

"I am Africa. This is my story..."

STORYTELLERS

The time has come and the opportunity is here to speak out.

To tell the story that Africa's youth is not some NGO statistic or sad clip on the international news.

We are Africa's youth: brilliant, determined, innovative ethical and the foundation of a new Africa.

We will take our stories of hard work and resourcefulness to the streets, we will take them to the world wide web and the world will hear us roar. That is "I am Africa. This is my story..."

Contest Web Site: www.i-am-the-story.org

"I AM AFRICA. THIS IS MY STORY..."

Is a digital storytelling contest on YouTube for African youth sponsored by UNESCO Power of Peace Network and ZAA-ICT.

THE CONTEST IS

An educational, cultural and business opportunity for African youth to have an international voice in a constructive way. For African youth to have a way to educate one another into a new future. To encourage diverse African communities and organizations to work together and show the world that African youth are worth investing in.

CHRYSALIS CAMPAIGN, INC

To provide safe community learning centers, safe social communities for collaboration with global Web resources in order to transform individuals into self-sufficient communities of purpose.

The Chrysalis Campaign, Inc. is a non-stock holding incorporation in Connecticut, USA. Application for US 501 C3 is pending. A CPA firm and board of directors oversee our activities.

Chrysalis Campaign, Inc.
13 Geiger Rd.
New Milford, CT 06776
Cell: 860.248.5424
Email: rclose@i-am-the-story.org
Site: www.i-am-the-story.ning.com
Twitter: @richardcclose
Linkedin: <http://www.linkedin.com/in/richardcclose>

Dear StoryTeller,

Every African youth has a story and is worthy of telling it.

Every African youth has a story worth listening to. Millions of African youth from all levels of society, tribe and religion have a history, challenges, purpose and a future. You have the right, freedom and now opportunity to tell to the world who you really are.

As African youth, you have the right to tell the story the international press has failed miserably to tell. African youth are bright and shining stars, hard workers, resourceful, faithful to families and the foundation of Africa's future.

There is no story greater than another. A young single mother who puts food on the table is as honorable as one getting a medical degree in the U.K. Everyone plays a role in the story that is Africa.

The first reason for this contest is that we want to teach you how to acquire the resources in the world through the Internet.

The second reason is for Africa's youth to learn how to work and trust one another to achieve personal, family, community and country transformation through intelligent, ethical decisions. To encourage one another when things seem impossible and difficult. To see and hear the testimony of our brothers and sisters encouraging each other to take another step, that the impossible become possible everyday. Together You are Africa and this is your story.

Only you can tell your story, but we can help with:

1. Free social community and YouTube channel.
2. Free customizable web page.
3. Free Training material on how to tell a YouTube story.
4. Free Certificate and chance to win a new laptop.
5. Materials on how to find people who will help you.

To find out more go to the "Enter Contest" tab on: <http://i-am-the-story.ning.com> or www.i-am-the-story.org. Let's hear you roar, "I am Africa. This is my story..."

Richard C. Close
Servant – CEO
Chrysalis Campaign, Inc.

