

Participatory mHealth: individuals capture/process/act on data from daily living

In patient self-care innovation is happening outside the traditional enterprise and clinical workflows; but it can still contribute to, and be, evidence-based

our actions

Photo: Marshall Astor, WWW

our self report

personal data repository

*experience
sampling streams*

context and activity traces

processing

aggregate measures, trends, patterns

event detection

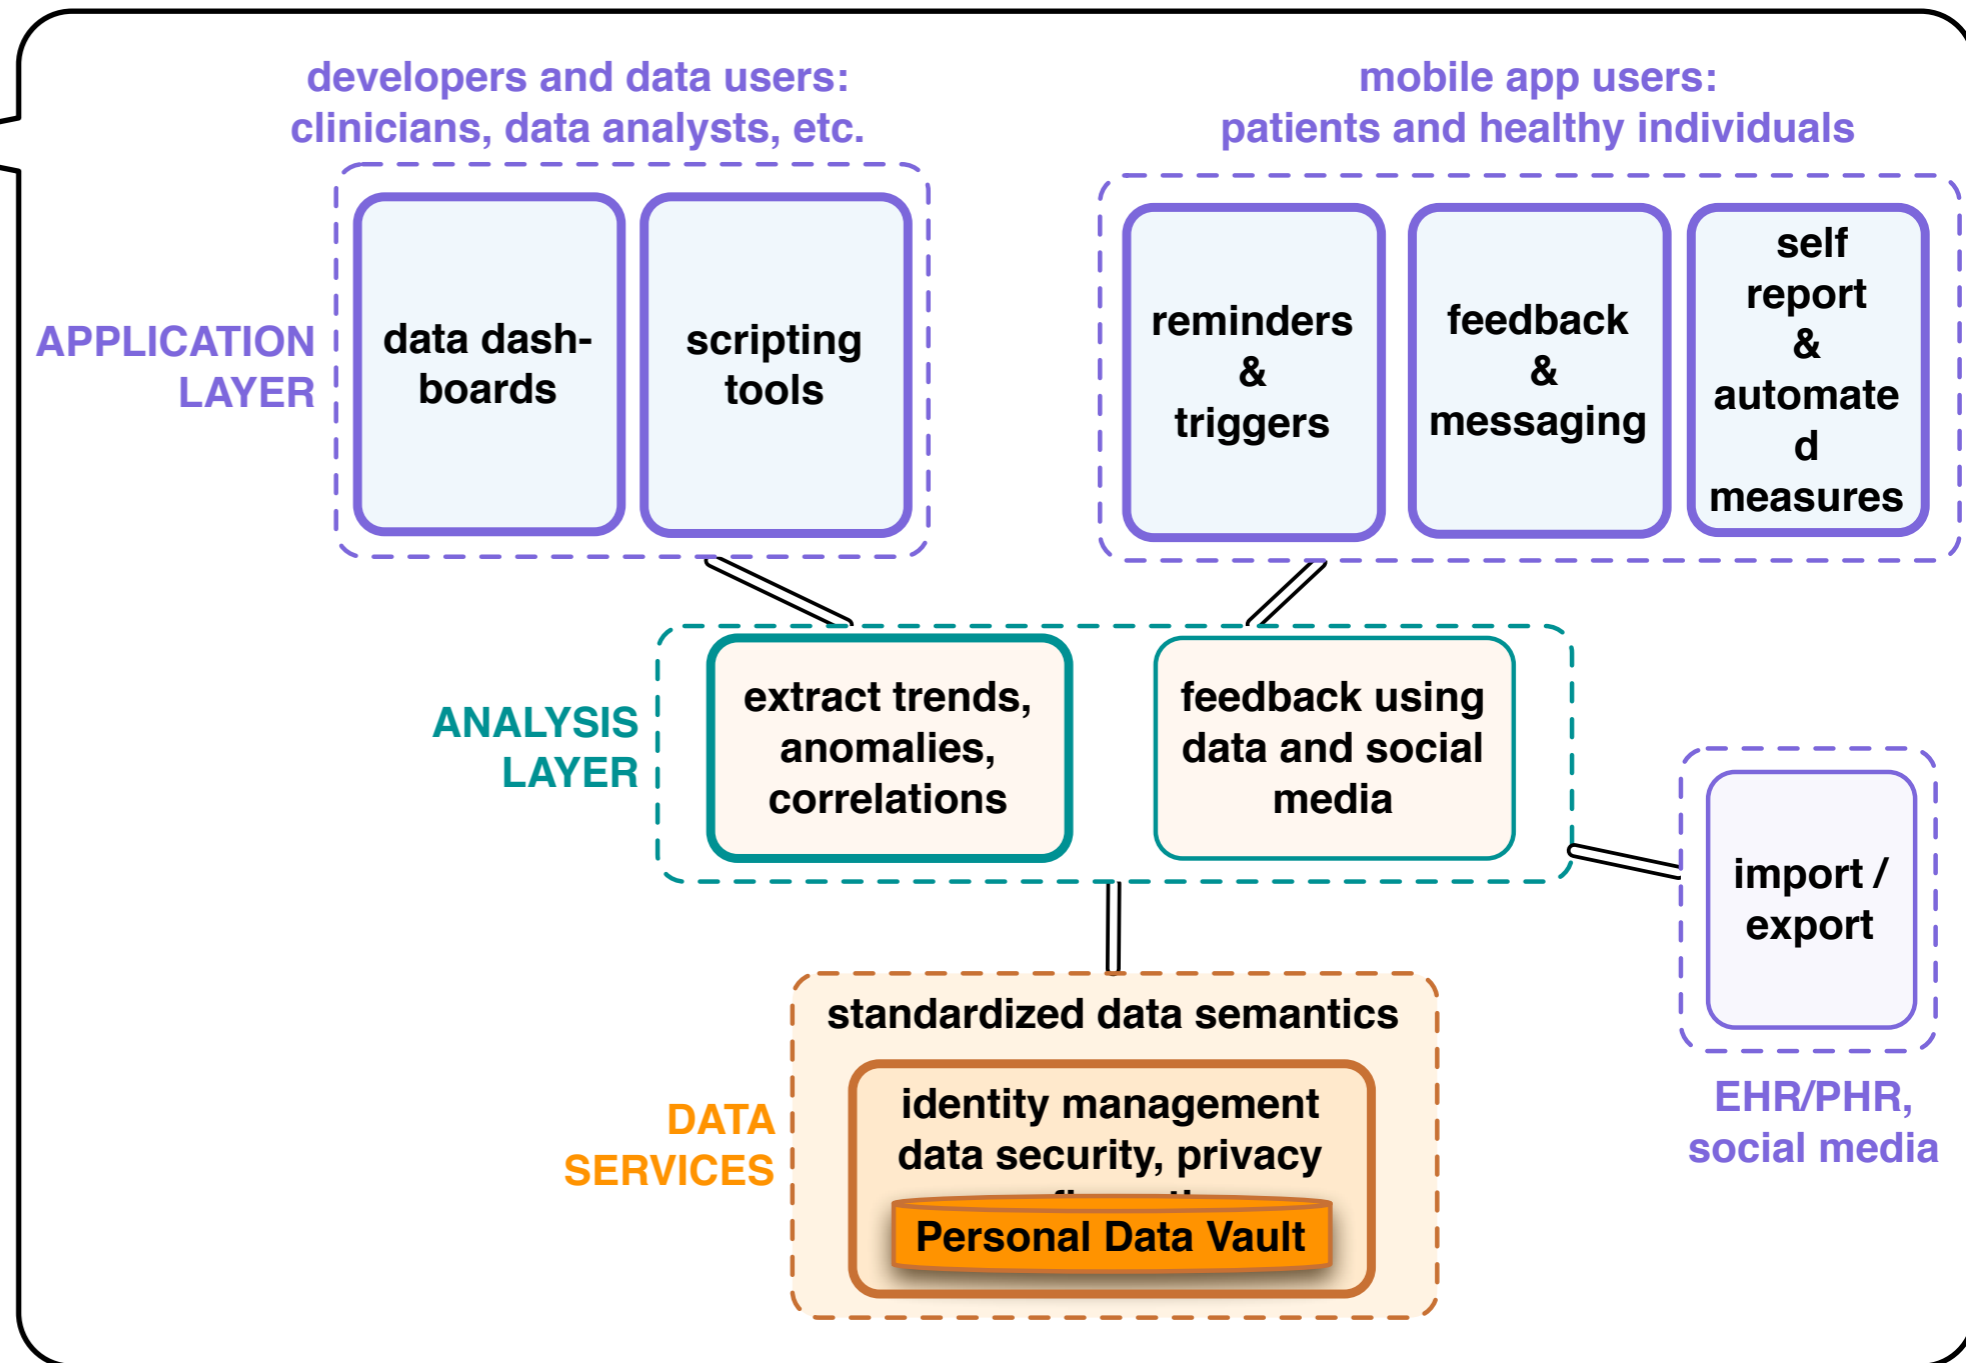

visualization

Its not 'rocket science', but its more than 'just an app'.... so, an open modular system is critical to foster rapid and meaningful exploration and innovation

<http://openmhealth.org>

Swiernik, Estrin, Sim, et al