyers to rely on NITC tankers. Thankfully for NITC, the 12 new VLCCs – each capable of transporting two million barrels of crude – will significantly expand the company's current fleet of 39 ships.

Sanctions or no sanctions, Iran is moving its oil. But even having your own, off-radar ships to transport oil bought in renminbi or rupees or won doesn't mean all these tricks and maneuvers don't have a cost.

Freight costs for each voyage add up to nearly $5 million, a sizeable hit for Tehran. Iran is often also shelling out millions of dollars in insurance for each oil shipment, because the majority of international shipments are insured through a European insurance consortium that is backing away from Iranian vessels because the EU sanctions will make such transactions illegal.

And since business is business, buyers are also demanding much better credit terms from the National Iranian Oil Company (NIOC) than normal. Traders are reporting agreements giving the buyer as much as six months to pay for each two-million-barrel cargo, a grace period that would cost Tehran as much as $10 million per shipment.

For Tehran to cover freight costs, insurance, and the cost of generous credit terms wipes out as much as 10 percent of the value of each supertanker load. Beyond that, customers are also negotiating better prices. For example, the flow of Iranian oil to China did slow in the first quarter of the year, but not because China endorsed the sanctions. Rather, Chinese refiner Sinopec reduced purchases to negotiate better prices with the National Iranian Oil Company. The country's imports from Iran are expected to climb back to the 560,000 barrel-per-day level in April.

That trade, along with non-dollar-denominated deals with India, Turkey, Syria, and a long list of other friendly nations, will keep Iran's finances afloat for a long time. The sanctions may be preventing Tehran from banking full value for each tanker of oil, but there is still a lot of Iranian oil money flowing.

The mainstream media is avoiding all discussion of the demise of the US dollar as the world's reserve currency. Even fewer people are talking about how sanctions based on Iran's supposed need to use the US dollar to sell its oil leave loopholes wide enough for VLCCs to sail right through.

Without acknowledging the elephant in the room, articles about Iranian tankers turning off their transponders or India using gold to buy Iranian oil invariably sound like plot developments in a spy thriller. Much more useful would be to convey the real message: The world doesn't need to revolve around US dollars anymore and the longer the US tries to pretend that the dollar is still and will remain dominant, the more often its international actions will backfire.

HERE ARE FACTS MOST DON'T KNOW, BUT SHOULD

1. The IRS is not a US government agency. It is an agency of the IMF (International Monetary Fund) (Diversified Metal Products v I.R.S et al. CV-93-405E-EJE U.S.D.C.D.I., Public Law 94-564, Senate report 94-1148 pg. 5967, Reorganization Plan No. 26, Public Law 102-391)
2. The IMF (International Monetary Fund) is an agency of the U.N. (Black's Law Dictionary 6th Ed. page 816)
3. The United States has NOT had a Treasury since 1921 (41 Stat. Ch 214 page 654)
4. The U.S. Treasury is now the IMF (International Monetary Fund) (Presidential Documents Volume 24-No. 4 page 113, 22 U.S.C. 285-2887)
5. The United States does not have any employees because there is no longer a United States! No more reorganizations. After over 200 years of bankruptcy it is finally over. (Executive Order 12803)
6. The FCC, CIA, FBI, NASA and all of the other alphabet gangs were never part of the U.S. government, even though the "U.S. Government" held stock in the agencies. (U.S. v Strang, 254 US491 Lewis v. US, 680 F.2nd, 1239)
7. Social Security Numbers are issued by the U.N. through the IMF (International Monetary Fund). The application for a Social Security Number is the SS5 Form. The Department of the Treasury (IMF) issues the SS5 forms and not the Social Security Administration. The new SS5 forms do not state who publishes them while the old form states they are "Department of the Treasury". (20 CFR (Council on Foreign Relations) Chap. 111 Subpart B. 422.103 (b))
8. There are NO Judicial courts in America and have not been since 1789. Judges do not enforce Statutes and Codes. Executive Administrators enforce Statutes and Codes. (FRC v. GE 281 US 464 Keller v. PE 261 US 428, 1 Stat 138-178)
9. There have NOT been any judges in America since 1789. There have just been administrators. (FRC v. GE 281 US 464 Keller v. PE 261 US 428 1 Stat. 138-178)
10. According to GATT (The General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) you MUST have a Social Security number. (House Report (103-826)
11. New York City is defined in Federal Regulations as the United Nations. Rudolph Guiliani stated on C-Span that "New York City is the capital of the World." For once, he told the truth. (20 CFR (Council on Foreign Relations) Chap. 111, subpart B 44.103 (b) (2) (2) )
12. Social Security is not insurance or a contract, nor is there a Trust Fund. (Helvering v. Davis 301 US 619 Steward Co. v. Davis 301 US 548)
13. Your Social Security check comes directly from the IMF (International Monetary Fund), which is an agency of the United Nations. (It says "U.S. Department of Treasury" at the top left corner, which again is part of the U.N. as pointed out above)
14. You own NO property. Slaves can't own property. Read carefully the Deed to the property you think is yours. You are listed as a TENANT. (Senate Document 43, 73rd Congress 1st Session)

15. The most powerful court in America is NOT the United States Supreme court, but the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. (42 PA. C.S.A. 502)
16. The King of England financially backed both sides of the American Revolutionary War. (Treaty of Versailles-July 16, 1782 Treaty of Peace 8 Stat 80)
17. You CANNOT use the U.S. Constitution to defend yourself because you are NOT a party to it! The U.S. Constitution applies to the CORPORATION OF THE UNITED STATES, a privately owned and operated corporation (headquartered out of Washington, DC) much like IBM (International Business Machines, Microsoft, et al) and NOT to the people of the sovereign Republic of the United States of America. (Padelford Fay & Co. v The Mayor and Alderman of the City of Savannah 14 Georgia 438, 520)
18. America is a British Colony. The United States is a corporation, not a land mass and it existed before the Revolutionary War and the British Troops did not leave until 1796 (Republica v. Sweers 1 Dallas 43, Treaty of Commerce 8 Stat 116, Treaty of Peace 8 Stat 80, IRS Publication 6209, Articles of Association October 20, 1774)

20. Britain is owned by the Vatican. (Treaty of 1213)
21. The Pope can abolish any law in the United States (Elements of Ecclesiastical Law Vol. 1, 53-54)
22. A 1040 Form is for tribute paid to Britain (IRS Publication 6209)
23. The Pope claims to own the entire planet through the laws of conquest and discovery. (Papal Bulls of 1495 & 1493)
24. The Pope has ordered the genocide and enslavement of millions of people.(Papal Bulls of 1455 & 1493)
25. The Pope's laws are obligatory on everyone. (Bened. XIV., De Syn. Dioec, lib, ix, c. vii, n. 4. Prati, 1844 Syllabus Prop 28, 29, 44)
26. We are slaves and own absolutely nothing, NOT even what we think are our children. (Tillman vs. Roberts 108 So. 62, Van Koten vs. Van Koten 154 N.E. 146, Senate Document 438 73rd Congress 1st Session, Wynehammer v. People 13 N.Y. REP 378, 481)
27. Military dictator George Washington divided up the States (Estates) in to Districts (Messages and papers of the Presidents Volume 1 page 99 1828 Dictionary of Estate)
28. "The People" does NOT include you and me. (Barron vs. Mayor and City Council of Baltimore 32 U.S. 243)
29. It is NOT the duty of the police to protect you. Their job is to protect THE CORPORATION and arrest code breakers. (SAPP vs. Tallahassee, 348 So. 2nd. 363, REiff vs. City of Phila. 477 F. 1262, Lynch vs. NC Dept. of Justice 376 S.E. 2nd. 247)
30. Every thing in the "United States" is up for sale: bridges, roads, water, schools, hospitals, prisons, airports, etc, etc... Did anybody take time to check who bought Klamath Lake?? (Executive Order 12803)
31. "We are human capital" (Executive Order 13037) The world cabal makes money off of the use of your signatures on mortgages, car loans, credit cards, your social security number, etc.

32. The U.N. - United Nations - has financed the operations of the United States government (the corporation of THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA) for over 50 years (U.S. Department of Treasury is part of the U.N. see above) and now owns every man, woman and child in America.

The U.N. also holds all of the land of America in Fee Simple.

The good news is we don't have to fulfill "our" fictitious obligations. You can discharge a fictitious obligation with another's fictitious obligation.

These documents are not secret. They are a matter of public record.

Simple words such as "person" "citizen" "people" "or" "nation" "crime" "charge" "right" "statute" "preferred" "prefer" "constitutor" "creditor" "debtor" "debit" "discharge" "payment" "law" and "United States" doesn't mean what we think it does because we were never taught the legal definitions of the above words.

The illusion is much larger than what is cited

2012, Ap 14 China gives currency more freedom with new reform

▀ By Koh Gui Qing | Reuters – 45 mins ago

<http://news.yahoo.com/china-gives-currency-more-freedom-reform-040129985.html>

BEIJING (Reuters) - China took a milestone step in turning the yuan into a global currency on Saturday by doubling the size of its trading band against the dollar, pushing through a crucial reform that further liberalizes its nascent financial markets.

The People's Bank of China said it would allow the yuan to rise or fall 1 percent from a mid-point every day, effective Monday, compared with its previous 0.5 percent limit.

The timing of the move underlines Beijing's belief that the yuan is near its equilibrium level, and that China's economy, although cooling, is sturdy enough to handle important, long-promised, structural reforms, analysts said.

The move would help China deflect criticism of its controversial currency policy ahead of the annual spring meeting of the International Monetary Fund in Washington next week.

A slowing world economy that has pared investor expectations of a steadily rising yuan likely also gave Beijing the confidence to proceed, knowing that a larger band would not necessarily lead to a stronger currency.

"The central bank chose a good time window to enlarge the trading band. The market's expectation for a stronger yuan is weakening," said Dong Xian'an, chief economist at Peking First Advisory in Beijing.

"The move partially clears away doubts on whether China can manage a soft landing in its economy, and makes clear China's reform road map."

Investors have widely expected China to widen the yuan's trading band this year, thanks to repeated hints from Beijing that the change would take China one step closer to its financial goal: a basically convertible yuan by 2015.

Having a currency that trades with fewer restrictions also enhances Shanghai's status as a financial center. China envisions turning the city into a global banking hub by 2020.

"From April 16, 2012, the trading band for the yuan against the dollar in the spot interbank currency market will be widened from 0.5 percent to 1 percent," the People's Bank of China said in a short statement on its website.

"At present, the development of China's foreign exchange market is maturing, the market's ability to independently price and manage risks is growing by the day," the bank said.

Ultimately, the government wants the yuan to rival the dollar as a global reserve currency, and to this end it has gradually allowed the currency to trade more freely.

After a pilot programe last year was judged successful, in March this year it gave permission for firms across China to pay for imports and exports in yuan, a way of helping to increase the use of the yuan in trade deals.

NO SHARP GAINS

The yuan, also known as the renminbi or "people's money", hit a record high of 6.2884 against the dollar on Feb 10, but is little changed against the U.S. currency for the year, softening 0.14 percent since January.

Analysts say its listless showing is likely to persist through 2012, as expectations of future gains are dulled by China's easing economic growth, and speculation that the yuan is near equilibrium.

As China this year heads into its biggest leadership changeover in a decade, it would be in Beijing's interests to avoid dramatic fluctuations in the yuan that could hurt exporters, many of whom are battling rising costs and tepid demand as it is.

"The yuan is close to an equilibrium. We expect it could only gain 1.4 percent against the dollar this year, so the time is right to widen the band," said Lan Shen, an economist at Standard Chartered Bank in Shanghai.

So muted is the yuan's outlook that investors in the offshore non-deliverable forwards (NDF) market believe there is even room for the currency to fall. The benchmark one-year NDF is pricing for a 0.4 percent depreciation.

Any decline would be a stark contrast to the yuan's steadfast rise in recent years. It jumped about 5 percent in 2011 on top of nearly 4 percent in 2010, giving investors the impression that China was comfortable with a rising currency.

It has gained about 30 percent in nominal terms against the dollar since the landmark move in the summer of 2005 to de-peg the yuan from the greenback.

A WELCOME MOVE

The yuan's value has always been a point of contention between China and its trading partners, notably the United States, which say China suppresses the currency to boost exports. China repeatedly rejects the accusation.

Instead, Chinese leaders say the yuan is near its equilibrium level and that authorities aim to keep its value "basically stable", more flexibility notwithstanding.

Beijing's desire to have the yuan trade more freely was stressed by both Premier Wen Jiabao and Central Bank Governor Zhou Xiaochuan in March when they said conditions were ripe for changes.

Their calls came even as China is set to confront its slowest economic growth in a decade this year, leading many to believe Beijing is ready to foresake heady growth for a restructured economy driven more by domestic than export demand.

Although not a primary intention, a more flexible yuan also works in China's favor in turbulent times by giving it more room to guide the currency lower to aid exports.

"The message of this move is that the renminbi appreciation story is over. Greater two way volatility will be the name of the game going forward," said Qu Hongbin, an economist at HSBC.

Data on Friday showed China's economy suffered its weakest growth since the global financial crisis in the first quarter by expanding just 8.1 percent, below forecasts for 8.3 percent.

The last time China changed its currency policy was in June 2010, after a two-year period when it effectively re-pegged the yuan to the dollar to shield China from the 2008-09 global financial crisis.

"I think the step should be welcomed by foreign countries, especially the United States, who has called for reforms," said Dongming Xie, China economist at OCBC Bank in Singapore. "This is also related to growing domestic calls for economic reforms."
