Program:

Bob Muir, Director of Client Solutions at HCC

Bob connects businesses, organizations and government with college consulting and training resources.

In response to the college being asked to train a company's employees, the college built a program to do so. It's called the Business Training Center. The goal is to know the clients, bring together subject matter experts, and design and deliver customized training to the employees.

Customized training consists of a needs assessment, instructors, and design and testing of the program. Delivery of the program can occur at Gateway, onsite, online, or remotely. Services have been delivered internationally.

Also perform consulting and coaching services.

Many local companies have used the services as well as large international companies.
