10 Notes to the Constitution

1	Committee members are only empowered to act on behalf of the Association to further its aims and objectives, and to represent the views of the Association as decided by its membership.
2	Committee members must act with good faith in the best interests of the total membership of the Association. In particular, subject to section 6.1, Committee members are expected to represent in a balanced way the views expressed by those eligible to vote on an issue. In the spirit of community cohesiveness, Committee members are also expected to give due notice to the views of those other members who are ineligible to vote on an issue, where this is appropriate.
3	Committee members may from time to time, act on behalf of a sub-group of members either when assigned to a sub-Committee, or at the request of individual members. In these cases where the Committee member feels that this introduces a conflict of interest then this should be raised with the Chair or the Committee as a whole. When representing a sub-group, the Committee member must make explicit in all relevant communications that this is the case.
4	Committee members will hold their own personal views on issues of relevance to the Association. Committee members are expected to express their views within Association and Committee discussions, and bring their experience and understanding to help further the Association's aims and objectives, but should not give undue weight to their own personal views, when representing on behalf of the Association.
5	The Committee, or individual officers, may be required to make decisions for, or act on behalf of, the Association without first vetting these with the wider membership (for example where external factors demand a response at short notice). Prior to undertaking such actions, the Committee should attempt to agree these collectively, or with the Chair when a collective Committee decision is not practical. Where decisions or actions have been taken without prior approval from the membership, then these should be validated with the membership as soon as possible, and usually at the next General Meeting.
6	As residents, Committee members will also have to act in their own personal capacity for their own private dealings with the City Of London. For the avoidance of doubt Committee members are expected to make clear in all communications with the City Of London that state matters of opinion (as opposed to matters of fact), whether they are acting on a personal basis, or in their capacity as a Committee member.
