To listen to the podcast:

<https://bbsradio.com/podcast/stargate-round-table-march-23-2017>

MR: feeling there is a lot of energetic stuff to the south of her? Anything going on that she is aware of?

RB: there has been a forest fire a bit

- Just down the road was her neighbour whose partner was killed today – the partner was an artist and he was in Washington doing an art project which was about getting the lead out of the pipes – has been working on this project since Katrina

- MR:
- Omena in circle: had surgery on knee; back home, resting, doing well
 - Carolyn Oceana Ryan: still travelling
 - Cmdr Randy: intensity of the heat from the solar flares will hit us in a couple of days: will hit everyone's emotional body; could not feel as stable as usual;
 - 8:30 am where he is; 9:30 EST in US – they don't have DST there.

HARD NEWS

- Put Poppy Lady in Circle of Support: a US soldier almost killed her today in Afghanistan

R: all kinds of twists and turns of stories to do with 13 families

- they are invaders and occupiers of this planet, and it is coming to the light of day - they cannot keep up to how fast all their stuff is coming out!
- Rachel is exposing how deep the story goes – as Katrina described Trump: a home-grown white racist funded by the Russian Mob [NOT Putin] and the Mercers which ties in with Steve Bannon and the apocalyptic pictures he wants to play out with Alex Jones
- a story called the last chapters of Revelations – Mother said this was cancelled – they can try; they are stirring the pot to create instability in Middle East so there is an incident to tick off the Islamic world and try to destroy the Al Asqua Mosque/Dome of the Rock – won't get to do it, but love to play with these things and upset the region
- Earlier this week, R talked to Sean Stone, son of Oliver Stone who's been around since 60s as a major producer / director of films; made a film The Untold History of the US and he said in it that the US had no need to bomb Hiroshima and Nagasaki as Japan was already defeated and was looking for a way to get out gracefully
 - R has a video of one of the grandfathers from 1978 and 1987 when they went to the UN and showed 2 films at the UN;
 - In the the video the grandfather talks of the Hopi prophecies and shows the Hopi rock drawings and the prophecies and that we are in the Age of the 6th Sun and we end the story of Armagedden in a good way
 - Sean Stone is on Watching the Hawks on RT tv: known for his journalism in California
 - appears on Jimmy Churches' radio shows having to do with UFOs
- in the 2 minutes they talked, SS said what is going on in Antarctica is real & serious stories
 - they have to do with Atlantis, cryogenic technology and other advanced technology that is being revealed now plus the questions raised: all the so-called G20 countries have a stake in Antarctica and things are showing up that, as the truth comes out, all the countries will have to drop their mutual animosity and their borders: the technology that will be revealed will transform earth totally!
 - the Nazis & others have been hiding this technology since before WW 2 when Himmler and others in the Thule Society tried to bring in Enki, Enlil and other dark ones through the dark rituals they carried out in the castle in Bavaria
 - what Sean told him: if he were to talk the way T & R talk on his program, Watching the Hawks, he wouldn't last long on the show! He is breaking the ice on the internet
- All is being brought out:
 - stories on extreme right wing websites: Tray Gowdy has ordered a federal judge to exhume the body of Vince Foster; new evidence on his death in 1993 when it was ruled a suicide
 - the murdered reporter for the examiner was shot dead outside his home; he left letter "if anything happens to me" letter which implicated Hillary Clinton
 - body not autopsied before original burial – it was done March 22nd at the naval hospital and the verdict went from suicide to homicide!
 - Clinton empire collapses after this shocking news scandal

- Reporters were told that Foster had 2 gunshot wounds; both were fatal – and they were in the back of his head! Original story was impossible.
 - The doctor who worked on the case died in a car crash a few months later; the 2 policemen who worked on the case have both left the country; without the letter from the reporter, Mr Foster may not have seen justice
 - Director Comey has assured the congressional panel that all the bureau's resources are made available - in other words, Hillary will get away with murder – again!
- The Mercers – a shadowy family of the 13, connected to the Sinclairs of Scotland – they helped Steve Bannon with his Breitbart news; SB dabbled in film making, the Mercers put out a film called Clinton Cash it's the story of how the Mercers and Steve Bannon are claiming the Clintons are murderers – which is true yet Main Stream News will not pick it up
- Rama told Frangela/ Frances and Angela who were sitting in for Stephanie Miller: told him he'd better have good, solid evidence before he brought that piece on the air!!!
- KOS told R and the Poppy Lady: Steve Bannon, the Mercers and the rest are going down faster than you can keep track of
 - they are also backing Gorsuch – and the Democrats are filibustering his appointment – tonight – and when it time to vote, Schumer has said they will filibuster it
 - things are in confusion: they will try again tomorrow am
- Also catching on that Putin had nothing to do with the hacking – getting to the place where we are going after the CIA.
- Trump was bailed out of bankruptcy by the Russian mob
- Rex Tillerson of Exxon being brought into the limelight too – the Valdez spill
 - his e-mail account of Wayne Tracker was not revealed, discovered during the investigation into the Valdez spill when those e-mails were held back
 - no wonder that Trump – aka John Barron (one of Trump's pseudo names) - hired Tillerson
- More and more craft being seen and people are interacting with them – crowds seeing the craft – getting bigger and bigger; can no longer be hidden

2017-01-09 Donald Trump was bailed out of bankruptcy by Russian Crime bosses

GUEST: Bivonne Birch Cookston and David

Number for calling in: 888-429-5471 free call for the US, Canada

David: they've been married for 4 years; has known her for 20 years or more

- Life is about change; there are simple ways to determine what we might want to change, and how to do it.
- Talks about the value of crutches, one of which is graphology – it's like iridiology or looking at the palm of your hand; the study of graphology goes back at least 500 years in many many languages – seems to be universal.
- Take a look in your earlier journals, diaries and your writing, as well as the content – interesting to see the development and changes
 - Your handwriting changes all the time because you are alive!!!

MR: voice can be analyzed too – is as revealing as hand writing

B,D: discussion of the effect of printing on the way people think: printing is like computer games that are “stop, go; stop, go; stop, go”.

- Cursive helps you think as it is flowing and supports the thinking process

MR: asks about people who cannot make decisions

B, D: one underlying cause is lack of confidence -

- Talks of the way to write Capital I and the small I to support confidence

Carlton: asks for more about what was said about teaching handwriting to young people

B, D: can see different strokes and slants in foreign languages, not just English

C: are they suggesting that there is a lot of programming to control thinking and that this is carried through to the teaching of handwriting?

D: it's the school system; the media; the way teachers taught us

- people's writing reveals the amount of confusion within
- those with flamboyant writing – go from one relationship to another – the flamboyant ones don't take care of the details; extra loops in letters where they shouldn't be can lead to abuse

Name of Bivonne's book: Change Your Handwriting: Change Your Life!

Trump speaks at Trump Soho, built in partnership with Bayrock

In 2008, Donald Trump Jr. attended a real estate conference, where he stated that

Russians make up a pretty disproportionate cross-section of a lot of our assets. We see a lot of money pouring in from Russia.

As it turns out, that may have been an understatement. Human rights lawyer Scott Horton, whose work in the region goes back to defending Andrei Sakharov and other Soviet dissidents, has gone through a series of studies by the Financial Times to show how funds from Russian crime lords bailed Trump out after yet another bankruptcy. The conclusions are stark.

Among the powerful facts that DNI missed were a series of very deep studies published in the [Financial Times] that examined the structure and history of several major Trump real estate projects from the last decade—the period after his seventh bankruptcy and the cancellation of all his bank lines of credit. ...

The money to build these projects flowed almost entirely from Russian sources. In other words, after his business crashed, Trump was floated and made to appear to operate a successful business enterprise through the infusion of hundreds in millions of cash from dark Russian sources.

He was their man.

Yes, even that much seems fantastic, and the details include business agencies acting as a front for the GRU, billionaire mobsters, a vast network of propaganda sources, and an American candidate completely under the thumb of the Kremlin.

It reads like the a B-grade spy novel, a plot both too convoluted—and too bluntly obvious—for John le Carré. The problem is it may not be a conspiracy theory. It may be a conspiracy.

Horton's analysis comes from piecing together information in three Financial Times "deep reports." One of these focused on Sergei Millian, the head of the Russian American Chamber of Commerce in the US at the time of Trump Jr.'s "money pouring in from Russia" claim.

Mr Millian insists his Russian American Chamber of Commerce (RACC) has nothing to do with the Russian government. He says it is funded by payments from its commercial members alone.

Most of the board members are obscure entities and nearly half of their telephone numbers went unanswered when called by the Financial Times. An FT reporter found no trace of the Chamber of Commerce at the Wall Street address listed on its website.

Why was RACC's background filled with so many holes? The Financial Times quotes former Russian MP Konstantin Borovoi in tagging the chamber as a front for intelligence operations that dates back to Soviet times.

"The chamber of commerce institutions are the visible part of the agent network . . . Russia has spent huge amounts of money on this."

Millian helped arrange for Trump to visit Moscow in 2007, and had other outings with Trump in the states, including a visit to horse races in Miami. Millian claims that he had the right to market Trump properties in Russia.

"You could say I was their exclusive broker," he told Ria. "Then, in 2007-2008, dozens of Russians bought apartments in Trump properties in the US." He later told ABC television that the Trump Organisation had received "hundreds of millions of dollars" through deals with Russian businessmen.

Despite documents and photos showing Trump with Millian, Trump denied their association during the campaign.

Hope Hicks, Mr Trump's campaign spokeswoman, said Mr Trump had "met and spoke" with Mr Millian only "on one occasion almost a decade ago at a hotel opening".

The second Financial Times article puts Trump at the middle of a money laundering scheme, in which his real estate deals were used to hide not just an infusion of capital from Russia and former Soviet states, but to launder hundreds of millions looted by oligarchs. All Trump had to do was close his eyes to the source of the money, and suddenly empty apartments were going for top dollar.

Among the dozens of companies the Almaty lawyers say the Khrapunov laundering network used were three called Soho 3310, Soho 3311 and Soho 3203. Each was a limited liability company, meaning their ownership could easily be concealed.

The companies were created in April 2013 in New York. A week later, property records show, they paid a total of $3.1m to buy the apartments that corresponded with their names in the Trump Soho, a 46-storey luxury hotel-condominium completed in 2010 in a chic corner of Manhattan.

Why would Trump's organization make such a good means of laundering funds? Because real estate has an arbitrary value. Is that apartment worth $1 million? Two million? Why not $3 million for a buyer who really wants it? When the whole transaction is just one LLC with undisclosed ownership paying another LLC with undisclosed ownership, it's even neater than hiding the money in an offshore account. And while some businesses require due diligence in looking at the source of funds, real estate is a bit more ... flexible.

The laws regulating US real estate deals are scant, experts say. Provisions against terrorism financing in the Patriot Act, passed in the aftermath of the September 11 2001 attacks, obliged mortgage lenders to conduct "know your customer" research. But money launderers pay in cash. Sales such as those of the Trump Soho apartments have passed through this loophole, which was partially closed only this year.

Converting funds stolen overseas into property in the US and cash in the account of an LLC represented a win for both the oligarchs and Trump. Best of all, Trump's sole requirement was that he pay scant attention to the deal—something at which he was already a proven master. For example, the actual owners of the Trump Soho were another limited liability company, Bayrock. Trump was a partner in the LLC and Bayrock cut the checks Trump received when those apartments were sold. And yet ...

In a 2011 deposition, given in a dispute over the Fort Lauderdale project, Mr Trump said he had "never really understood who owned Bayrock". Jody Kriss, a former Bayrock finance director, has claimed in racketeering lawsuits against his former employer that Bayrock's backers included "hidden interests in Russia and Kazakhstan". Bayrock has denied Mr Kriss's allegations but declined to answer questions about the source of its funds and its relationship with the Khrapunovs.

The third article digs more deeply into the origins of Bayrock and its connection with Trump. That connection ... was very close.

The Republican presidential nominee and Bayrock were both based in Trump Tower and they joined forces to pursue deals around the world — from New York, Florida, Arizona and Colorado in the US to Turkey, Poland, Russia and Ukraine. Their best-known collaboration — Trump SoHo, a 46-storey hotel-condominium completed in 2010 — was featured in Mr Trump's NBC television show The Apprentice.

This is the same group about which Trump said he "never really understood" the ownership.

"I don't know who owns Bayrock," Mr Trump said. "I never really understood who owned Bayrock. I know they're a developer that's done quite a bit of work. But I don't know how they have their ownership broken down."

At the very least, Trump confessed to partnering with, taking money from, and acting as a representative for a corporation whose ownership he didn't know, in deals that totaled hundreds of millions in countries around the world. However, it seems far more likely that Trump knowingly worked with oligarchs, groups associated with the Russian government, and plain old mobsters. Why? Because he was desperate.

By the 2000s, the property developer and casino owner with ready access to the capital markets and the biggest New York banks was no more. A series of corporate bankruptcies had limited his financing options. Mr Trump had become an entertainer who portrayed a tycoon on television and licensed his name to businesses looking for a brand, leading to fee-making opportunities as disparate as Trump University and Trump Vodka.

The Trump Organization was a hollow shell and Trump was bankrupt, but Donald Trump the public figure was a "successful businessman," a screen behind which criminal activity could be carried out on a massive scale. Throwing his name at every scheme in existence wasn't a strategy, it was a fire sale on Trump's respectability. Steaks? Water? Vodka? Fake real estate school? You pony up the cash, and Trump will slap his name on it. Because by the early 2000s, Trump wasn't just broke, he had nothing left to pawn. He wasn't a successful businessman, but he still played one on TV. His image had more value than his real estate portfolio.

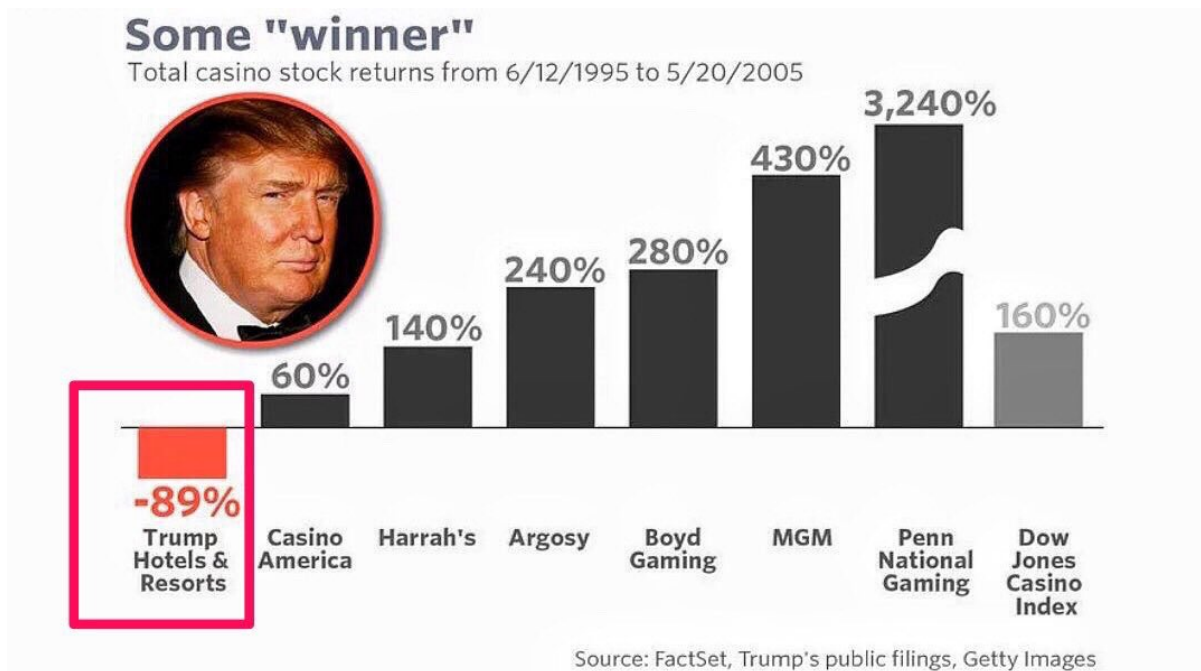

But the apartments and buildings where Trump held some degree of ownership could be turned into value again. All it took was partnering with foreign crime bosses looking for a place to stash their cash. To inflate the value of his portfolio, Trump had to do nothing other than look away as the dirty money poured in from one LLC to the next. Citizens in Russia, Kazakhstan, and other former Soviet states lost hundreds of millions, but Trump got a cut as looted funds flowed through offices and apartments in buildings that carried those critical gold letters.

Horton's evaluation of this material in coordination with the declassified DNI report is that Trump actively worked with and for Russian interests.

What these exposes showed, is that Trump pursued the projects hand in glove with Russian mobsters who worked closely with Putin's Kremlin ...

But based on the information in the Financial Times report, it appears that there are actually two possible answers. Trump may have been actively involved with and working for Russian sources. He might also have simply played the role of useful idiot, displaying his readiness to feign ignorance about any deal ... so long as it generated some funds to float his sinking boat.

In the end, there's not a lot of difference in the outcome. Trump got money. Oligarchs cleaned their cash. Russia got their man.

2017-03-20 Official Resigns After U.N. Accidentally Tells the Truth About Israel

By hganon

by Darius Shahtahmasebi at theantimedia.org

A U.N. report published this week accused Israel of imposing an “apartheid regime” of racial discrimination on the Palestinian people. Shortly after its release, the official who approved its publication resigned amid pressure to pull it, and the report has since been withdrawn.

The report, written by the U.N. Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia (ESCWA), concluded that “Israel [has] established an apartheid regime that dominates the Palestinian people as a whole” — a charge Israel vehemently denies.

Israel’s Foreign Ministry spokesman likened the report to Der Sturmer, a Nazi propaganda publication that was strongly anti-Semitic.

It is a unique and beneficial position to be in wherein every legitimate criticism of one’s policies is deemed to be racially or politically motivated. In that sense, Israel wants to be ultimately free of criticism, even when the nation commits serious violations of international law. Unsurprisingly, the U.S. has staunchly come to Israel’s defense.

“The United Nations secretariat was right to distance itself from this report, but it must go further and withdraw the report altogether,” the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Nikki Haley, said in a statement, as reported by the Independent.

The ESCWA comprises 18 Arab states in Western Asia and has a view of supporting economic and social development in member states, according to its website. The report was prepared at the request of its member states and notes it reflects the views of the authors only. It was also published without any prior consultation with the U.N. secretariat.

Is the report entirely without merit, as the U.S. and Israel would have us believe? According to the report’s abstract, which Anti-Media cited before the publication was pulled:

“A history of war, annexation and expulsions, as well as a series of practices, has left the Palestinian people fragmented into four distinct population groups, three of them (citizens of Israel, residents of East Jerusalem and the populace under occupation in the West Bank and Gaza) living under direct Israeli rule and the remainder, refugees and involuntary exiles, living beyond. This fragmentation, coupled with the application of discrete bodies of law to those groups, lie at the heart of the apartheid regime. They serve to enfeeble opposition to it and to veil its very existence. This report concludes, on the basis of overwhelming evidence, that Israel is guilty of the crime of apartheid, and urges swift action to oppose and end it."

South Africa, a country whose infamous history of an apartheid regime shows its people are adept enough to recognize apartheid when they see it, has been a staunch backer of the Palestinian movement for years. South Africa's International Relations Minister, Maite Nkoana-Mashabane, once famously stated "the Palestinian struggle is our struggle."

The U.N. report was authored by Richard Falk, a former U.N. human rights investigator for the Palestinian territories, and Virginia Tilley, a professor of political science at Southern Illinois University.

After its publication, U.N. Under-Secretary General and ESCWA Executive Secretary Rima Khalaf resigned amid pressure from Secretary-General Antonio Guterres to withdraw it, Reuters reports. She stood by the report, adding, "It was expected that Israel and its allies would put enormous pressure on the United Nations secretary-general to renounce the report."

The report is no longer visible on UNESCWA's website, but can be found in the Internet archive.
